

This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world's books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

Usage guidelines

Google is proud to partner with libraries to digitize public domain materials and make them widely accessible. Public domain books belong to the public and we are merely their custodians. Nevertheless, this work is expensive, so in order to keep providing this resource, we have taken steps to prevent abuse by commercial parties, including placing technical restrictions on automated querying.

We also ask that you:

- + Make non-commercial use of the files We designed Google Book Search for use by individuals, and we request that you use these files for personal, non-commercial purposes.
- + Refrain from automated querying Do not send automated queries of any sort to Google's system: If you are conducting research on machine translation, optical character recognition or other areas where access to a large amount of text is helpful, please contact us. We encourage the use of public domain materials for these purposes and may be able to help.
- + Maintain attribution The Google "watermark" you see on each file is essential for informing people about this project and helping them find additional materials through Google Book Search. Please do not remove it.
- + Keep it legal Whatever your use, remember that you are responsible for ensuring that what you are doing is legal. Do not assume that just because we believe a book is in the public domain for users in the United States, that the work is also in the public domain for users in other countries. Whether a book is still in copyright varies from country to country, and we can't offer guidance on whether any specific use of any specific book is allowed. Please do not assume that a book's appearance in Google Book Search means it can be used in any manner anywhere in the world. Copyright infringement liability can be quite severe.

AN ACT TO AMEND THE CHARTER OF THE CITY OF NEW YORK.

PASSED APRIL 14, 1857, THREE-FIFTHS BEING PRESENT.

The People of the State of New York, represented in Senate and Assembly, do enact as follows :

SEC. 1. The Corporation now existing, and known by the name of "The Mayor, Aldermen and Commonalty of the city of New York," shall continue to be a body politic and corporate, in fact and in name, by the same name, and shall have perpetual succession, with all the grants, powers, and privileges heretofore had by "The Mayor, Aldermen and Commonalty of the city of New York."

§ 2. The legislative power of the said Corporation shall be vested in a Board of Aldermen and a Board of Councilmen, who together shall form the Common Council of the city of New York.

§ 3. The Board of Aldermen shall consist of one Alderman to be elected from each district in the city and county of New York, as hereinafter provided for. The members of the Board of Aldermen first elected under this act shall be classified as follows : The Aldermen from districts having an odd numerical designation shall hold such office for the term of one year, and those from districts having an even numerical designation shall hold such office for the term of two years. At all subsequent elections for Aldermen, they shall be elected for the term of two years.

§ 4. There shall be six Councilmen elected from each senatorial district in the city of New York, as the same now are, or may hereafter be, constituted, by general ticket, in each of said districts ; and the persons so elected from each of said senatorial districts shall together form the Board of Councilmen for the said city. The Councilmen shall be chosen for one year.

§ 5. No person shall be eligible to the office of Alderman or Councilman, who shall not, at the time of his election, be a resident of the district from which he is chosen.

§ 6. Each Board of the Common Council shall have power to direct a special election to be held, to supply the place of any member whose seat shall become vacant by death, removal from the city, resignation, or otherwise, and in either case the person elected to supply the vacancy shall hold his seat only for the residue of the term of office of his immediate predecessor.

§ 7. The Boards shall meet in separate chambers, and a majority of either shall be a quorum to do business. Each Board shall appoint a President from its own body, and shall choose its clerk and other officers, determine the rules of its own proceedings, and be the judge of the election returns and qualifications of its own members. Each Board shall keep a journal of its proceedings, and its doors shall be kept open, except when the public welfare shall require secrecy; and all resolutions and reports of Committees, which shall recommend any specific improvement, involving the appropriation of public moneys, or the taxing or assessing the citizens of the city, shall be published immediately after the adjournment of the Board, under the authority of the Board, in all the newspapers employed by the Corporation, and shall not be passed or adopted until after such notice has been published at least two days; and whenever a vote is taken in relation thereto, the ayes and noes shall be called, and published in the same manner.

§ 8. Each Board shall have the authority to compel the attendance of absent members, to punish its members for disorderly behavior, and to expel a member with the concurrence of two-thirds of the members elected to the Board; and the member so expelled shall, by such expulsion, forfeit all his right and powers as an Alderman or Councilman, and no Alderman or Councilman shall be questioned in any other place for any speech or vote in either Board.

§ 9. The stated and occasional meetings of each Board of the Common Council shall be regulated by its own ordinances; and both Boards may meet on the same or on different days, as they may severally judge expedient.

§ 10. Any person holding office under this charter, who shall, during his term of office, accept, hold, or retain any other civil office of honor, trust, or emolument, under the Government of the United States, or under this charter, or who shall, during his said term of office, receive any fees or emoluments, directed to be paid by any ordinance of the Common Council, except as is hereinafter provided, shall be deemed thereby to have vacated his office.

§ 11. Every legislative act of the Common Council shall be by ordinance, act, or resolution, which shall have passed the two Boards of Common Council, before it shall take effect, shall be presented, duly certified, to the Mayor of the city for his approval. If he approve, he shall sign it; if not, he shall return it within ten days thereafter, with his objections, to the Board in which it originated, or, if such Board be not then in session, at its next stated meeting. The Board to which it shall be returned shall enter the objections at large on their journal, and cause the same to be published in one or more of the daily newspapers of the city. But no ordinance, act, or resolution shall be valid, unless the same shall have received the assent of both Boards within the same year.

§ 12. The Board, to which such ordinance, act, or resolution shall have been so returned, shall, after the expiration of not less than ten days thereafter, proceed to reconsider the same. If, after such reconsideration, at least two-thirds of all the members elected to the Board shall agree to pass the same, it shall be sent, together with the objections, to the other Board, by which it shall be likewise reconsidered, and, if approved, by at least two-thirds of all the members elected to such Board, it shall take effect as an act or law of the Corporation. In all such cases, the votes of both Boards shall be determined by yeas and nays, and the names of the persons voting for and against the passage of the ordinance reconsidered shall be entered on the journal of each Board, respectively.

§ 13. If the Mayor shall not return the ordinance so presented to him within the time above limited for that purpose, it shall take effect in the same manner as if he had approved of it.

§ 14. Any ordinance of the Common Council may originate in either Board, and, when it shall have passed one Board, may be rejected or amended by the other. But no ordinance shall be passed by either Board, except by the vote of a majority of all the members elected to such Board.

§ 15. Neither the Mayor nor Recorder of the city of New York shall be a member of the Common Council thereof.

§ 16. The executive power of the Corporation shall be vested in the Mayor and the Executive Departments.

§ 17. Whenever there shall be a vacancy in the office of Mayor, or whenever the Mayor shall be absent from the city, or be prevented by sickness, or any other cause, from attending to the duties of his office, or shall be removed, as hereinafter provided for, the President of the Board of Aldermen shall act as Mayor, and shall possess all the rights and powers of the Mayor, during the continuance of such vacancy, absence, or disability, and until the next charter election, in the case of a vacancy or removal from office.

§ 18. It shall be the duty of the Mayor—

1. To communicate to the Common Council, at least once a year, and oftener if he shall deem it expedient, a general statement of the situation and condition of the city, in relation to its government, finances, and improvements.

2. To recommend for the adoption of the Common Council all such measures connected with the police, security, health, cleanliness, and ornament of the city, and the improvement of its government and finances, as he shall deem expedient.

3. To be vigilant and active in causing the ordinances of the city to be duly executed and enforced.

4. To exercise a constant supervision over the conduct and acts of all subordinate officers, and to receive and examine into all such complaints as may be preferred against any of them for violation or neglect of duty, and generally to perform all such duties as may be prescribed for him by the charter and city ordinances, and the laws of this State or the United States.

5. To appoint such clerks as may be authorized by the Common Council, and as may be required in his office, to aid him in the discharge of his official duties.

§ 19. The Mayor, Comptroller, and Counsel to the Corporation, shall each be elected by the electors of the city; the Mayor for the term of two years, the Counsel to the Corporation for the term of three years, and the Comptroller for the term of four years. The Comptroller shall be voted for on a separate ballot. The other heads of departments shall be appointed by the Mayor, with the advice and consent of the Board of Aldermen. The Board of Aldermen shall have power to confirm or reject all nominations of officers made by the Mayor; and whenever any person nominated by the Mayor shall be rejected by the Board of Aldermen, the Mayor shall immediately nominate another person.

§ 20. The Mayor, Comptroller, and Counsel to the Corporation, may each be removed by the Governor, for cause, in the manner provided by law in the case of sheriffs. The vacancy occasioned by the removal of the Comptroller, or Counsel to the Corporation, shall be filled by the Mayor, with the advice and consent of the Board of Aldermen, until it shall be supplied at the next annual election of charter officers.

§ 21. The other heads of the Executive Departments, except the officers of the Croton Aqueduct Board, shall hold their office for two years, and until the appointment of their successors. The Mayor shall have power to suspend, for cause, during any recess of the Common Council, and by and with the consent of the Board of Aldermen, to remove any of the heads of departments, except the Comptroller and the Counsel to the Corporation, which suspension, and the cause thereof, shall be communicated to the Common Council, if in session; and if not, then at the first meeting thereof. The Board of Aldermen shall have power, without the consent of the Mayor, by a vote of two-thirds of all the members elected, to remove any of the heads of departments, for cause, other than the Comptroller and Counsel to the Corporation. The heads of departments shall have power to appoint and remove the chiefs of bureaux and clerks in their respective departments; except that the Chamberlain shall be appointed by the Mayor, with the consent of the Board of Aldermen, and may be removed in the same manner with heads of departments. The chiefs of bureaux and clerks of departments and bureaux shall hold office during the same term enjoyed by the heads of departments, unless sooner removed. The Chief Engineer of the Fire Department shall be elected in the same manner as is now, or may hereafter be, prescribed by law. The number of clerks to the departments shall be as fixed by the Common Council, who shall also fix the terms of all offices created by them under authority of law.

§ 22. There shall be an executive department, which shall be denominated the "Department of Finance," which shall have control of all the fiscal concerns of the Corporation, and shall prescribe the form of keeping and rendering all city accounts; and all accounts, rendered to or kept in the other departments of the City Government, shall be subject to the inspection and revision of the officers of this department. It shall settle and adjust all claims in favor of or against the Corporation, and all accounts in which the Corporation is concerned, either as debtor or creditor. The chief officer of this department shall be called the "Comptroller of the city of New York." There shall be a bureau in this department for the collection of the revenue accruing from rents and interest of bonds and mortgages, and for the collection of all revenues arising from the use or sale of property belonging to or managed by the city; and for the performance of such other duties as may be directed by the Common Council; the chief officer of which shall be called the "Collector of the City Revenue." There shall also be a bureau in this department for the collection of taxes; the chief officer thereof shall be called the "Receiver of Taxes," who shall have all the powers and perform all the duties now prescribed by law for the Receiver of Taxes, and the office of Receiver of Taxes, as heretofore constituted, and the provisions of law relating to him, are hereby modified so as to conform to the provisions of this act. There shall also be a bureau in this department for the collection of arrears of taxes, arrears of assessments, and arrears of water rents, the chief officer of which shall be called the "Clerk of Arrears." There shall also be a bureau in this department for the reception of all moneys paid into the treasury of the city, and for the payment of moneys on the warrant drawn by the Comptroller and countersigned by the Mayor and Clerk of the Common Council; and the chief officer thereof shall be called the "Chamberlain of the city of New York." The Chamberlain shall keep books, showing the amounts paid on account of the several appropriations; and no warrants shall be paid on account of any appropriations after the amount authorized to be raised by tax for that specific purpose shall have been expended. There shall be another bureau in the Department of Finance, to be called the "Auditing Bureau," and the chief officer thereof shall be the "Auditor of Accounts." It shall revise, audit, and settle all accounts in which the city is concerned as debtor or creditor; it shall keep an account of each claim for or against the Corporation, and of the sums allowed upon each, and certify the same, with the reasons for the allowance, to the Comptroller. The Comptroller shall report to the Common Council, once in ninety days, the name of every person in whose favor an account has been audited, with the decision of the Auditor upon the same, together with the final action of the Comptroller thereon. All moneys drawn from the city treasury shall be upon vouchers for the expenditure thereof, examined and allowed by the Auditor, and approved by the Comptroller, and filed in his office.

§ 23. There shall be an executive department, which shall be denominated the "Street Department," which shall have cognizance of opening, altering, regulating, grading, flagging, curbing, guttering, and lighting streets, roads, places, and avenues; of building, repairing, and lighting wharves and piers, the construction and repairing of public roads, the care of public buildings and places, and the filling up of sunken lots, under the ordinances of the Common Council. The chief officer thereof shall be called "Street Commissioner." There shall be a bureau in this department, the chief officer of which shall be called the "Superintendent of Wharves." There shall also be a bureau in this department, to be denominated the "Bureau of Repairs and Supplies," which shall have cognizance of all repairs and supplies to public buildings, lands and places, and of all other necessary repairs and supplies, not provided for in other departments; the chief officer thereof shall be a practical builder, and he shall be called the "Superintendent of Repairs and Supplies." There shall also be a bureau in this department, to be denominated the "Bureau of Lamps and Gas," the chief officer of which shall be called "Superintendent of Lamps and Gas." The Chief Engineer of the Fire Department shall have a bureau under the Street Department, and shall have charge of repairing fire engines and fire apparatus. There shall be a bureau in this department, the chief officer of which shall be called the "Superintendent of Roads." There shall be a bureau in this department for the collection of assessments, and the chief officer thereof shall be called the "Collector of Assessments." There shall be a bureau in this department for grading, flagging, curbing, and guttering streets, the chief officer of which shall be called the "Superintendent of Street Improvements."

§ 24. There shall continue to be an executive department, under the denomination of the "Croton Aqueduct Board," which shall have charge of the Croton Aqueduct, and all structures and property connected with the supply and distribution of Croton water in the city of New York, and the underground drainage of the same; and the public sewers of said city, and permits for street vaults, and of paving, repaving, and repairing streets, and digging and constructing wells; and the collection of the revenues arising from the sale of the Croton water, with such other powers and duties as are, or may be, prescribed by law. The chief officers thereof shall be called the "President, Engineer, and Assistant Commissioner," who, together, shall form the Croton Aqueduct Board, and hold their offices for five years. There shall be a bureau in this department for the collection of the revenues derived from the sale of the water, and the chief officer thereof shall be called the "Water Registrar." There shall also be a bureau in this department for the laying of water pipes, and the construction and repairs of sewers, wells, and hydrants; paving, repaving, and repairing streets; the chief officer of which shall be called the "Water Purveyor."

§ 25. There shall continue to be an executive department known as the "Almshouse Department," which shall have cognizance of all matters relating to the Almshouse and prisons of said city; the chief officers thereof shall be called the "Governors of the Almshouse;" they shall take and hold their offices as provided by the act, entitled "An act to provide for the Government of the Almshouse and Penitentiary in the city and county of New York;" and be charged with the duties, powers, and responsibilities prescribed by that act. All ordinary appropriations intended for the support of the government of the Almshouse Department, proposed by the Governors of the Almshouse, shall, before the same are finally made, be submitted by the Governors to a Board consisting of the President of the Board of Aldermen, and the President of the Board of Councilmen, Mayor, and Comptroller. If said Board approve of the appropriations, it shall immediately report the same to the Supervisors of the county of New York; if it shall disapprove of the same, it shall return them, with objections, to the Governors of the Almshouse, for their reconsideration; and in case the said Governors shall, upon a reconsideration, adhere, by a vote of two-thirds of all the Governors then in office, to the original appropriations, they shall return them to the said Board, whose duty it shall be to report to the Supervisors. The Board of Education shall also submit, in like manner, all appropriations required by it, and said appropriations shall be subject to all the provisions of this section, so far as the same may be applicable.

§ 26. There shall be an executive department known as the "Law Department," which shall have the charge of and conduct all the law business of the Corporation, and of the departments thereof, and all other law business in which the city shall be interested, when so ordered by the Corporation, and shall have the charge of and conduct the legal proceedings necessary in opening, widening, or altering streets, and draw the leases, deeds, and other papers connected with the Finance Department; and the chief officer thereof shall be called the "Counsel to the Corporation." There shall be a bureau in this department, the chief officer of which shall be denominated the "Corporation Attorney." There shall be also a bureau in this department, the chief officer of which shall be called the "Public Administrator."

§ 27. There shall be an executive department known as the "City Inspector's Department," the chief officer of which shall be the "City Inspector," and shall have cognizance of all matters affecting the public health, pursuant to the ordinances of the Common Council, and the lawful requirements of the Commissioners of Health and of the Board of Health. There shall be a bureau in the City Inspector's Department to be called the "Bureau of Sanitary Inspection and Street Cleaning," under the control of an officer named the "Superintendent of Sanitary Inspection," and who shall render such services as by ordinance may attach to said bureau in cleaning the streets, and in the abatement and removal of nuisances detrimental to the public health in said city. There shall also be a bureau in this department to be known as the "Bureau of Records and Statistics," and which shall be under the direction of the Registrar of Records, and in which bureau shall be kept all records which may by law or ordinance be required to be kept in said department. The Coroners in and for the city and county of New York shall make return to the City Inspector of all inquisitions taken by them in the said city and county (excepting those charging homicide or felonious assault, which shall be filed with the Clerk of the Court of General Sessions). There shall also be a bureau in this department for the inspection, regulation, and management of the public markets, the chief officer of which shall be denominated "Superintendent of Markets." And it shall be the duty of the Croton Aqueduct Department, at all times, to permit the City Inspector to order the hydrants to be used for cleaning the streets, provided that such use shall not endanger the general supply of the Croton water, and shall be used under such regulations as the Croton Aqueduct Board may prescribe. The City Inspector shall, after the passage of this act, appoint such number of Inspectors and Sealers of Weights and Measures as now or hereafter may exist, and who shall succeed to all the powers, and perform the duties, and receive compensation as now by law prescribed, and shall hold office upon the same terms as chiefs of bureaux.

§ 28. It shall be lawful for the Common Council of said city to establish such other bureaux as they may deem the public interest may require, and to assign to them, and to the departments and bureaux herein created, such duties as they may direct, not inconsistent with this act, and the duties thereof shall be performed in accordance with the charter and laws and ordinances of the city; but no expense shall be incurred by any of the departments, or officers thereof, whether the object of expenditure shall have been ordered by the Common Council or not, unless an appropriation shall have been previously made covering such expense. And no member of the Common Council, head of department, chief of bureau, deputy thereof, or clerk therein, or other officer of the Corporation, shall be directly or indirectly interested in any contract, work, or business, or the sale of any article, the expense, price, or consideration of which is paid from the city treasury, or by any assessment levied by any act or ordinance of the Common Council; nor in the purchase of any real estate, or other property, belonging to the Corporation, or which shall be sold for taxes or assessments, or by virtue of legal process at the suit of the said Corporation.

§ 23. The Mayor, or either Board of the Common Council, may at any time require the opinion, in writing, of the head of any department upon any subject relating to his department, or any information possessed by him in relation thereto. And every head of department shall report in writing to the Common Council, quarterly, the state of his department, with such suggestion in relation to the improvement thereof, and to the public business connected therewith, as he may deem advisable.

§ 30. It shall be the duty of the Common Council to provide for the accountability of all officers and other persons to whom the receipt or expenditure of the funds of the city shall be intrusted, by requiring from them sufficient security for the performance of their duties or trust, which security shall be annually renewed; but the security first taken shall remain in force until new security shall be given.

§ 31. Annual and occasional appropriations shall be made by proper ordinances of the Common Council for every branch and object of city expenditure; and no money shall be drawn from the city treasury except the same shall have been previously appropriated to the purpose for which it is drawn.

§ 32. Until the Common Council shall otherwise direct, the existing ordinances shall apply to the departments herein mentioned, so far as the same are applicable thereto and not inconsistent with this act.

§ 33. The Common Council shall not have authority to borrow any sums of money whatever on the credit of the Corporation, except in anticipation of the revenue of the year in which such loan shall be made, unless authorized by a special act of the Legislature.

§ 34. It shall be the duty of the Comptroller to publish, two months before the annual election of charter officers in each year, for the general information of the citizens of New York, a full and detailed statement of the receipts and expenditures of the Corporation during the year ending on the *the first day of the month in which such publication is made; and in every such statement, the different sources of city revenue, and the amount received from each; the several appropriations made by the Common Council; the objects for which the same were made, and the amount of moneys expended under each; the moneys borrowed on the credit of the Corporation; the authority under which each loan was made, and the terms on which the same was obtained, shall be clearly and particularly specified.

§ 35. No tax or penalty shall hereafter be imposed upon or collected of any person, nor license required for selling, or exposing for sale, upon his, her, or their own premises in said city, any wholesome article of food; nor for selling such articles in such parts of the streets of said city as may be designated by the Common Council for that purpose.

§ 36. The Clerk of the Board of Aldermen shall, by virtue of his office, be Clerk of the Common Council, and shall perform all the duties heretofore performed by the Clerk of the Common Council, except such as shall be assigned to the Clerk of the Board of Councilmen; and it shall be his duty to keep open for inspection, at all reasonable times, the records and minutes of the proceedings of the Common Council, except such as shall be specially ordered otherwise. The Clerk of each Board shall appoint, and may remove at pleasure, deputy clerks in his department, to the number authorized by ordinance. The Clerk of the Common Council shall keep the seal of the city; and his signature shall be necessary to all leases, grants, and other documents, as under existing laws.

§ 37. It shall be the duty of the Clerks of the respective Boards to publish all ordinances and amendments of ordinances which shall be passed, and also the proceedings, in the newspapers which may be employed by the Corporation, except such parts as may require secrecy; and whenever a vote shall be taken in either Board, upon the passage of an ordinance which shall contemplate any specific improvement, or involve the sale, disposition, or appropriation of public property, or the expenditure of public moneys or income therefrom, or lay any tax or assessment, such ordinance shall, before the same shall be sent to the other Board, and immediately after the adjournment of the Board at which the same shall have been passed, be published with the ayes and noes, and with the names of the persons voting for and against the same, in the newspapers employed by the Corporation, as part of the proceedings; and no ordinance which shall have passed one Board shall be acted upon by the other Board on the same day, unless by unanimous consent, except in cases of invasion, insurrection, riot, or pestilence.

§ 38. All contracts to be made or let by authority of the Common Council for work to be done or supplies to be furnished, and all sales of personal property in the custody of the several departments or bureaux, shall be made by the appropriate heads of departments, under such regulations as shall be established by ordinances of the Common Council. Whenever any work is necessary to be done to complete or perfect a particular job, or any supply is needful for any particular purpose, which work and job is to be undertaken, or supply furnished, for the Corporation, and the several parts of the said work or supply shall together involve the expenditure of more than two hundred and fifty dollars, the same shall be by contract, under such regulations concerning it as shall be established by ordinance of the Common Council, unless, by a vote of three-fourths of the members elected to each Board, it shall be ordered otherwise; and all contracts shall be entered into by the appropriate heads of departments, and shall be founded on sealed bids or proposals made in compliance with public notice advertised in such of the newspapers of the city as may be employed by the Corporation for the purpose; said notice to be published for at least ten days in each of the daily newspapers so employed; and all such contracts, when given, shall be given to the lowest bidder, the terms of whose contract shall be settled by the Corporation Counsel, as an act of preliminary specification to the bid or proposal, and who shall give security for the faithful performance of his contract in the manner prescribed and required by ordinance; and the adequacy and sufficiency of this security shall, in addition to the justification and acknowledgment, be approved by the Comptroller. All bids or proposals shall be publicly opened by the officers advertising for the same, and in the presence of the Comptroller. If the lowest bidder shall neglect or refuse to accept the contract within forty-eight hours after written notice that the same has been awarded to his bid or proposal, it shall be re-advertised and relet as above provided. All property sold under the authority of the Common Council shall be sold at auction, after previous public notice, under the superintendence of the appropriate head of department. Every contract, when made and entered into as before provided for, shall be executed in duplicate, and shall be filed in the Department of Finance; a receipt for each payment made on account of, or in the satisfaction of, the same shall be indorsed on the said contract by the party receiving the warrant; which warrant shall be only given to the person interested in such contract, or his authorized representative. The proceeds of all sales, made under and by virtue of this section, shall be by the officer receiving the same immediately deposited with the City Chamberlain, and the account of sales, verified by the officer making the sale, shall be immediately filed in the office of the Comptroller. No expenditure for work or supplies, involving an amount for which no contract is required, shall be made, except the necessity therefor be certified to by the head of the appropriate department, and the expenditure be as authorized by the Common Council.

§ 39. Every person, elected or appointed to any office under the City Government, shall, on or before the first day of January next succeeding each election, or within five days after notice of such appointment, take and subscribe an oath or affirmation, faithfully to perform the duties of his office; which oath or affirmation shall be filed in the Mayor's office.

§ 40. Any officer of the City Government, or person employed in its service, who shall willfully violate or evade any of the provisions of this charter, commit any fraud upon the city, or convert any of the public property to his own use, or knowingly permit any other person so to convert it, shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and, in addition to the penalties imposed by law, shall forfeit his office, and be excluded forever after from receiving or holding any office under the city charter; and any person, who shall wilfully swear falsely in an oath or affirmation required by this act, shall be guilty of perjury.

§ 41. All ferries, docks, piers, and slips shall be leased; and all leases and sales of public property and franchises (other than grants of land under water, to which the owners of the upland shall have a pre-emptive right), shall be made by public auction, and to the highest bidder, who will give adequate security. No lease hereafter given (except as the same may be required by covenants of the Corporation already existing), shall be for a longer period than ten years; and all ferry leases shall be revocable by the Common Council for mismanagement or neglect to provide adequate accommodations. All persons acquiring any ferry lease or other franchise or grant under the provisions of this act, shall be required to purchase, at a fair appraised valuation, the boats, buildings, and other property of the former lessees or grantees, actually necessary for the purposes of such ferry grant or franchise. Previous notice of all sales referred to in this section shall be given, under the direction of the Comptroller, in the newspapers employed by the Corporation, and for thirty days in each of the daily newspapers so employed.

§ 42. No money shall be expended by the Corporation for any celebration, procession, or entertainment of any kind, or on any occasion, unless by the votes of three-fourths of all the members elected to each Board of the Common Council.

§ 43. The Common Council are hereby authorized and directed to make all necessary arrangements for the conduct and regulations of all elections authorized under the provisions of this act, and in conformity, as far as may be to the general election laws, except herein otherwise provided.

§ 44. No officer under this charter, except the Collector of City Revenue, Collector of Assessments, Clerk of Arrears, Counsel to the Corporation, or Inspector of Vessels, shall have or receive from the Corporation or City Treasurer any perquisites or any compensation or commission for his services, except a salary, except that the City Inspector may receive to his own use such portion of the fees, allowed for recording births and marriages, as are or may be prescribed by law. The salaries of all officers provided for by this act, or that may be created by the Common Council in pursuance of this act, shall be prescribed by ordinance to be passed by the Common Council, and approved as hereinafter provided, for the approval of all ordinances, for raising and appropriating the money or disposing of the property of the city; and any fees that now are, or hereafter may be provided for any officer under this charter, except as aforesaid, shall, on the receipt thereof, be paid by such officer into the city treasury. No member of the Common Council shall receive any compensation for his services as such member.

§ 45. All officers or other persons, to whom the receipts or expenditures of the city, or fees or funds payable into the city treasury, shall be intrusted, shall give sufficient security for the faithful performance of their duty in such form and amount as the Common Council may prescribe, which shall be annually renewed.

§ 46. No additional allowance, beyond the legal claim, under any contract with the Corporation, or for any services on its account, or in its employment, shall ever be allowed.

§ 47. No bid shall be accepted from, or contract awarded to, any person who is in arrears to the Corporation upon debt or contract, or who is a defaulter, as surety or otherwise, upon any obligation to the Corporation.

§ 48. No Alderman shall hereafter sit or act as Judge of the Court of Oyer and Terminer, or in the Courts of General or Special Sessions in the city and county of New York; but this section shall not prevent his exercising the power of magistrate in the arrest, commitment, or bailing of offenders, excepting that he cannot let to bail or discharge a person arrested or committed by another magistrate. Courts of Oyer and Terminer, in and for the city and county of New York, may be held by a Justice of the Supreme Court and the Court of General Sessions in and for the said city and county, by the Recorder or City Judge of the said city and county; of Special Sessions therein, by any two Police Justices of said city; and, when either of the said Courts shall be held as aforesaid, all the powers and jurisdiction appertaining by law to each of said Courts shall be possessed and exercised by the officer or officers holding the same.

§ 49. The Grand Jury of the county may present any officer other than Mayor, Counsel to the Corporation, or Comptroller, created by or holding office under this charter, but only upon testimony from witnesses who are personally cognizant of the facts they testify to, and after the person so charged shall have had a reasonable opportunity to appear before said Grand Jury in person, in explanation thereof. This presentment may charge such officer with willful and fraudulent omission of duty, or commission of any official act prohibited by law. It shall be filed with the Clerk of the Court, to which the presentment is made. A copy shall be served upon the officer presented as aforesaid, who shall be required to plead thereto as an indictment. If he admit the charges of the presentment so filed and served, the Court shall declare his office vacant. If he deny them, the said presentment shall be tried in the same manner as an indictment. If the jury convict him of any charge contained in the presentment, the Court shall then declare his office vacant. The Court shall order its declaration, if the person so presented shall be found guilty, to be entered on its Minutes, and a copy thereof filed with the Clerk of the Common Council, and thereupon the said office shall become vacant, and the person so convicted shall forever be disqualified from holding any office, not elective, under the city charter.

PASSED APRIL 15, 1837, THREE-FIFTHS BEING PRESENT.

The People of the State of New York, represented in Senate and Assembly, do enact as follows :

SEC. 1. The Mayor and Recorder of the city of New York shall cease to be members of the Board of Supervisors of the county of New York. There shall be voted for, at each and every charter election hereafter to be held in the city of New York, twelve Supervisors, who shall, together, compose the Board of Supervisors of the county of New York, and hold office for one year, from the first of January in each and every year hereafter. They shall be voted for upon a separate and general ticket, but only six names for Supervisors shall be upon one ticket. The six persons receiving the highest number of votes shall be declared elected by the Board of City Canvassers, who shall canvass the votes in the same manner as they are required to canvass votes for charter officers; and all the provisions of law, relating to election of charter officers, are hereby applied to the election of Supervisors. On or before the twenty-fourth day of December, in each and every year succeeding the charter election, the Mayor of the city shall appoint, as Supervisors, the six persons receiving severally the highest number of votes next to the votes received by the six Supervisors having the return of the Board of City Canvassers.

§ 2. The vote of a majority of all the members elected to the Board of Supervisors shall be necessary to pass any act, ordinance, or resolution appropriating money; and every act, ordinance, or resolution, which shall have passed the Board of Supervisors, except such as levy any tax or taxes, before it shall take effect, shall be presented, duly certified, to the Mayor of the city of New York, for his approval. If he approve, he shall sign it; if not, he shall return it, with his objections, to the Board, within ten days thereafter, or, if said Board be not in session, at its next meeting after that period. The Board shall enter the objections at large on their journal, and cause the same to be published in one or more of the daily newspapers of the city of New York.

§ 3. The Board shall, after the expiration of not less than ten days thereafter, proceed to reconsider the same; and such act, resolution, or ordinance, if approved by a majority of all the members elected to the Board shall thereupon take effect. In all such cases, the votes of the Board shall be determined by the ayes and noes, and the names of the persons voting for and against its passage shall be entered on the journal of the Board.

§ 4. If the Mayor shall not return any act, resolution, or ordinance so presented to him, within the time above limited for that purpose, it shall take effect in the same manner as if he had signed it.

§ 5. No money shall be drawn from the treasury, except the same shall have been previously appropriated to the purpose for which it is drawn; and no expense shall be incurred, whether it shall have been ordered by the Board or not, unless an appropriation of money, then in the treasury, sufficient to cover such expense, shall have been previously made.

- § 6. The Finance Department of the Mayor, Aldermen and Commonalty of the city of New York, and its officers, shall have the like power, and perform the like duties, in regard to the fiscal concerns of said Board, as they possess in regard to the local concerns of the said Mayor, Aldermen and Commonalty. All moneys drawn from the treasury, by authority of the Board of Supervisors, shall be upon vouchers for the expenditure thereof, examined and allowed by the Auditor, and approved by the Comptroller; and no such moneys shall be drawn therefrom except on a warrant drawn by the Comptroller, and countersigned by the Mayor and Clerk of the Board, and no other warrant shall be necessary for such purpose.

§ 9. The Counsel to the Corporation of the city of New York shall be the legal adviser of the said Board of Supervisors, and shall receive such compensation for his services as shall be fixed by said Board, not exceeding the sum of two thousand dollars per annum.

AN ACT

TO AMEND AN ACT, ENTITLED "AN ACT TO AMEND AN ACT, ENTITLED
"AN ACT TO ESTABLISH A METROPOLITAN POLICE DISTRICT, AND TO PROVIDE FOR THE GOVERNMENT THEREOF," PASSED APRIL
FIFTEENTH, EIGHTEEN HUNDRED AND FIFTY-SEVEN," PASSED APRIL TENTH, EIGH-TEEN HUNDRED AND SIXTY.

PASSED APRIL 25, 1864; THREE-FIFTHS BEING PRESENT.

The People of the State of New York, represented in Senate and Assembly, do enact as follows:

SEC. 1. The act entitled "An Act to amend an act, entitled 'An Act to establish a Metropolitan Police District, and to provide for the government thereof,'" passed April tenth, eighteen hundred and sixty, is hereby amended in the following specified sections, so as to read as follows:

§ 2. The counties of New York, Kings, Westchester, and Richmond, and the towns of Newtown, Flushing, and Jamaica, in the county of Queens, are hereby constituted and territorially united, for the purpose of police government and police discipline therein, into one district, be the executive head of the whole police force of the Metropolitan District, and who shall have the direction and control of said force, subject to the rules and regulations and orders of the Board of Police.

§ 11. The quota of patrolmen for the county of New York, and whose services are to be paid for by the contribution of said county to the Metropolitan Police Fund, shall not exceed one thousand eight hundred, and such additional numbers as the Board of Supervisors of said county shall, by resolutions, determine to be necessary. The quota of patrolmen for the city of Brooklyn, and whose services are to be paid for by the contribution of said city to the general Police Fund, shall not exceed three hundred, unless the Common Council thereof shall, by resolutions, authorize the Board of Metropolitan Police to appoint an additional specified number. Such resolutions may be passed from time to time, by either the said Board of Supervisors or the said Common Council.

§ 12. The qualified voters of each of the towns in the respective counties of Kings, Westchester, and Richmond, and of each of the towns respectively of Newtown, Flushing and Jamaica, in the county of Queens, and the qualified voters of any incorporated village within the said Metropolitan Police District, shall have the power, at any annual or special town meeting or village election, to vote and determine if a regular patrolman, or any and what number of regular patrolmen, shall be appointed by the Board of Metropolitan Police, for such town or incorporated village, and to direct the sum necessary to be raised by tax, in such town or incorporated village, for contributions to the Metropolitan Police Fund, to pay such patrolmen. Upon proper representation of any such action of any of the above towns or villages, the Board of Supervisors of the county in which such town is situated, or the trustees of such incorporated village, shall cause the sum so voted to be collected with the other expenses of said town or village. A special town meeting or village election, for the purpose or purposes aforesaid, may at any time be held, if required, in the manner provided by law for special town meetings, as now authorized in respective incorporated villages within the said district. But unless so voted as aforesaid, the counties of Richmond, Westchester, and Queens, and such towns in the county of Kings as are not within the bounds of the city of Brooklyn, shall not become liable to the imposition of any tax, for the general or partial expenses of the Board of Metropolitan Police, provided for or incurred by this act, and only in any case according to the provisions of voting aforesaid, and then such proportion of the general or partial expenses is to be imposed upon the town or towns so voting, in proportion to the number of patrolmen employed by such town or towns.

§ 13. Each member of the Metropolitan Police force of the Metropolitan Police District shall hold office respectively during his good behavior, and shall be liable to removal from membership of the said police force only after written charges shall have been preferred against him, according to the rules and regulations of the said Board, and the same shall have been publicly heard and examined after the notice to him thereof by the said Board, in manner to be prescribed by said rules and regulations. But no person shall ever be appointed to membership in the police force of the Metropolitan Police District, or shall continue to hold membership therein, who is not a citizen of the United States, or who has ever been convicted of crime, or who cannot understandingly read or write in the English language, or who shall not have resided within the State during the one year next preceding his appointment.

§ 14. Vacancies in the police force shall be filled up as follows: Inspectors must be appointed from among those who are captains; captains must be appointed from among sergeants; and sergeants must be appointed from among patrolmen.

§ 15. The Board of Police of the Metropolitan Police District, whenever expedient, shall, on the application of any president of an incorporated village, within the said district, or corporation, or person or persons, showing the necessity thereof, detail regular patrolmen of the police force, or appoint and swear any additional number of special patrolmen of the police force, to do special duty at any place within the Metropolitan Police District, upon the corporation, person, or persons by whom the application shall be made, contributing to the Metropolitan Police Fund, by payment to the Treasurer, not exceeding the sum of two dollars and fifty cents per diem of service on such detail of special duty; but the patrolmen so additionally and specially appointed shall be subject to the orders of the Superintendent of Metropolitan Police force, and shall obey the rules and regulations of the said Board, and conform to its general discipline, and to such special regulations as may be made, and shall wear such dress or emblems as the Board may direct, and shall, during the term of their holding appointment, possess all the powers, privileges, and discharge all duties of the Metropolitan Police force applicable to patrolmen. The persons so appointed may be removed at any time by the Board of Police, without assigning any cause thereof, upon notice to the person or persons who applied for the appointment as aforesaid.

§ 16. The Board of Police may also, upon any emergency or apprehension of riot, tumult, mob, insurrection, pestilence, or invasion, appoint as many special patrolmen, without pay, from among the citizens, as it may deem desirable; and, during any day of public election, it may also appoint, to perform duty in the city of New York, not exceeding five hundred special patrolmen, who may be paid out of the Police Fund, contributed by said city, three dollars each for their services as such special patrolmen; provided, however, that each special patrolman so appointed shall make oath before any Commissioner of Police, the Superintendent of Police force, or the Chief Clerk of the Board of the Metropolitan Police, at the time of appointment, that he will not interfere, in any manner, with the election taking place on the day for which he is appointed, otherwise than by depositing his own vote, and providing that such pay may be withheld, and he may be duly prosecuted as for a misdemeanor, if the terms of such oath be violated; and during the service of any special patrolman authorized as aforesaid, he shall possess all the powers, privileges, and perform all the duties that may be, by orders, rules, and regulations, from time to time, prescribed. Every such special patrolman shall wear a badge, to be prescribed and furnished by the Board of Metropolitan Police.

§ 17. No member of the Metropolitan Police force, under penalty of forfeiting the salary or pay which may be due to him, shall withdraw or resign, except by permission of the Board of Metropolitan Police. Unexplained absence without leave of any member of the Metropolitan Police force for five days shall be deemed and held to be a resignation by such member, and accepted as such.

§ 18. The Commissioners of Metropolitan Police shall annually, or as often as a vacancy shall occur, select one of their number to act as the President of the Board of Metropolitan Police. He shall preside at the meetings of the Board, and whenever a vacancy shall occur in the office of Superintendent of Metropolitan Police force, and in the absence or disability of the said Superintendent, the President shall possess all the powers and perform all the duties of that office, subject to the orders, rules, and regulations of the Board of Metropolitan Police, and his pay shall be at the same rate as the Superintendent during such continuance of duty.

§ 19. The Commissioners of Metropolitan Police shall select one of their number to be the Treasurer of the Metropolitan Police. He shall be the fiscal officer of the Metropolitan Police District. He shall, on check and voucher, duly disburse, by order of the said Police Board, for the purposes of this act, all moneys belonging to the Metropolitan Police Fund, and shall deposit the same, when paid to him by the Treasurer of the State of New York, in a bank or banks designated by such officer. He shall execute a bond, with sureties, not less than two, conditioned, in a penalty of fifty thousand dollars, to the people of the State of New York, for the faithful discharge of his duties as such Treasurer. The sureties shall justify before a Justice of the Supreme Court; but before the said Treasurer shall enter upon his duties, the said bond shall be approved by and filed with the Comptroller of the State. Should any collections be made, upon civil action on such bond, they shall be immediately paid to the credit of the Metropolitan Police Fund of the Metropolitan Police District.

§ 20. There shall be a Treasurer's Book-keeper, a Secretary of the President, a Chief Clerk, a First Deputy Clerk, and Deputy Clerks, not exceeding ten; Surgeons of Police, not exceeding ten; a Drill Captain; and Doormen, not exceeding four, to the Central Department, three to the House of Detention of Witnesses, two to each precinct, two to the Inspector's office in Brooklyn, and one each to the sanitary company and detective squad, to be appointed by the Board of Metropolitan Police.

§ 21. The Board of Metropolitan Police shall provide such office and business accommodations as it shall deem requisite for the transaction of its own business, and that of its subordinate officers; there shall be a central office in the city of New York, to be known as the "Central Department of Metropolitan Police," and the Inspector of Police force in Brooklyn shall have office accommodation in that city.

§ 22. It shall be a misdemeanor for any person, not being a regular member of a police, established in any city of this State, or a police constable, or assistant police constable, or a sheriff, or one of the usual general deputies of any sheriff of this State, to serve any criminal process within the said "The Metropolitan District."

§ 23. The Board of Metropolitan Police shall, at all times, whenever consistent with the rules and regulations of the said Board, and with the requirements of this act, furnish all police information desired by the Mayors or Common Councils of said cities respectively, or by the Boards of Supervisors of the counties of Westchester and Richmond, and the county towns of Kings and Queens, within the said "The Metropolitan District."

§ 24. The Board of Metropolitan Police is hereby invested with, and shall hereafter exercise, all the powers now conferred by law upon Mayors of cities, in respect to requiring the services of the military, in aid of the civil authorities to quell riots, suppress insurrections, protect the property and preserve public tranquillity; and such investiture of power shall exclude that of the Mayors of New York and Brooklyn, within these cities respectively, and such powers shall apply to the whole Metropolitan Police District.

See note "A."

§ 25. The Board of Metropolitan Police shall have power to issue subpoenas, tested in the name of its president, to compel the attendance of witnesses upon any proceedings authorized by its rules and regulations. Each Commissioner of Police, the Superintendent of Police, and the Chief Clerk, First Deputy Clerk, and Inspectors of the Board of Police, are hereby authorized and empowered to administer affirmations and oaths to any person summoned and appearing in any matter or proceeding, authorized as aforesaid, or to take any depositions necessary to be made, under the orders, rules, and regulations of the Board of Police, or for the purposes of this amended act. Any wilful and corrupt false swearing by any witness or person, to any material fact, in any necessary proceeding under the said orders, rules, and regulations, or under this act, shall be deemed perjury, and punished in the manner now prescribed by law for such offense. The provisions and procedure of section three of an act entitled "An Act to enable the Common Council of the city of New York to take testimony in matter referred for investigation or inquiry," passed February eight, eighteen hundred and fifty-five, are hereby applied to the case of any witness subpoenaed under this section.

§ 26. The Board of Metropolitan Police may, from time to time, establish stations and station-houses, or sub-stations and sub-station-houses, at least one to each precinct, for the accommodation thereof of members of the police force, and as places of temporary detention for persons arrested and property taken within the precinct.

§ 27. The Commissioners of Metropolitan Police, in furtherance of the police government of the said "The Metropolitan Police District," and for the promoting and perfecting the police discipline of subordinates and officers, and of the members of the Metropolitan Police force, are empowered, in their discretion, to enact, modify, and repeal, from time to time, orders, rules, and regulations of general discipline, wherein, in addition to such general provisions as may be deemed expedient by said Commissioners, there may be particularly defined, enumerated, and distributed the powers and duties and liabilities of the Superintendent of the Police force, Chief Clerk, Inspectors, Captains of Police force, Clerks, Surgeons, Sergeants, Doormen, and members of the Metropolitan Police force, and wherein shall be declared the modes of appointment to office and procedure of removal from office of the said Superintendent and Inspectors, Chief Clerk, and the members in the Metropolitan Police force, and the whole manner of discipline of the said police force; provided that such by-laws, ordinances, orders, rules, or regulations, and forms of and modes of procedure shall not conflict with any of the provisions of this act, or with the constitution of the United States, or of this State.

§ 28. The members of the police force of the said "The Metropolitan Police District" shall furthermore possess in every part of this State all the common law and statutory powers of constables, except for the service of civil process, and any warrant for search or arrest issued by any magistrate of this State may be executed in any part thereof by any member of the police force of the said "The Metropolitan Police District," and all the provisions of sections seven, eight, and nine, of chapter two, title two, part four, of the Revised Statutes, in relation to the giving and taking of bail shall apply to this act.

§ 29. It is hereby made the duty of "The Metropolitan Police force," at all times of the day and night, within the said Metropolitan Police District, and the members thereof are accordingly hereby thereunto empowered, to especially preserve the public peace, prevent crime, detect and arrest offenders, suppress riots and insurrections, protect the rights of persons and of property, guard the public health, preserve order at every primary and public election, remove nuisances existing in public streets, roads, places, and highways; repress and restrain disorderly houses, and houses of ill-fame, arrest all street beggars and mendicants, provide a proper police attendance at every fire, in order that thereby the firemen, fire-engines, and property exposed may be suitably assisted or protected; assist, advise, and protect emigrants, strangers, and travelers in public streets, or at steamboat and ship landings, or railroad stations; enforce every law relating to the suppression and punishment of crime, or to the observance of Sunday, or regarding pawnbrokers, or mock auctions, or emigration, or elections, or gambling, or intemperance, or lotteries, or lottery policies, or vagrants, or disorderly persons, or the public health, or any ordinance or resolution of Common Councils, or town or village authorities within the said district, applicable to police, health, or criminal procedure.

§ 30. The several members of the police force shall have power and authority to immediately arrest, without warrant, and to take into custody, any person who shall commit, or threaten, or attempt to commit, in the presence of such member, or within his view, any breach of the peace or offense directly prohibited by act of the Legislature, or by any ordinance of the city, town, or village within which the offense is committed, threatened, or attempted; but such member of the police force shall, under the penalty of ten days' fine or dismissal from the force, in the discretion of the Board, immediately upon such arrest, convey in person such offender before a magistrate of the city, village, or town where the arrest is made, that he may be dealt with according to law. If the arrest is made during the hours that the magistrate does not regularly hold court, or if the magistrate is not holding court, such offender shall be detained in a station-house, or precinct thereof, until the next public sitting of the magistrate and no longer, but shall be then conveyed without delay before the magistrate, to be dealt with according to law.

§ 31. The constables elected by the electors in the counties of Westchester and Richmond, and in the county towns of Kings and Queens; and the police constables and assistant police constables in villages within the said Metropolitan Police District, shall possess all the powers conferred by this amended act upon patrolmen of the Metropolitan Police force. The Board of Supervisors, in each of the said last-mentioned counties, may call upon the Board of Metropolitan Police to appoint for duty, within the police precincts of which the said county shall be a part, as many additional captains, sergeants, and patrolmen as the said Board of Supervisors shall enumerate and describe, upon appropriating to the Metropolitan Police Fund the necessary expenses, salaries, or pay, to be incurred thereby, and provide and maintain station-houses for their accommodation. It shall be the duty of the Board of Metropolitan Police thereupon to appoint such additional members of the Metropolitan Police force, but not until so called upon.

§ 33. The Supervisors of the counties of Richmond, Westchester, Kings, and Queens are hereby authorized and empowered, from time to time, to levy and raise by tax, upon the estates, real and personal, taxable within each county, such sum or sums of money as may be required to carry into effect, in respect to either of said counties, the fiscal provisions of this act, affecting said counties, or any of them.

§ 34. No person holding office under this act shall be liable to military or jury duty, or to arrest on civil process, nor to service of subpoenas from civil courts, whilst actually on duty.

§ 35. The Board of Metropolitan Police, or the Superintendent of Police in any emergency, shall, on application to [of] the Health Officer of the port of New York, detail such number of the police force as shall be necessary to protect him in the discharge of his duties.

§ 36. In every case of arrest by any member of the Metropolitan Police force, the same shall be made known immediately to the superior on duty, in the precinct wherein the arrest was made, by the person making the same; and it shall be the duty of the said superior, within twenty-four hours after such notice, to make written returns thereof, according to the rules and regulations of the Board of Metropolitan Police, with the name of the party arrested, the alleged offense, the time and place of arrest, and the place of detention.

§ 37. The Board of Metropolitan Police are authorized, from time to time, to contract for, and to provide suitable accommodation within the said "The Metropolitan Police District" for the detention of witnesses who are unable to furnish security for their appearance in criminal proceedings; and such accommodations shall be in premises other than those employed for the confinement of persons charged with crime, fraud, or disorderly conduct. And it shall be the duty of all magistrates to commit witnesses, in default of bail, to the custody of the police, at the house of detention of witnesses, and in committing witnesses to have regard to the rules and regulations of the Board of Metropolitan Police, in respect to their detention.

§ 38. The Board of Metropolitan Police shall have power in its discretion, on conviction of a member of the force for any legal offense or neglect of duty, or violation of rules, or neglect, or disobedience of orders, or incapacity, or absence without leave, or any conduct injurious to the public peace or welfare, or immoral conduct, or conduct unbecoming an officer, or other breach of discipline, to punish the offending party by reprimand, forfeiting and withholding pay for a specified time, or dismissal from the force; but no more than ten days' pay shall be forfeited and withheld for any offense. A return of all fines, and the disposition of the same made under the provisions of this act, shall be made to the Comptroller quarterly.

§ 39. The Superintendent of the Metropolitan Police force shall make to the Board of Metropolitan Police quarterly reports, in writing, of the state of "The Metropolitan Police District," with such statistics and suggestions as he may deem advisable to submit, for the improvement of the police government and discipline of the said district. The Board of Metropolitan Police shall, on or before the first Monday in December in each year, make a report, in writing, to the Governor of the State, upon the condition of the Metropolitan Police within the said Metropolitan Police District.

§ 40. The Superintendent of the Metropolitan Police and each Captain of Police, within his precinct, shall possess powers of general police supervision and inspection, over all licensed or unlicensed pawnbrokers, venders, junk-shop keepers, junk-boatmen, cartmen, dealers in second-hand merchandise, intelligence office keepers, and auctioneers, within the said Metropolitan Police District; and in the exercise of, and in the furtherance of said supervision may, from time to time, empower members of the police force to fulfill such special duties in the aforesaid premises as may be, from time to time, ordained by the Board of Metropolitan Police. The said Superintendent and each Captain within his precinct may, by authority in writing, empower any member of the Metropolitan Police force, whenever such member shall be in search of property feloniously obtained, or in search of suspected offenders, or evidence to convict any person charged with crime, to examine the books of any pawnbrokers, or his business premises, or the business premises of any licensed vender, or licensed junk-shop keeper, or dealer in second hand merchandise, or intelligence office keeper, or auctioneer, or boat of any junk boatman. Any such member of the Metropolitan Police, when thereto authorized, in writing, by the said Superintendent, shall be authorized to examine property, alleged to be pawned, pledged, deposited, lost, or stolen, in whosoever possession said property may be; but no such property shall be taken from the possessor thereof, without due process or authority of law. Any willful interference with the said Superintendent or Captains of Police, or with any member of the Metropolitan Police force, by any of the persons hereinbefore named in this section, whilst in official discharge of duty, shall be punished as a misdemeanor.

§ 41. If any member of the Metropolitan Police force, or if any two or more householders, shall report in writing, under his or their signature, to the Superintendent of the Metropolitan Police force, that there are good grounds (and stating the same) for believing any houses, room or premises within the said Metropolitan Police District, to be kept or used as a common gaming-house, common gaming-room, or common gaming-premises, for therein playing for wagers of money at any game of chance, or to be kept or used for lewd and obscene purposes and amusements, or the deposit or sale of lottery tickets or lottery policies, it shall be lawful for the Superintendent of the Metropolitan Police to authorize, in writing, any member or members of the police force to enter the same, who may forthwith arrest all persons there found offending against law, but none others, and seize all implements of gaming or lottery tickets, or lottery policies, and convey any person so arrested before a magistrate, and bring the articles so seized to the office of the property clerk. It shall be the duty of the said Superintendent of the Metropolitan Police force to cause such arrested person to be vigorously prosecuted, and such articles seized to be destroyed as the orders, rules and regulations of the Board of Police shall direct.

Each member of the Metropolitan Police shall take an oath of office, and subscribe the same before an officer of Metropolitan Police, who is empowered to administer an oath.

§ 47. It shall be the duty of the Board of Metropolitan Police to detail on each day of election within the cities of New York and Brooklyn, respectively, at least two patrolmen to each election poll.

§ 48. Said Board shall, in and for each of the said cities, appoint all poll clerks provided for by law, and such poll clerks shall be clerks to the Inspectors and to the Canvassers; and it shall be their duty to keep and preserve the original tallies, and return the same to the Commissioners of Police within twenty-four hours after the canvass is completed, and the said Commissioners of Police shall, in and for the said cities, provide ballot-boxes for use, at general, special, and charter elections, and retain the custody of said boxes, except during the taking, receiving, and counting the votes. It shall be the duty of the Board of Metropolitan Police to set apart a Metropolitan Sanitary Police Company, and appoint a captain and sergeants, not exceeding four of said company, and to assign to said company such special powers and duties, by the orders, rules, and regulations, as may be publicly advantageous.

§ 52. The Metropolitan Sanitary Company is hereby empowered, under such distribution of power and duty as may be made by the rules and regulations, to visit and make inspection of all ferry-boats, manufactories, slaughter-houses, tenement-houses, hotels, and boarding-houses, and edifices suspected of, or charged with, being unsafe, and to take all necessary legal measures for promoting the public peace, security of life or health, upon or in said boats, manufactories, houses, and edifices, and to make report of inspection action in the premises, to the Board of Metropolitan Police. Whenever said Board shall be satisfied by such report that any ferry-boat, manufactory, slaughter-house, tenement-house, or edifice is in a condition, or is maintained in a manner prejudicial to the lives or health of the public, it shall cause complaint to be made, founded upon such report before any magistrate of the Metropolitan Police District, who shall, upon such complaint made under oath, issue his proper warrant, in the name of the people of the State of New York, for arrest of the person in charge of the ferry-boat, manufactory, slaughter-house, tenement-house, and edifice, to be brought before such magistrate, and the complaint to be duly investigated, according to the law of examination into misdemeanors. If said magistrate shall be satisfied, on a summary hearing thereof, that such charge is founded on reasonable and probable cause, he may, by his order in writing, command any such ferry-boat to cease running, and such edifice to be closed, or any business in such manufactory or slaughter-house to cease until the cause of complaint aforesaid, if found to be well founded, shall be removed to the satisfaction of the Board of Metropolitan Police. Whereupon it shall be the duty of the police to enforce the order of such magistrate.

§ 53, 54. Whenever the Captain of the Sanitary Company shall report to the Board of Police that any premises, or any part of any premises, in any precinct, is in a filthy condition, or in a condition dangerous to health, the Board may cause notice to be given to the owner thereof, or his agent in charge of the property, or to the occupant thereof, to cleanse the same within three days. If the premises are not cleaned at the expiration of the said three days, the Board of Police may order and employ any person to cleanse the same, whereupon the person so ordered shall have power to enter upon and cleanse said premises; and the person so cleansing the premises in pursuance of said order shall maintain an action against the owner of the premises so cleansed, for the services so rendered and expense incurred in such cleansing, in the same court, in the same manner, and with like effect as if the owner of said premises had himself employed the said person to cleanse the said premises. All acts of the Board of Metropolitan Police done under the fifty-second and fifty-third sections of this act shall be deemed and held to be judicial acts.

§ 55. The duties of the police surgeons, and the extent and bounds of their districts, shall be assigned, from time to time, by the orders, rules, and regulations of the Board of Police, and, upon taking the oath of office, they shall be members of the police force.

§ 56. The Board of Metropolitan Police shall have power to erect, operate, and maintain, under the general laws of the State relating to telegraph lines, all such lines of telegraph, in such places within the said district, as, for purposes of police, the Board shall deem necessary. But the ownership of the fixtures and apparatus for such telegraphic purposes in the cities of New York and Brooklyn shall be in the respective municipal corporations of said cities, but subject to the exclusive use and control of the Board of Metropolitan Police.

§ 57. The necessary expenses incurred in the execution of criminal process within the said "The Metropolitan Police District," shall be a county charge only against the county from which the said process issued.

§ 58. It is hereby declared to be the duty of the Common Councils of the cities of New York and Brooklyn, respectively, to provide at the expense of said cities, respectively, all necessary accommodations within such precincts of the said "The Metropolitan Police District," as shall be contained within the boundaries of the said cities, respectively, for the station-houses required by the Board of Metropolitan Police, for the accommodation of the police force of such precincts, and for the lodging of vagrant and disorderly persons, and for the temporary detention of persons arrested for offenses. In case the said Common Councils, or either of them, neglect or refuse, within thirty days after having been thereto, in writing, requested by said Board of Metropolitan Police, to provide accommodation as aforesaid, or station-houses, which, in the opinion of the said Board are suitable, or to put the said station-houses in due repairs, then the said Board may make their own provisions by contract, of leasing, or hiring, or repairing premises, and such contracts shall be a proper charge and debt against the said city, the Common Council of which so neglected or refused to make provision in manner and form aforesaid.

§ 59. The accommodations required for the police purposes of this act, in portions of the Metropolitan Police District other than the cities of New York and Brooklyn, shall be those ordinarily used by the criminal authorities of each town or village therein. In places within the said district, other than the cities of New York and Brooklyn, any member of the Metropolitan Police force, taking any person lawfully under arrest at night, may, in default of public accommodation, of custody, provide for such person a place of detention in his discretion, but for no longer period than twelve hours.

§ 60. The Commissioners of Metropolitan Police, and the Comptrollers of the cities of New York and Brooklyn, convened as a Board of Estimate and Apportionment, shall annually, on or before the first day of July, make up a financial estimate of the sums required annually for expenses in the execution of criminal process, supplying for the fitting up, warming, lighting, supplying, cleansing, and furnishing police station-houses and the house for the detention of witnesses, and for alterations in, additions to, and repairs of the same, and for office accommodation, and advertising, printing, binding, and stationery, and telegraph apparatus and fixtures, and for badges, emblems, and equipments of the police force, and also of the sums necessary for counsel fees, law expenses, and disbursements by the Board of Metropolitan Police, or by the Commissioners of Metropolitan Police, or rendered necessary in criminal or civil actions and proceedings against the Superintendent or Inspectors, or Property Clerk, or members of the Metropolitan Police force, for acts done in the discharge of duty, or by color of office, and to defray the salaries and pay required by this act, and such other general and contingent expenses as may, from time to time, in the judgment of such Apportionment Board of Estimate, become necessary or proper, with the enumeration thereof. Such estimate shall be accompanied with a written apportionment, by said Board, of the proportion of expenses applicable to each city, county, town, or village in the Metropolitan Police District interested therein, in the ratio of the number of patrolmen authorized by this act, and employed by such city, county, town, or village respectively. The said estimate shall then be submitted to a Committee of Revision, composed of the Presidents respectively of the Board of Supervisors of the counties of New York, Kings, Westchester, and Richmond, and of the Board of Aldermen of the city of Brooklyn, and of the Supervisor of the respective towns of Newtown, Flushing, and Jamaica, in the county of Queens, who may meet by a majority thereof to consider the same, on or before the first Monday of October, in each and every year. If the said Auditing Board, on or before the second Monday of said October, shall object, in writing, to such estimate, or any portion thereof, and so notify or cause to be notified the said Board of Estimates and Apportionment it shall be the duty of the latter to immediately and carefully revise the same, and consider the said objections. If such Board shall adhere to their original action of estimate or apportionment, or if they shall modify the same, then their final determination shall be binding upon the respective counties, or cities, or towns, or villages interested therein except that in the counties of Richmond, Westchester, and Queens, no proportion of the general expenses of the Board of Police, in each year, shall be chargeable to any of said counties, or to any town or village therein, except such county, town, or village shall have voted to employ and pay patrolmen.

§ 61. The Board of Supervisors of the county of New York, and the joint Board of Supervisors and Aldermen of the city of Brooklyn, are hereby respectively empowered, and directed annually to order and cause to be raised and collected by tax upon the estates, real and personal, subject to taxation according to law, within the said county of New York and city of Brooklyn, respectively, the sums of money as aforesaid, annually estimated and apportioned as the share of said county or city, of the said total expenses of the Metropolitan Police District.

§ 62. The several sums of money provided for by the preceding sections shall be paid into the Treasury of the State, and shall be paid therein and therefrom under such fiscal regulations as shall be agreed upon in respect thereto by and between the Comptroller and Treasurer of the State, and the Treasurer of the Board of Metropolitan Police.

§ 63. The salaries and compensation of the said Commissioners and other officers and employes of the Board of Metropolitan Police force, shall, from the first day of May next, be as follows: to the President of the Board, four thousand dollars per annum; to the Treasurer, four thousand dollars; to each of the other Commissioners, three thousand five hundred dollars; to the Superintendent, five thousand dollars; to the Inspectors, two thousand five hundred dollars each; the Treasurer's Book-keeper, fifteen hundred dollars; the President's Secretary, twelve hundred dollars; Chief Clerk, three thousand dollars; First Deputy Clerk, two thousand dollars; Clerk of Superintendent, twelve hundred dollars; the Deputy Clerks, twelve hundred dollars each; the Property Clerk and Stenographer, each one thousand five hundred dollars per annum; each Police Surgeon, one thousand eight hundred dollars; each Captain of Metropolitan Police shall receive an salary of fifteen hundred dollars; and each Surgeon of Metropolitan Police shall receive an annual salary of twelve hundred dollars. The pay of each patrolman shall be at the yearly rate of one thousand dollars; and that of each Doorman at the rate of eight hundred dollars per year. The salaries and pay aforesaid shall be paid monthly to each person entitled thereto, in modes to be prescribed by the rules and regulations, subject to such deductions each month from the salary or pay of members of the Metropolitan Police force as the Treasurer shall make (and which deductions he is hereby authorized to retain), to satisfy fines imposed on any member of the Metropolitan Police force by way of discipline or punishment, as prescribed by the rules and regulations of the Board. The salaries of the President, the Treasurer, and of each other Commissioner, shall be paid by the Comptroller of the State out of the Metropolitan Police Fund, provided, nevertheless, that upon the general resumption of specie payments, now suspended in this State, the pay and salaries of the members of said Police force, increased by this section beyond the amounts now fixed by law for them respectively, shall be and remain as the same were before the passage of this act, anything in this section to the contrary notwithstanding.

§ 64. No member of the Board of Metropolitan Police, under any pretense whatsoever, shall, for his own benefit, share in any present, fee, gift, or emolument, for police services, additional to his regular salary or compensation.

§ 65. The Board of Police, for meritorious and extraordinary services, rendered by any member of the police force in the due discharge of his duty, may permit any member of the police force to retain for his own benefit any reward or present tendered him therefor; and it shall be cause of removal from the Metropolitan Police for any member thereof to receive any such reward or present without notice thereof to the Board of Metropolitan Police. Upon receiving said notice, the said Board may either order the said member to retain the same, or shall dispose of it for the benefit of the Police Life Insurance Fund.

§ 66. All fines imposed by the Board of Police upon members of the Metropolitan Police force by way of discipline, and collectable from pay or salary, and all rewards, fees, proceeds of gifts and emoluments that may be paid and given for account of extraordinary services of any member of the Metropolitan Police force (except when allowed to be retained by said member), and all moneys remaining for the space of one year in the hands of the Property Clerk, or arising from the sale of unclaimed goods, and all proceeds of suits for penalties under this amended act, shall be deposited and paid into the bank wherein the Treasurer of the Board of Metropolitan Police shall keep an account. The payments so made shall constitute and be deposited and kept as a fund to be called the "Police Life Insurance Fund," and the persons who shall from time to time fill the office of the said Treasurer of the said Board of Metropolitan Police, and that of Comptroller of the city of New York and city of Brooklyn, are hereby declared the Trustees of the said Fund, and may from time to time invest the same in whole or in part as they shall deem most advantageous for the objects of such fund, and are empowered to make all necessary contracts and take all necessary remedies in the premises.

§ 67. If any member of the Metropolitan Police force, whilst in the actual performance of duty, shall become permanently disabled, so as to render his dismissal from membership proper, or if any such member shall become superannuated after ten years of membership, a sum of not exceeding one hundred and fifty dollars, as an annuity, to be paid such member, shall become chargeable upon the Metropolitan Police Life Insurance Fund. If any member of the Metropolitan Police force, whilst in the actual discharge of his duty, shall be killed, or shall die from the immediate effect of any injury received by him, whilst in such discharge of duty, or shall die after ten years' service in the force, and shall leave a widow, and if no widow, any child or children under the age of sixteen years, a like sum, by way of annuity, shall become chargeable upon the said fund, to be paid to such widow so long only as she remains unmarried, or to such child or children so long as said child, or the youngest of said children, continues under the age of sixteen years. In every case the Board of Metropolitan Police shall determine the circumstances thereof, and order payment of the annuity to be made by draft, signed by each Trustee of the said fund. But nothing herein contained shall render any payment of said annuity obligatory upon the said Board, or the said Trustees, or chargeable as a matter of legal right. The Board of Metropolitan Police, in its discretion, may at any time order such annuity to cease.

§ 68.—1. All property, or money alleged or supposed to have been feloniously obtained, or which shall be lost or abandoned, and which shall be thereafter taken into the custody of any member of the Metropolitan Police force, or Criminal Court of the city of New York, or which shall come into the custody of any police justice, shall be by such member or justice, or by order of said Court, given into the custody of and kept by the Property Clerk of the Metropolitan Police, and all such property and money shall be particularly registered by said Property Clerk in a book kept for that purpose, which shall contain also a record of the names of the persons from whom such property or money was taken, the names of all claimants thereto, the time of the seizure, and any final disposition of such property and money.

2. Whenever property or money shall be taken from persons arrested, and shall be alleged to have been feloniously obtained, or to be the proceeds of crime, and whenever so brought with such claimant and the person arrested before some magistrate for adjudication, and the magistrate shall be then and there satisfied from evidence that the person arrested is innocent of the offense alleged, and that the property rightfully belongs to him, the said magistrate may thereupon, in writing, order such property or money to be returned, and the Property Clerk, if he have it, to deliver such property or money to the accused person himself, and not to any attorney, agent, or clerk of such accused person.

3. If any claim to the ownership of such property or money shall be made on oath before the magistrate, by or in behalf of any other persons than the persons arrested, and the said accused person shall be held for trial or examination, such property or money shall remain in the custody of the Property Clerk until the discharge or conviction of the persons accused.

4. All property or money taken on suspicion of having been feloniously obtained, or of being the proceeds of crime, and for which there is no other claimant than the person from whom such property was taken, and all lost property coming into the possession of any member of the said Metropolitan Police force, and all property and money taken from pawnbrokers as the proceeds of crime, or by any such member from persons supposed to be insane, intoxicated, or otherwise incapable of taking care of themselves, shall be transmitted, as soon as practicable, to the Property Clerk of the Metropolitan Police District, to be duly registered and advertised for the benefit of all persons and parties interested, and for the information of the public, as to the amount and disposition of the property so taken into custody by the police.

5. All property and money that shall remain in the custody of the Property Clerk for the period of six months without any lawful claimant thereto, after having been three times advertised in public newspapers, shall be sold at public auction, and the proceeds of such sale shall be paid into the Police Life Insurance Fund.

6. If any property or money placed in the custody of the Property Clerk shall be desired as evidence in any police or other criminal court, such property shall be delivered to any officer who shall present an order to that effect from such court; such property, however, shall not be retained in said court, but shall be returned to said Property Clerk, to be disposed of according to the previous provisions of this act.

§ 69. The persons in the respective offices of Superintendent, Inspectors, Captains, Sergeants, and Patrolmen of the Metropolitan Police District, at the time of the passage of this amended act, and who have taken and subscribed an oath of office, and the Surgeons of Police, are hereby constituted members of said Metropolitan Police force, and are hereby continued in office during good behavior, subject to such promotion as may have been provided by previous sections hereof, and to removal from office only according to the provisions of this act.

§ 70. The Board of Police shall, at all times, cause the ordinances of the cities of New York and Brooklyn, not in conflict with the provisions of this act, to be properly enforced. And it shall be the duty of said Board at all times, whenever consistent with the rules and regulations of the Board, and with the requirements of this act, to furnish all information desired.

§ 71. This act shall take effect immediately.

SEVENTH REGIMENT ARMORY.

THE Seventh Regiment Armory is situated on the east side of the Bowery or Third avenue, and occupies the block between Sixth and Seventh streets. It is constructed of iron, and is three stories high.

The first floor is used as a market, and known as "Tompkins Market." The second floor is divided into company armories and meeting-rooms, which are fitted up and furnished at the expense of the several companies of the regiment. The third floor is used for a drill-room by the whole regiment. The basement or floor beneath the market has been prepared for target practice and squad drills.

By resolution of Common Council, approved April 6, 1855, the use of the armory was given the Seventh Regiment, New York National Guard, during the pleasure of the Common Council—but was not occupied until three years after said date.

THE NEW YORK SOCIETY LIBRARY.

HISTORICAL SKETCH.

The history of the New York Society Library commences with the year 1700, when the "Public Library" of New York was founded, the Earl of Bellamont being then Governor of the Province.

The library thus organized appears to have gone on increasing, and to have acquired considerable importance. In 1729 the Rev. Dr. Millington, Rector of Newington, England, bequeathed his library to the Society for the Propagation of the Gospel in Foreign Parts, and by this society it was presented to the "Public Library" of New York, "for the use of the clergy and gentry of New York and the neighboring provinces." The whole collection of books was placed in charge of the Corporation of the city. Occasional reference is made to the library in the proceedings of the Common Council; but it appears to have suffered from want of attention and management until 1754, when an association of gentlemen was formed for establishing a public library. On the application of these gentlemen the books they had collected were incorporated with the public library, and the whole placed under the charge of trustees chosen by them. The institution was then, and for a long time afterward, commonly designated as "The City Library."

In 1772, his Majesty King George III granted to it a charter under the style and title of "THE NEW YORK SOCIETY LIBRARY," by which name it has continued to be known to the present day. The events of the war of the Revolution prevented any meeting of the trustees from 1774 to 1788, and nearly destroyed the library. In December, 1788, a meeting of the proprietors was summoned, and the following gentlemen were elected trustees: Hon. Robert R. Livingston, Robert Watts, Brockholst Livingston, Samuel Jones, Peter Keteltas, Walter Rutherford, Matthew Clarkson, Samuel Bard, Hugh Gaine, Daniel C. Verplanck, Edward Greswold, and Henry Remsen.

Until 1795 the library was deposited in the City Hall, and the early sessions of Congress being held in New York, it formed at that time the library of Congress.

In 1793 the first catalogue after the Revolution was printed. The library then contained 5,000 volumes.

In 1795 the library was removed from the City Hall to the new building erected for it in Nassau street, opposite the Middle Dutch church (now used as a post-office). In this building, which was one of the most conspicuous public edifices of that day, it continued until 1836, when the increasing commerce of the city compelling the trustees to seek another situation, the property in Nassau street was sold for $44,200, and a lot purchased on the corner of Broadway and Leonard street, sixty feet wide and one hundred feet deep, for the sum of $47,500. A catalogue was published in 1813, comprising 13,000 volumes; and in 1825 a supplement was printed, showing a total of 16,000 volumes.

In 1838 the New York Atheneum was finally merged in the New York Society Library.

In 1840 the new building on Broadway was completed, at a cost of $74,000, and the library removed from the rooms of the Mechanics' Society in Chambers street, where it had been since 1836.

In 1849 a bequest of $5,000 was received from Miss Jane Demilt, and in 1853 the property in Broadway was sold, and the library removed to the Bible House, in Astor place, where it remained until the spring of 1856, when it was again removed to the elegant and commodious building erected for it by the Trustees in University place, between Twelfth and Thirteenth streets, where it now is.

Printed catalogues of the library are known to have existed before the Revolution. The last one, prepared by the late librarian P. J. Forbes, Esq., was printed in 1850. A new catalogue, prepared by the present librarian, is now about to be published.

The number of members in 1793 was 900; the present number is about 1,200.

Librarians: 1793, Isaac L. Kip; 1794, John Forbes; 1824, Burtis Skidmore; 1828, Philip J. Forbes; 1855, John MacMullen; 1857, Wentworth S. Butler.

Possessing a fine building, containing agreeable reading-rooms for ladies and gentlemen, which are supplied with all the best foreign and American reviews, magazines, and newspapers, with a library of about 50,000 volumes, constantly augmented by the latest European as well as American publications, and entirely free from debt, the New York Society Library, by its past history as well as by its present condition offers unequalled attractions as a literary resort for the citizens of New York.

THE JEWS' HOSPITAL IN NEW YORK.

138 and 140 West Twenty-eighth street, between Seventh and Eighth avenues.

This hospital was erected in the year 1852, and was organized on the 25th day of February of that year, by Samson Simson, John J. Hart, S. M. Isaacs, Benjamin Nathan, John M. Davies, and Henry Hendricks, who will readily be recognized by our old citizens as among the leading Hebrew gentlemen of our city. The lot upon which the hospital is located was donated by the late Samson Simson, and the trustees also received from the late Judah Touro, of New Orleans, a bequest of twenty thousand dollars. The building is four stories in height, fronting on Twenty-eighth street, between the Seventh and Eighth avenues, and extends through to Twenty-seventh street, and contains one large and several small wards on each floor. Although the hospital was originated by gentlemen of the Hebrew faith, yet the benefits of this excellently managed institution, which is supported entirely by the contributions of the members, is freely extended to all, of every religion or nationality, and the visitor will often find under the care of its officers sufferers who widely differ in matters of religious belief.

Since the opening of the institution, over three thousand five hundred in-door patients have been treated, and over one thousand five hundred out-door patients supplied with medicines.

The Board of Trustees for the year 1865 consists of the following gentlemen :

FORMATION OF WARDS.

In 1683 the city of New York was divided into six wards, under the designation of "South," "Dock," "East," "North," "West," and "Out" Wards; for map showing the boundaries of these wards, see page 212 of Manual of Common Council for 1848.

The Montgomerie Charter, dated January 15, 1730, designates, in addition to the above, the boundaries of the "Montgomerie" Ward.

By an act of the colonial government, passed February 28, 1791, the wards are designated numerically from 1 to 7, and the bounds of each described.

By an act of the Legislature, passed March 8, 1803, the wards are increased to nine, numerically designated, and boundaries described.

The Tenth Ward was erected from the Seventh, by act of March 18, 1808.

The Eleventh and Twelfth Wards were formed, and the boundaries of all described, by an act passed April 25, 1825. (Chap. 195, Laws of 1825.)

13th Ward was erected from the 10th Ward, Act April 6, 1827.

HISTORICAL.

History of Broadway.

BY D. T. V.

THE BROADWAY of modern times may justly be regarded as the representative thoroughfare of the city of New York, presenting its finest features of architecture among its most attractive marts of merchandise ; its finest displays of equipage and style of the fashionable part of the population ; its busiest throngs of pedestrians, whether in pursuit of business, show, or pleasure ; and forming altogether a scene which can hardly be rivaled elsewhere, in any part of the world. It is a subject, therefore, which has a historical interest, not less among our own people than among those strangers to whom the wonderful advances so characteristic of our thriving cities on this western continent, furnish a theme of admiration.

In presenting the subject, the compiler has not thought it judicious to enter minutely into the modern history of the street. Its whole character has been changed within the last quarter of a century. Previously, it was a favorite locality for fashionable residence ; but it is now for the most part a business thoroughfare. Following the march of population, the retail stores which formerly centred near the Park have moved northwardly, and wholesale jobbing houses characterize the lower part of the street. The architectural changes consequent upon this new characteristic of the street have been so numerous, that to attempt to follow them would involve a mass of minutiae, for which space could scarcely be provided in this volume ; and, therefore, for the purpose of illustrating the present condition of the street, panoramic views embracing both sides of the street from the Bowling green to Union square, a distance of between two and three miles have been given. This embraces that portion of the street more especially devoted to large business establishments.

It being therefore the principal object of the compiler to confine his written history to the bygone rather than to recent events in the progress of the street, he has interspersed in the text such illustrations of its former condition as are entitled to reliability. He has devoted his attention mainly to its physical history, touching as lightly as possible upon the many personal as well as public events with which it is identified, but which, if allowed to enter into the subject-matter, would too greatly amplify it for the extent of this work.

It has been found convenient in arranging the plan of illustrating the progress of the street, to take up various sections separately, and carry through their history without reference to other parts; one reason for which is, that the original opening of the street was in such sections, which it is remarked, vary little from half a mile at each successive stage of its advancement. Thus, in the times of the Dutch, the street was laid out as far north as Wall street. It was next extended to the Park, to which extent it took near a century to build up. Its next development was up to Duane street, which was about the time of the Revolutionary War. Thence toward the commencement of the present century it was opened as far as the meadows, or Canal street. Its next stride was to the present Astor place. Thence to the Tulip Tree, above the present Union square, and afterward by rapid strides, according to the general plan of the city as established in 1807.

In the times of the Dutch, that part of Broadway which faces the Bowling green from the west, was already a popular part of New Amsterdam, and no doubt presented the most agreeable features of any in the town. The Parade in front, which was also the market place, and the fort on one side, with its busy scenes of civil and military affairs, combined to make this locality the court end of the town; and, accordingly, we there find two of the leading popular taverns, a fashionable store, the residence of the provincial secretary, and that of the Domine Megapolensis, the latter building being situated on the present southerly corner of Morris street. These were all buildings of a good substantial class for those times, and it is known that some of them, built of brick, were standing for the best part of a century afterward. Of their form and size we have no account, except that which may be inferred from the number of chimneys which the fire inspectors returned for them, which ranged from two to four in each house.

On the same (westerly) side of Broadway, north of the Parade, there were near the present Morris street, three or four small buildings adjoining each other, occupied by persons following mechanical pursuits. These buildings were also still standing a great many years afterward. Attached to an order made in the course of the last century for the straightening of Broadway at that point, was a sketch of these "old buildings," showing that the proposed straightening involved their demolition, and also giving a rough view of the front of those buildings, which was as follows :

OLD BUILDING ON BROADWAY, ABOVE THE PRESENT MORRIS STREET, DEMOLISHED IN 1734.

On the eminence above and adjoining to these buildings was the first burial-ground established in the city, ranging along Broadway between one hundred and two hundred feet, and already, when the Dutch rule terminated, quite full of graves of the early settlers and later inhabitants. But it seems probable that but few monumental memorials marked the resting-places of the dead of New Amsterdam, and certain it is that the people of those times cherished but little reverence for their places of interment, as they did not hesitate to sell off their burial-ground as building lots, without removing those buried there, and that, too, at a period not remote from the time of burial. In excavations for building upon the same spot in after times, hundreds of bones were thrown up.

North of the church-yard were several good residences in the time of the Dutch, with large gardens and orchards attached, which extended to the shore of the river. The principal of these was that of Burgomaster Vandingrist, which was a substantial stone house, and endured a full century. It is deserving of a further historical notice as having been in after times the residence of other chief magistrates of the city, viz. : Francis Rombouts, Mayor in 1679, and Dr. John Johnston, Mayor in 1715. These premises extended in front along Broadway, between one and two hundred feet. Two or three other residences, having extensive grounds attached, were also built along the west side of Broadway before the Dutch rule terminated, one of which was that of the Schout-Fiscal Van Dyck.

Further on lay an orchard, formerly public property, but which had, before the end of the Dutch rule, been granted to individual owners. This was as yet unimproved. Beyond it still was the garden, in which vegetables were raised for the use of the public officials, which was also public property, and was afterward used as a burial place. The city wall, or palisades, erected in 1653, crossed the garden diagonally toward the river shore.

The east side of Broadway, during the Dutch times, became quite thickly populated; but the class of buildings was of an inferior character, some of them, indeed, being little better, as far as can now be judged, than hovels, having not more than one room, with a fireplace. Yet others were of a better class, and were owned and occupied by thriving mechanics.

The lots attached to the premises, fronting on the east side of Broadway, extended in depth near two hundred and fifty feet to the marsh along Broad street, and, as the fronts were also wide, afforded sufficient ground for gardening purposes.

In our retrospect, therefore, of the condition of Broadway in the times of our Dutch forefathers, we find it to have been, on one side, quite an agreeable thoroughfare, with orchards, gardens, and pleasant residences; while on the opposite side it was little other than a row of primitive structures, such as might be cheaply erected to form shelter for a poor population.

After the English acquired the country, in 1664, the Dutch names of the streets of the city were in most cases altered to conform to their language, and among other changes was that of the "Heere straa," as it was known in Dutch times, to Broadway. Up to that period there were no pavements in the street, nor any public wells. But these wants were supplied, not many years afterward, by paving the middle of the street (through which ran the gutter) with pebble stones; and to add to its attractions, the inhabitants were authorized to plant trees along the sides of the street. The sidewalks were not then paved, and the street, as it became enveloped in foliage of different varieties, presented an attractive appearance which has been noticed and commended by European travelers of the last century.

In this condition the street facing Bowling green grew old in years and appearance, with the edifices of the Dutch era still standing, until nearly ready to fall into ruins. The old tavern of Mrs. Kocks (originally erected by her husband, Pieter Kocks, an officer in the Dutch service, who was an active leader in the Indian war of 1643), on the site of No. 1 Broadway, had borne the buffets of time for a century, before it gave place to its successor, which still remains. The existing building on that site was erected by Archibald Kennedy, then Collector of the Port of New York, afterwards Earl of Cassilis, in the Scotch peerage. The historical associations of this edifice, which is now not far from a century old, are of an interesting character. In colonial times it was the seat of the highest fashion in the colony; and during the Revolution it was the headquarters of the British General, Sir Henry Clinton. It was occupied at subsequent periods by several of our leading citizens, among whom may be mentioned Mr. Prime, an eminent banker, and Mayor Mickle. Of late years it has been converted into a hotel.

The tavern, known at one period of the colonial times as Burns' Coffee-house, and subsequently as "the Kings Arms," stood near or upon the site of the Dutch tavern of Burgomaster Martin Crigier. It had a considerable reputation as a public house, and also some historical interest in connection with public events in revolutionary times. From various advertisements of different early proprietors we learn that it had a large garden attached, where musical entertainments were given. It was kept, up to 1762, by Mr. Burns (Coffee-house), and in 1763, and for several years afterward by Mrs. Steele, a lady well known as hostess and caterer, who transferred to it the name of her former establishment in Broad street, "The Kings Arms," and was afterward (1768) conducted by Edward Barden. Its proprietor during the British possession is not known, but it is said that the traitor Arnold had his lodgings there after his desertion to the enemy. In modern times it had been a boarding-house, and a tavern, and public garden, by turns. Its latest designation, before its final demolition, being "the Atlantic Garden." It retained its original appearance, with trifling alteration, until it was taken down three or four years since. The premises are now vacant, and the grounds are used by one of the city railroad companies for depot purposes. The front of the house was of brick, the other parts of wood. The roof was partly tiled.

REAR VIEW OF BURNS' COFFEE-HOUSE, 1760.

After the Revolution, and before the commencement of the present century, we find the following residents on that block : No. 1, Mrs. Loring ; No. 3, John Watts ; No. 5, Chancellor Livingston ; No. 7, John Stevens ; No. 9, Elizabeth Van Cortland ; No. 11 (Atlantic Garden), widow Mansfield ; No. 13, Mary Ellison.

This once fashionable locality has at present, however, lost many of its former characteristics, though most of the old buildings remain, some with additions and improvements, thus enabling it to retain memorials of its former state to a greater extent than are possessed by other parts of the same street.

Above Morris street comparatively little is known of the appearance of the street in the English colonial times, the great fire of 1776 having destroyed every vestige of its former appearance. It is known, however, to have been among the fashionable quarters of the town, and to have been the place of residence of several eminent citizens, among whom may be mentioned Governor Clarke, whose house was on the west side of Broadway, south of Exchange place. William Sharpas, the veteran city clerk, also lived in the same vicinity.

That part of the present Exchange place which is situated on the west side of Broadway, was originally a path leading to a small redoubt connected with the city fortifications, and during the English colonial times was called " Oyster Pasty alley."

The site on the southerly corner of Rector street was originally occupied by a Lutheran church, erected about 1710, in which year many Palatines, driven from Germany by religious persecutions, sought refuge in America, many of them establishing themselves in this city. The edifice thus erected shared the fate of others in the vicinity, from the fire of '76, and its ruins remained many years without removal, thus acquiring the common appellation of the " Burnt Lutheran church." In 1809 an Episcopal church was erected on the site by a congregation which, from some internal division in Trinity, separated from that church. This edifice, called Grace Church, was considered quite equal in fashion to any in the city, and its pews commanded higher rents than any other. The migration of the population to the upper part of the city necessitated the erection of the new edifice, now well known by the same name. The present pastor, Dr. Taylor, had officiated in the old building, having commenced his pastoral duties in 1834. The following view represents Grace Church and its vicinity as it appeared about forty years since :

GRACE CHURCH AND VICINITY, 1828.

The great fire of 1776, before referred to, left Broadway a mass of ruins, and, of course, the improvements made there before the return of peace were of a temporary character, and not at all in keeping with the elegance which was appropriate to the leading thoroughfare. They remained but a few years after the close of the war, when they gave way to a class of private residences far exceeding any which had previously existed there. We are enabled to gratify the curious in such matters by giving a list of the residents of that side of Broadway, while the revolutionary shanties were still standing, viz., in 1785. No. 37, Mrs. Ross, grocery store; No. 39, S. Buskirk, tinman; No. 41, Mrs. Lasley, shopkeeper, No. 51, Peter Ritter, jeweler; No. 53, Benjamin Haight, saddler; No. 55, John Goodeve, Chandler; No. 57, Henry Roome, merchant; No. 59, William Bayley, tinman; No. 63, R. Soderstrom, Swedish Consul; No. 65, James Anderson, shoemaker; No. 67, John B. Dash, tin store ; No. 69, J. Richardson, jeweler ; No. 71, Mrs. Hoffman, grocery store ; No. 73, Mrs. Forbes, shopkeeper.

But the succeeding five years saw all these frame buildings demolished, and elegant private residences reared in their stead, which were owned and occupied by leading citizens. The following view of the building known as Bunker's Mansion-house exhibits several of those original buildings when converted into a hotel, and serves sufficiently to show their original character. The middle portion of the building, as here shown, was for some time occupied as the Presidential mansion of General Washington.

BUNKER'S MANSION-HOUSE, 1830.

This building, for many years, had considerable celebrity as a hotel, being considered in its most prosperous days (thirty years since) as "very large and commodious, kept with the utmost neatness and attention, and usually filled with the best company." It possessed much of the retirement and quiet of an elegant private residence.

There is no other building in that vicinity, among those erected at the time spoken of, that seems deserving of particular mention. For many years they were generally occupied as private residences, and as will be seen from the following list of residents, toward the close of the last century by some of our principal citizens: No. 35, Dominick Lynch; No. 37, Brockholst Livingston; No. 39, William Edgar; No. 43, Edward Livingston; No. 47, Alexander McComb; No. 57, Ann McAdam; N. 59, Jacob Morton; No. 61, Isaac Clason; No. 67, John R. Livingston. The march of events gradually changed their character from residences to boarding-houses, and finally the commercial inroad swept them away entirely, some five to ten years since, and when the elegant mercantile establishments now standing in that vicinity were erected.

Reverting to the east side of Broadway, below Wall street, it is to be observed that the prejudices which seem to have existed among the Dutch against that side of the street, were to some extent countenanced in after years by their successors. The principal building erected there for many years after the English came into possession was a tavern erected by John Corbett below Exchange place. And as further testimony to the inferiority of the class of buildings in that locality during the last century we give a list of the prices paid for different properties on the east side of Broadway below Wall street, so far as we have been able to ascertain them. In 1725 Leonard De Grave, cartman, sold to Thomas Elde, blacksmith, house and lot 31 feet front, 60 feet deep, for £100. In 1736 Mr. Bloom sold to Thomas Shields, victualler, house and lot for £140. In 1737 E. Eastham sold to Capt. Matthew Norris, house and lot on southeast corner of Broadway and present Exchange place (the Verlettenberg), 34 feet by 75, for £95. In 1750 Abraham Montagnie, carpenter, bought house, 24 by 80 feet, for £201. The most expensive purchase we have found during the colonial era was house with lot 55 by 150 feet, the price of which was £320. These facts illustrate sufficiently well the character of the street in that vicinity in English times, and we suppose the inference may be fairly drawn that they were mostly frame houses, of small size, occupied by persons following mechanical pursuits, and that the locality was not distinguished above the more retired parts of the city as a place either of business or residence.

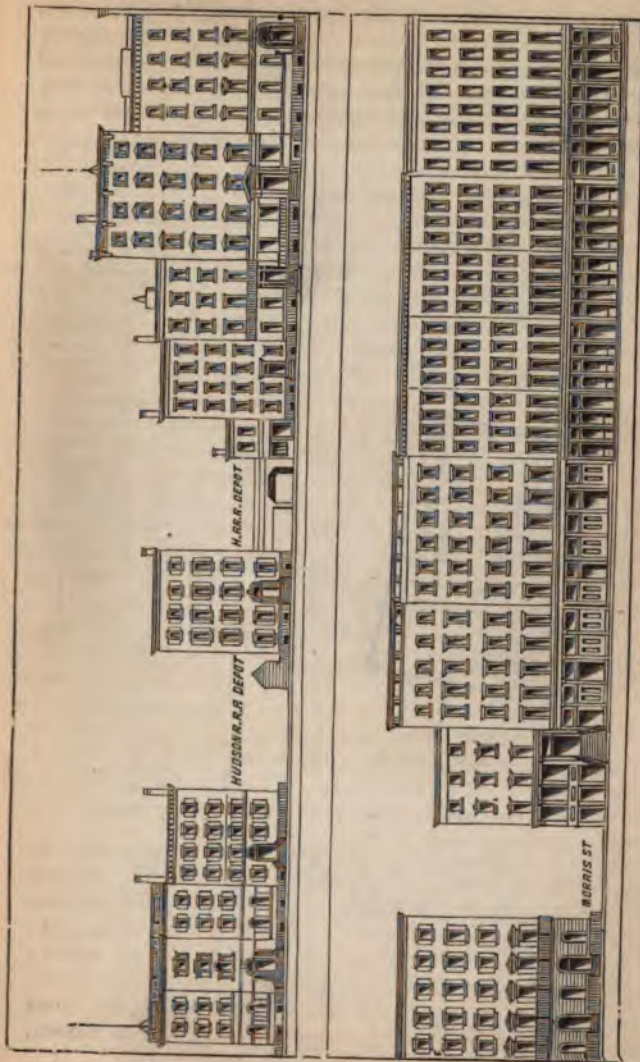

The fire of '76 also destroyed many of the buildings on the east side of the street as well as those on the opposite side, but it left standing a brick house near Exchange place, and a few others. In a similar manner to that related concerning the west side of the street, the period of the war witnessed the erection of a small class of frame buildings on the site of the ruins on the east side, and these continued in existence for eight or ten years after the peace. The following view exhibits the premises No. 2 Broadway, corner of Marketfield street, and the adjoining buildings, at the period now spoken of :

NO. 2 BROADWAY, COR. MARKETFIELD STREET, 1798.

A list of the residents below Wall street, and their occupations, in 1785, is given as follows : William Barham, tavern keeper ; William Willement, shopkeeper ; J. Resler, tallow-chandler ; John Mills, shoemaker, Andrew Aiken, shopkeeper ; N. F. Saunders, shopkeeper ; John Houseman, painter and glazier ; John Rutherford, lawyer ; Abraham Schenck, grocer ; John Tear, linen draper ; William Bayley, merchant ; Ann Baurie, shopkeeper ; S. Bauman, grocer ; James Cary, lodging-house ; William Houseman, tailor ; James Paxton, carpenter ; Joshua Mills, carpenter ; William A. Forbes, saddler ; and M. A. Gib, painter and glazier.

The improvement of this part of the street commenced about the year 1790, and first class residences took the place of those mentioned. Among the earliest occupants of the new buildings toward the close of the last century, were the following : No. 16, George Scriba, merchant ; No. 24, Nicholas Low, merchant ; No. 23, Gen. Alexander Hamilton ; No. 30, John Delafield, merchant ; No. 34, Dr. Charlton ; No. 36, Peter Jay Munro, lawyer ; No. 40, Widow Livingston ; No. 42, Widow Allen ; No. 44, Robert Troup, lawyer ; No. 46, Dr. Bailey ; No. 50, John Slidell, Chandler ; No. 52, Judge Lawrence ; No. 52, Col. Aquilla Giles ; No. 54, Daniel Ludlow, merchant ; No. 66, Herman Le Roy, merchant ; No. 68, Josiah Ogden Hoffman ; No. 70, Cadwallader D. Colden, lawyer ; No. 72, Joshua Jones ; No. 74, Dr. Thomas Jones ; No. 86, Dr. Tillery. It may be further mentioned that Governor Jay, in after years, erected in this vicinity a large stone house, then considered a great ornament to the street. In 1827 the Adelphi hotel, on the corner of Beaver street, a building six stories in height, was erected.

This portion of the street maintained its position as one of the most fashionable quarters for residence during many subsequent years, but finally gave way before the inducements which attracted the resident population toward the upper parts of the city. The boarding-house keepers enumerated in 1828, showed the gradual change then in progress. No. 24 was occupied by Mrs. Wood ; No. 36 by Mr. Street ; No. 40 by Mrs. Barker ; No. 52 (formerly Governor Jay's residence) by Mrs. Keese ; No. 56, (corner Exchange place), by Mr. Percy ; No. 58 (opposite corner), by Mrs. Helme.

In respect to the general topography of Broadway below Wall street, it was found that the original surface was followed in the first buildings on the street, and that there was no alteration of the grade until a period shortly subsequent to the revolutionary war. The occasion of an alteration of the original grade arose apparently from the inconvenience of carrying off the surface water. In 1786, a surveyor, appointed for the purpose, reported a plan, by making the street descend from Wall street to Verlettenberg (by which name the present Exchange place was known), at which latter point the street was to be lowered three feet ; and so, also, below Verlettenberg, a similar descending grade was to be established as far as the house of Mr. Slidell (157 feet south), thus bringing the water from both directions to Verlettenberg hill, thence to flow down to Broad street. But objections on the part of residents prevented the adoption of this plan, and the permanent grade was established by lowering the hill near the Bowling green to an extent which afforded a gradual descent.

In 1806 an order was made removing the old wells and pumps, several of which stood in the middle of Broadway, and establishing others at the sidewalks. These ancient wells had been in existence about one hundred and thirty years.

In connection with the portion of Broadway now under review, it should be added that the Bowling green, which had in early Dutch times been the Parade and market-place, was, in 1732, inclosed, with walks therein, for the beauty and ornament of the city and the recreation and delight of the inhabitants thereof. A few years previous to the Revolution, a statue of King George III was placed within it, which, however, was destroyed in revolutionary times.

BROADWAY, FROM WALL STREET TO THE PARK.

The city walls were erected in 1653, and were not demolished until nearly fifty years afterwards. One of the gates, affording egress from the town, stood across Broadway. Over a hundred years after its removal, while digging to lay mains for the Manhattan Water Works, the posts of this gate were found beneath the street, having been cut off near the surface, and with their removal passed away the last vestige of this ancient feature of the Dutch city.

Beyond the city walls the highway was known in Dutch times as the "Heere Weyh," in contradistinction to the Heere straat, as it was called within the town. It ran upon the present line of Broadway as far as the Commons or present Park, whence it diverged on the line of Chatham street. The road passed originally a portion of the West India Company's garden, Damen's plantation, Van Tienhoven's plantation, a part of the West India Company's farm, and a portion of the Commons.

The garden of the Company occupied the site of the present Trinity church-yard. Upon the abandonment of the old church-yard, in the latter part of the seventeenth century, a portion of the garden lying north of the city gates was devoted to burial purposes. That part of it upon which the Trinity Church now stands was at first proposed as the site of a parsonage, it being contemplated to erect the church itself within the walls of the bastion which stood on the northwest corner of Wall and William streets (a). But probably the change of the times and the increased security arising from progress of population, induced the selection of that site on Broadway for the church instead of the parsonage.

TRINITY CHURCH, 1737. (REAR VIEW.)

Trinity Church was erected in 1696; the first sermon being preached on the 6th February, 1697, by Rev. Mr. Vesey, who continued as pastor until his death, about fifty years subsequently. The church was enlarged in 1737, it being one hundred and forty-eight feet in length and seventy-two in breadth. The steeple was a hundred and seventy-eight feet high. In 1761, it was struck by lightning, and consumed to the belfry. An excellent organ, brought from London, was one of the attractions of this edifice. Beneath the floor were vaults of the leading families attached to the congregation, denoted by sculptured entablatures along the side walls in the building.

After the return of peace, a new edifice was erected, which was consecrated by Bishop Provost, in 1791. The size of this building was somewhat less than the former, being one hundred and four feet by seventy-two. The steeple was one hundred and ninety-eight feet high, and contained a chime of bells. In the interior were galleries on the two sides; an organ loft at the east end. At the west end was the chancel, in front of which were the desk and pulpit. Several elegant cut glass chandeliers depended from a gothic ceiling. The windows were of gothic form, with very small panes of glass. A very large gothic window, containing over a thousand panes of glass occupied the west end of the building. The engraving on opposite page is a view of Trinity Church as it existed from 1791 to 1839.

In 1833, Trinity Church was demolished and gave place to the present elegant structure. There have been no interments in the church-yard since 1822, about which period a law was passed forbidding interments south of Canal street. It was said at that time that the church records showed upward of a hundred and sixty thousand burials to have been made within that small inclosure, but it is probable this was an exaggeration.

Recurring to the progress of Broadway through the original farms, it is found that Damen's plantation, which lay nearest to Wall street, was patented to him in 1644. It extended on the west side of Broadway from opposite Pine street to Fulton street, and on the east side from Maiden lane southwardly to about the present line of Pine street. The original owner, John Damen, died while on a visit to the Fatherland in the year 1651. The partition of his estate among the heirs of his widow was made about the year 1660. No record of the terms of this division exists ; but as the heirs soon after sold off their portion to other persons, an approximate idea of the condition of the property before it was built upon can be gathered from the records.

As to the subsequent subdivision of this property, it is sufficient to note those of the two largest parcels, one of which had been conveyed to O. S. Van Cortland and the other to Tunis Dey. The former was apportioned to two daughters of the Burgomaster, one of whom married Fred. Philipse and the other William Teller. In 1733 the heirs of these parties partitioned the property and laid out Courtlandt street, extending to the river. This street was accepted as a public street the same year. Subsequently, Philip and Frederic Van Cortland acquired the estate. The first sale of a lot of which we find record was made in 1737, on the north side of Courtlandt street; size, twenty-five by one hundred and twenty-six feet, extending to land of Dey. Price, twenty-six pounds.

The Dey property contained over five acres. Tunis Dey, who was a gardener and miller (his windmill being situated near the river shore), made his will in 1688, leaving half of this property to his wife and half to his children. It was not until 1730 that actual partition was made. In 1743 a map was made, and the property was brought into the market as building lots. The first record of any sale is dated in 1745, which describes a lot on southwest corner of Broadway and Dey street; consideration, seventy-five pounds. The value of property, however, speedily rose, and in 1770 we find sale of a lot on Broadway, near Dey street, for three hundred and eighty pounds. Broadway was first regulated from Dey street to Fulton street in 1760. In connection with this part of the city, mention should be made of the first suburban tavern, such as afterwards became so fashionable on Broadway, outside of the city walls. This was the "Blue Boar," erected about the year 1670, on the east side of Broadway, near the present corner of Liberty street.

Van Tienhoven's plantation, extending along the east side of Broadway, from the Maagde Paatje, or Maiden lane, to a point about one hundred and seventeen feet north of Fulton street, became the property of an association of five shoemakers and tanners, and thence became commonly known as the Shoemakers' Pasture. Their property embraced about sixteen acres in all. The tannery was located

NOTE.—Persons who have attempted to make out diagrams from data furnished by the Dutch grants and conveyances have been not a little embarrassed on account of obvious difference in measurement between the old Dutch and the English systems. The compiler has endeavored to find some standard authority upon which to base his calculations, but has hitherto met with none. In various deeds, however, there appear comparative descriptions which throw some light on the subject.

Thus, in one description in a Dutch title deed, the distance is stated at fifty "roe voeten," or sixty-five "hout voeten."

In another, the description reads thirty-three "hout voeten," or two and a half Dutch rods.

And at a period some years after the English had acquired the dominion (1672), a deed in that language recites that two and a half rods and half a foot were equal to thirty-three feet.

It would, therefore, appear that the Dutch rod equaled thirteen running feet.

on a swampy section near the junction of Maiden lane and William street. After being used in common for many years, the property was mapped off in 1715, at which time, as the record curiously states, the owners, "finding the said land to be rentable for building of houses for an enlargement of the city, projected and laid out said lands into one hundred and sixty-four lots." John Harberding, a venerable craftsman, and one of the original members of the shoemakers' association, lived and plied his trade on Broadway, near Maiden lane. In a division of the property, some years after, the along-Broadway portion was allotted to him, extending the whole front, being five hundred and eighty feet along Broadway, and one hundred and sixty feet in depth. The plot is described as a garden, then in the occupation of said Harberding. Mr. Harberding emigrated to this city about the year 1660, while it was still under Dutch rule. He was a shoemaker by trade, and though rather a wild youth, became in his maturer years a pillar of the Church, and lived to a venerable age. He died in 1723, leaving a handsome fortune, a considerable portion of which he bequeathed to the Dutch Reformed Church, which they still enjoy. The streets as laid out originally through the property still exist (although both have been widened in recent times) under the names of John street (after the proprietor) and Fulton street, formerly Fair street. A house and lot, apparently the homestead of John Harberding, on the corner of Broadway and Maiden lane, was sold soon after his death (viz., 1732) for one hundred and twenty pounds.

That part of the Shoemakers' Pasture lying north of the present Fulton street, being about one hundred and seventeen feet on Broadway, and occupying the block now bounded by Broadway, Fulton, Nassau and Ann streets, was for many years occupied as a public resort, and known as Spring Garden. The public house on the premises was situated on the late site of the Museum, corner of Ann street. In 1760 we find the advertisement of John Elkin, its proprietor, offering to the public "breakfast from 7 to 9; tea in the afternoon from 3 to 6; the best of green tea and hot French rolls, pies and tarts drawn from 7 to 9; mead and cakes." In the time immediately preceding the Revolution the house was known as Hampden Hall, having been purchased by "The Sons of Liberty," (the celebrated political organization of revolutionary times,) for their headquarters. It was the scene of action of many of the riots and public disputes which characterized that era of our history. Subsequent to the Revolution its uses were private until its conversion into a museum by John Scudder, about the year 1830. Mr. Barnum, went into possession of the Museum about the year 1840.

ST. PAUL'S CHURCH, 1800.

North of Fulton street, on the west side of Broadway, lay the Trinity Church farm, which was laid off into lots about 1700; and the front extending between Fulton (then Partition) street and Vesey street (so called in honor of a former pastor of Trinity), was devoted to the erection of an elegant church, which was completed about the year 1765, and called St. Paul's, which still remains among the oldest memorials of the architecture of that day.

In reviewing the progress of improvements of the section of Broadway between Wall street and the Park, the principal incident of a public character was the erection of a market in the centre of the street opposite Liberty (then Crown) street. This edifice was built in 1788, its dimensions being one hundred and fifty-six feet in length, and twenty feet three and a half inches in width. It remained about thirty-three years, and gave a character to the neighborhood very prejudicial to the beauty and to the legitimate prospects of the street. The buildings in the vicinity were chiefly taverns and lodging-houses, with an intermixture of small stores, while the country wagons and other vehicles congregating around the market almost precluded ordinary passage along the narrow thoroughfare (about twenty feet wide) on either side of the market. At length, after many years of unavailing effort to have the market removed by legislative authority, resort was had to the machinery of the law, and the building was indicted in 1771 as a public nuisance, and its removal was accomplished. A new market-house, bearing the same name, was erected on the southeasterly corner of Broadway and Maiden lane, its main front being on the latter street. By this arrangement the business establishments which had grown up around the old market-place were not materially injured, and they continued in occupancy for their former purposes until the great fire of 1776, which swept away all those situated on the west side of the street. Of the buildings then destroyed the most notable was the King's Arms tavern, a public house which had a considerable reputation, and was more frequented by country people than any other in the city. It was situated opposite the market, and was constructed of gray stone with narrow arched windows in front. A piazza along the rear afforded a view of the river.

In 1790 a survey of Broadway, from Rector street to the Park, was ordered for the purpose of repaving. Bricks were ordered for sidewalks, and improvements immediately began.

On the west side of Broadway the Tontine tavern, afterward known as the City Hotel, was erected about the year 1794. This was justly considered a model of enterprise in those days, and is said to have been the first building in the city covered with a slate roof. It soon took the lead as the scene of public balls, dinners, concerts, and festivities, and the old Assembly Rooms, which had formerly enjoyed a fashionable popularity, fell into a subordinate position. It was for a long time, in the early part of the present century, kept by John Lovett, and subsequently by Ezra Weeks, Chester Jennings, and other popular landlords, whom our space will not permit us to particularize. Its demolition within recent years makes it properly a subject of illustration. The view was taken after many improvements were made in the neighborhood, but shows the building in its original form.—See engraving next page.

The stage establishment of Brower & Anderson, under the directorship of James Carr, was, in 1796, situated in the block between Cedar and Liberty streets. On next block, extending to Courtlandt street, fine buildings and stores had been erected, occupied by John B. Dash, Jr., iron merchant ; John Jacob Astor, fur merchant ; Abraham Russel, builder ; Charles Dickinson ; Dr. Benj. Kissam ; Jas. H. Kipp, merchant ; Jacobus Bogart, a wealthy baker, and others. From Courtlandt street to Fulton street some of the buildings were of a superior description, others of a less pretentious character. But within the following twenty years the character of the street had become firmly established as the emporium of retail and shopping trade. The buildings were of the first-class of that day, though most of them have fallen before the great strides of architectural progress in recent years. We give the various buildings, with their valuation, occupants, &c., in 1815 : No. 123, City Hotel (Ezra Weeks), $90,000 ; No. 127, Sheldon & Beach, drygoods store, $11,000 ; No. 135, John C. Among the public houses which have, from time to time, enjoyed popularity in this section, have been the Rathbone Hotel, No. 163 Broadway, about the year 1850, and the Franklin House, on the northwest corner of Broadway and Dey street, which under the supervision of J. P. Treadwell, was one of the leading resorts of country merchants.

The east side of Broadway was less fashionable as a shopping mart than the opposite side, and the improvement in architecture was less rapid ; the buildings at first erected were many of them of two stories, although within thirty years succeeding the Revolution these had mostly given place to first-class edifices, which, with few exceptions, were occupied for commercial purposes. Barnum's Hotel, which in 1851 was named the Howard House, has up to the present time maintained a high reputation. The Tremont Temperance House, formerly occupied No. 110 Broadway. The New York Athenæum, was established in 1824 on the corner of Broadway and Pine street. In 1825, the National Hotel, 112 Broadway, corner of Cedar street, was finished.

Within comparatively recent years nearly all the cross streets leading into Broadway in this section, have been widened and improved. In 1833 Liberty street (previously to 1794 called Crown street), was widened from Broadway to Greenwich street. In 1834 Pine street (previously to 1794 called King street), was widened from Broadway to Nassau street. In 1836 John street was widened from Broadway to Pearl street. In 1834 Fulton street was widened from Broadway to Ryders' alley. In 1852 Liberty street was widened from Broadway to Greenwich street. In 1851 Dey street was widened from Broadway to Greenwich street. In 1854 Wall street was widened from Broadway to Nassau street.

BROADWAY, FROM VESEY STREET TO DUANE STREET.

This part of Broadway was first surveyed in 1760, by Mr. Marschalk, a city surveyor, who then produced to the city authorities "a draft of a road he had lately laid out by order of the Corporation, beginning at the Spring Garden House, where the street is eighty-two feet six inches wide, and extending thence north, 37°, east 30 m., until it comes to the ground of the late widow Rutgers, leaving the street there of fifty feet wide," which is approved and ordered to be recorded. The street was called Great George street, which it retained about thirty years.

On the west side of the street lay the Church farm, and on the east the Commons and the negroes' burial-ground.

The Church farm extended in length from Fulton street to near Duane street, and in width from the street, as now established, to the North river shore. It was originally set apart by the Dutch West India Company to be tilled for the uses of their public officers and the garrison in the fort. On the conquest by the English, it was held as the property of the conquerors, and called the King's Farm. In 1705, Lord Cornbury, then Governor, in his zeal for the encouragement of the Established Church, granted this valuable estate to the corporation of Trinity Church.

At about the same time with the opening of Broadway, the Church had the farm divided off into streets and lots, and made cession of the former to the city authorities. These side streets still remain nor, except in the instance of Park place, which was originally called Robinson street, have their names been altered.

The old farm house, attached to the King's farm, stood upon the site of the present Astor House. The various tenants, so far as we have been able to discover them, were, successively, John Ryerson, Francis Ryerson, Mr. Harrison, Mr. Balm, Cornelius Cozine, and Adam Vandenberg. The house was long kept as a tavern by Adam Vandenberg, and known as the Drovers' Inn. In connection with the tavern business, were also a public garden and place of amusement. In 1752, Mr. Dugee advertises that he performs on the wire and slack-rope, at a new house built for that purpose, in Mr. Adam Vandenberg's garden. In December 6, 1747, Cornelius Vandenberg notified the public that he designed to set out as Albany post, for the first time in that winter, on the Thursday following. All letters to go by him to be sent to the Post-office, or to his house near the Spring Garden. Vandenberg was still in the occupation of these premises at a period close on the time of the Revolution, as we find from a liberty pole being erected opposite his house, "where the two roads meet."

The first lease from Trinity Church of property along Broadway which is found recorded, bears date in 1760, and was for four lots on the southwest corner of Murray street; the lessees were Bell & Brookman, carpenters; the term, twenty-one years, and the rental eight pounds per annum.

The principal feature of Broadway opposite the Fields (as the Park was called), during many years, were several public gardens, established soon after the opening of the street. Among these are that of Mr. Montagnie, near the northerly corner of Murray street, and that of Mr. Cox, on the block above, near Warren street.

Montagnie's garden became notable in the political history of the times immediately preceding the war, as having for a time been the headquarters of the Liberty Boys. It was opposite his premises in the Fields, upon a spot where the Bridewell was afterward built, that the Sons of Liberty raised their successive liberty poles, which were as often demolished by the soldiers and the tory faction. In 1770, a party of soldiers, after vainly endeavoring to demolish the pole, attacked the citizens standing in front of Montagnie's, and forced them into the house at the point of the bayonet, following up the outrage by demolishing the doors and windows of the building. Montagnie himself, however much he sympathized with the children of liberty, was still a landlord, and was not loth to let his rooms to the other faction when an opportunity offered some time afterward, whereupon the Liberty Boys removed their headquarters to a building they had purchased opposite the lower end of the Park, which has been previously mentioned as Hampden Hall. Montagnie appears to have been in occupation of these premises subsequent to the Revolution, the place being then known as the United States Garden. In 1802, John H. Contoit, previously a confectioner in the lower part of Greenwich street, took this garden, and conducted it until 1805, being succeeded by Augustus Parise. In after years a building called the Parthenon was erected upon these premises, and was in 1825 occupied as a museum, under the auspices of Reuben Peale. The view on the following page shows the old Bridewell and the building along Broadway at an early stage of the improvement of that locality.

New York Garden, to which Contoit removed in 1805, was situated near Park place, and was conducted by him until his removal in 1809 to No. 355 Broadway, to which he transferred the name of the New York Garden, the site of the latter being about that time built upon, as private residences.

The establishment of peace in 1783, found the portion of Broadway now under consideration with little other improvements than the gardens referred to and a few scattered small buildings. But a general impetus to improvement followed that event, and as may be supposed was not wanting in its effects upon a locality which began to be viewed as one of the most desirable in the city. The more especially as the future of the Commons or Fields was established, in 1785, by its inclosure and establishment as a Park. In 1790 sidewalks were laid between Vesey and Murray streets. In 1793 the street was paved for the same distance. Measures were about the same time taken to extend the street from its terminus at

THE BRIDEWELL AND A PORTION OF BROADWAY, 1805.

Rutgers' farm, near Duane street, to the distance of more than a mile further; and in 1794 the name of the street was changed, for its entire distance north of Vesey street, from Great George street to Broadway.

About this time the march of private improvement began by the erection of residences of the first class on the block between Vesey street and Barclay street, which were owned and occupied by leading citizens, among whom may be named Walter Rutherford, Rufus King, Cornelius Roosevelt, Richard Harrison, and Abijah Hammond. The premises (then No. 221) next to the corner of Vesey street was owned by the State of New York, and was occupied in 1802 by Aaron Burr, as the official residence of the Vice-President of the United States. Edward Livingston, then Mayor of the city, occupied the adjoining premises (No. 223), which were owned by John Jacob Astor.

At the time of the erection of these fine residences opposite the lower portion of the Park, and for some years afterward, the part of the street lying north was occupied by buildings of an inferior class, though there was little unoccupied ground below Duane street. But advancing through the intervening years, until 1815, we find that at the latter period great improvements had been made, and many of the old buildings had given place to fine residences. Among the residents at the latter period, between Vesey and Barclay streets, were John Jacob Astor, Alexander L. Stewart, and John G. Costar; between Barclay street and Park place, John C. Vanderheuel and Mrs. Starten; between Park place and Murray street, Samuel Hicks, Daniel Boardman, William Rhinelander, John Haggerty, and Henry Laverty. Between Murray and Chambers streets new buildings had been erected, and between Chambers and Reade streets was the fine residence of Matthias Bruen.

of Park Place; of Peale's Museum; the Irving House, corner of Chambers street, and of the American Hotel on north corner of Barclay street, originally erected as a private residence.

Recurring to the east side of Broadway, within the limits under review, we have to relate some brief details concerning the Park, known in the Dutch time as the Vlacte or Flat, at a later period as the Commons, at a still later period as the Fields, and finally, after its inclosure, called the Park. These few acres have a history full of local interest to the New Yorker.

Originally a portion of the common lands granted to the city by its charter, its character for many years was merely that of an open pasture or cattle-walk. It seems, however, that at an early period a fortification of a primitive sort was erected near the south boundaries of the Park, which we infer from an entry in the city records in 1699, stating appointment of a committee to view the block-house near the Governor's Garden, to see if it can be fitted into a prison. In the course of the last century it became customary to hold public celebrations there, especially the bonfires which were made on the King's birthday, Coronation day, Gunpowder-plot day, and other public occasions. These had in earlier years been celebrated on the plain before the fort, but the inclosure of the Bowling green compelled a change of quarters. Its name of the Commons grew into disuse some years before the Revolution, and that of "the Fields" was substituted. The first public building erected within the limits of the Park was a Poor-house, finished in 1736, on the site of the present City Hall. An advertisement of that date calls for proposals from suitable persons stating the terms on which they will perform the duties of Keeper of the House of Correction and Overseer of the Work-house, and Poor-house. The same paper advertises "to let the cellar kitchen at present, the Poor-house, kept by Mrs. Burger." From its public character, as the place of open-air meetings, ball-ground, etc., it attracted to its vicinity various public houses, ball-alleys, and similar places. The public meetings which took place in the Fields during a few years preceding the commencement of the Revolution, were of a significant political character, and are deserving of a brief chronological reference.

1764. Seizure of a press gang's boat, by a mob who carried it to the Common, and burned it.

1765. (Nov. 1) First popular meeting on the Commons in opposition to the stamp act; a gallows was erected, and the Lieutenant-Governor burned in effigy.

1765. (Nov. 2) Another popular meeting on the Commons, held with a view to seize the stamps. Action deferred 1765 & 1766. Other meetings of similar character until repeal of stamp act, in March, 1766.

1766. (June 4.) Meeting on the Commons to celebrate the repeal of the stamp act. A flag-staff erected on the occasion inscribed "King, Pitt, and Liberty." An ox roasted, and twenty-five barrels of ale, with a hogshead of rum punch, consumed on the occasion.

1766. (Aug. 10.) A party of soldiers from the barracks along Chambers street, cut down the pole erected in June.

1766. (Aug. 11.) Meeting held on the Commons to raise another pole. The people were attacked by the soldiers, and several were wounded. A few days after, however, another pole was raised.

EAST SIDE OF BROADWAY, 1865.

1766. (Sept. 23.) The second pole was cut down by persons unknown. Within two days a third pole was erected.

1767. (March 18.) The third pole was destroyed.

1767. (March 19.) A fourth pole, erected and secured by braces and iron bands, and a watch set to guard it.

1767. (March 21.) An attempt renewed by the soldiers to destroy the pole, but they were repulsed by the citizens.

1767. (Dec. 17.) Meeting held in opposition to the mutiny act.

1770. (Jan. 13.) The liberty pole again assailed by the soldiers, who were repulsed.

1770. (Jan. 16.) Another attempt made on the pole, which was successful. It was sawed up and piled in front of Montagnie's door (the headquarters of the Sons of Liberty), on Broadway.

1770. (Jan. 17.) Meeting of upward of three thousand citizens on the Commons. Another liberty pole soon after erected, strongly ironed, and surrounded with a topmast and vane, on the latter of which the word LIBERTY in large letters was conspicuous.

1770. (March 26.) A party of soldiers attempted to unship the topmast; a contest ensued between them and the citizens without fatal results.

1770. (May 10.) Meeting in opposition to importations of British goods.

1770. (June.) A quantity of British goods seized by the Sons of Liberty are burned on the Commons.

1774. (July 6.) Great meeting in opposition to the act of Parliament called the Boston Port Act. At this meeting Alexander Hamilton, then seventeen years of age, first appeared as a public speaker.

1775. Various meetings on the all-absorbing public affairs. The affair at Concord and the battle of Lexington occurred, and the people began vigorously to prepare for momentous events.

1776. (July 9.) The Declaration of Independence published to the troops paraded on the Commons at 6 o'clock in the evening. A hollow square formed at lower end of the Common, in which was General Washington on horseback. The Declaration was read by one of his aids. At its conclusion three hearty cheers were given.

1776 to 1783. The city in possession of the British.

1776. Cunningham, the British Provost Marshal had the Liberty pole cut down.

A jail, now the Hall of Records, and a Bridewell, between the poor-house and Broadway were erected in colonial times. This latter building was completed shortly before the Revolution, and was taken down in 1839. The three buildings alluded to, to wit; the poor-house, on the site of the present City Hall, the jail (converted into the present Hall of Records), and the Bridewell, were the three prominent buildings standing in the Park at the time of the Revolution. They were all built of gray stone, and with little of ornamentation in their architecture. Grave-yards for their inmates were inclosed near the buildings, so that, though very eligibly situated on an open green, these public edifices presented a lugubrious appearance, quite in keeping with the disagreeable objects to which they were devoted.

These were not, however, the only buildings which had been erected in the Park in colonial times, for at different eras, soldiers' barracks had been constructed in the vicinity of Chambers and Chat-ham streets. These were rude structures, one story in height, and built of logs. Those which were built in the time of the "old French war" remained in a ruinous condition for many years after the close of that war, being, it is said, not unfrequently tenanted by families of roving Indians, some of whom still hovered around the abodes of civilization, gaining a livelihood by the sale of baskets and their favorite bead work.

After the Revolution, the improvement of the Park was commenced by its inclosure in 1785, with a post and rail fence, which was the first event in its transformation from its ancient character of a "Commons," to the more exclusive condition of a Park. This was but a natural sequence to the progressive condition of the neighborhood, for, as we have seen, it was at this time that Broadway in this section began to assume the character of a fashionable place of residence, and the ancient custom of allowing cattle, and other animals to rove at large upon the green, became out of the new order of things. Nor was it long before the post and rail fence gave place to one of wooden palings, which remained for a score of years, and finally gave place, in 1816, to an iron railing, which was set with due ceremony and public commemoration of the event. In 1805 pavements were first laid along Broadway in front of the Park.

It should be mentioned, in connection with this account of the fencing in of the Park, that a portion of the present inclosure was a part of the negro burial-ground, situated near Chambers street, and Broadway. The Corporation (about the year 1796) exchanged other property for the ground taken, so that the northern boundaries, of the Park might conform with a continuous line of Chambers street.

WEST SIDE OF BROADWAY, 1865.

After the return of peace and the great increase of population which followed, the old poor-house was found inadequate to its objects, and a new almshouse was erected extending along the north side of the Park, having a front on Chambers street. This building was finished in 1695 and immediately occupied. But the inappropriateness of the location soon became manifest, and in 1810 the site at Bellevue, containing between six and seven acres, was purchased and buildings commenced, which were finished and occupied in 1812. The city authorities then agreed to devote the old building towards encouraging several enterprises of a public character then recently started, and accordingly appropriated its rooms for their occupancy, and adopted for it the name of the New York Institution. Here were located several of our most prosperous public institutions, among which may be mentioned, The New York Historical Society, established in 1809; the Academy of Arts, designed to encourage the fine arts, (their rooms in this building were open to the public at a small admission fee); the Lyceum of Natural History, incorporated in 1818, which was soon successful in forming a valuable collection of minerals, fossils, organic remains, &c., which were on exhibition at their rooms. The Deaf and Dumb Institute was incorporated in 1817, and opened its school in this building in 1818, with four pupils; it increased in size until 1828, when it removed to a new building in Fifth street. An Academy of Painting, under the charge of Alex. Robertson; the First Bank for Savings; the Lyceum; Scudder's American Museum; the American Institute, and other public institutions have also at various times occupied portions of these premises. The building was removed a few years since.

PARK AND BROADWAY, 1830.

In 1802 a new City Hall was designed, the foundation of which was laid on the site of the first poor-house, September 20, 1803. The architects of this beautiful building were Macomb & Mangin. July 4, 1810, the Corporation first met in this building, in the Mayor's office, and soon after other parts were occupied, although it was not fully completed until 1812. As this building, and the purposes for which it was erected have been but little changed since its original construction, it is not thought necessary to particularize its history with minuteness.

Before closing the account of the Park it is proper to mention that besides the public purposes to which it has been actually devoted, others have been from time to time proposed, but abandoned. Among them was the erection of the City Hospital near the old Bridewell. The Corporation voted to give the land for this purpose, but the public voice condemned the introduction of a building of that character within their favorite place of resort, and the present state of the hospital was purchased, the city giving £1,000 towards it in lieu of their donation of land. It was also at one time, in the early part of the present century, proposed to erect a reservoir in the Park for supplying the city with water to be brought from the Bronx river, but the project fell through.

Beyond the commons lay what in the earliest settlement of the town had been appropriated as a burial-place for negroes, slave and free. It was a desolate, unappropriated spot, descending with a gentle declivity towards a ravine which led to the Kalkhook pond. The negroes in this city were, both in the Dutch and English colonial times, a proscribed and detested race, having nothing in common with the whites. Many of them were native Africans, imported hither in slave ships, and retaining their native superstitions and burial customs, among which was that of burying by night, with various mummeries and outcries. This custom was finally prohibited by the authorities from its dangerous and exciting tendencies among the blacks. So little seems to have been thought of the race that not even a dedication of their burial-place was made by the church authorities, or any others who might reasonably be supposed to have an interest in such a matter. The lands were unappropriated, and though within convenient distance from the city, the locality was unattractive and desolate, so that by permission the slave population were allowed to inter their dead there. Apparently no consideration was given by the authorities to the uses to which this place was devoted, for we find that in 1673, the Dutch Governor Colve granted the land to a private citizen, not distinguishing it from vacant lands, the description being as follows: Beginning on the north end of the highway that leads to Kalkhook, containing in breadth fronting on the west side on the highway twenty-four rods, in the rear, on the east side, likewise twenty-four rods; in length on both sides as well along the Kalkhook as on the south, forty-four rods. It was still, however, allowed by the owners, for many subsequent years, to be used as the negro burial-place. The extent of this ground was about 400 feet along the east side of Broadway by 600 feet in depth.

The following proceedings in the common council in June, 1796, are interesting as showing the origin of Chambers street, and the establishment of the boundaries of the Park.

The committee on the memorial of Henry Kip and others, on adjusting boundary lines between the negroes' burial-ground, report and recommend.

1st. That the measure mentioned in the patent to Cornelius Van Borsum for said land, dated October 16, 1673, be, so far as this corporation is concerned, deemed English statute measure.

2d. That a street sixty-five feet wide, to remain a public street, be laid out opposite Chambers street, and to extend from Broadway to the east side of George street, and thence to Augustus street, as delineated on map annexed.

3d. That the claimants to the burying-ground release to the corporation their interest in the land so laid out for a street, and also of all land to the south of said street, and the corporation will release to said claimants all their interest in land north of the said street.

4th. To compensate the claimants for the difference in extent of lands conveyed by them and those conveyed to them by the corporation, the corporation will convey to them lands bounded southeast by Augustus street, south by the street to be opened (Chambers), northwest by the negroes' burial-ground, and northeast by land of Janeway, and also certain lots on southeast side of Augustus street.

Agreed to.

This land was not improved until some years after the Revolution. In 1796 we find a house standing on the corner of Chambers street, owned by Jonathan Provoost, and occupied by William Little, a carpenter. The adjoining house was owned and occupied by Mrs. Provoost. Next adjoining, was the residence of the Widow Provoost. On the southeast corner of Reade street a stable was afterward erected, and remained until the erection of Washington Hall, which was commenced in 1810, and finished in 1812. This building, in an architectural point of view, was, at the time of its erection, one of the handsomest structures in the city. The architect was John McComb, and the building Committee of the Washington Benevolent Society, under whose auspices it was erected, were Robert Morris, Jr., John McComb, Richard Furman, and John B. Coles. It was erected about the same time, that Tammany Hall was built by the opposite party.

WEST SIDE OF BROADWAY, 1865.

Its subsequent uses were as a public hall, for meetings, assemblies, &c., and it was also kept as a hotel, being conducted during many of its early years by Peter McIntyre. Its early history is also intimately identified with the old Federal party, of which it was the headquarters, and in its hall of meeting were witnessed many of the exciting events which characterized our political history at about the period of the last war with Great Britain. It was not well adapted to the uses of a public house, and was finally purchased by Mr. A. T. Stewart, who erected upon its site the elegant marble building which was the pioneer of that class of structures on Broadway.

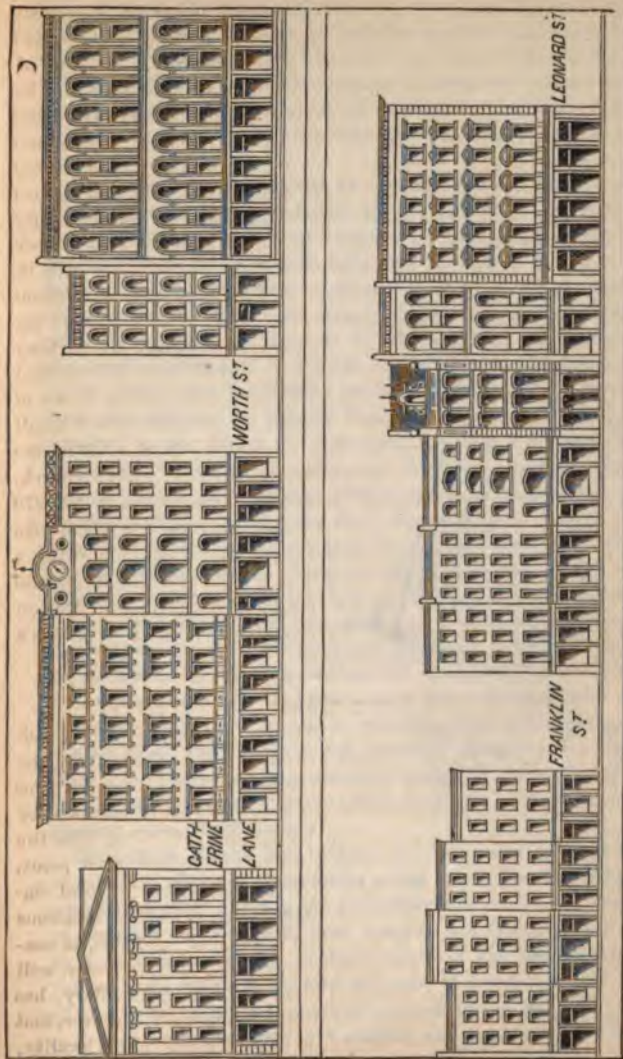

WASHINGTON HALL AS ALTERED AND REPAIRED, 1828.

The west side of Broadway, from Chambers to Duane street, was first improved by the erection of a brewery on the corner of Duane street, which is supposed to have been built before the Revolution. Before the commencement of the present century it was owned by John P. Croshong. It continued in existence until the recent improvements in Duane street, having justly acquired the name of the "Old Brewery." A pottery establishment of Alderman Campbell, also between Reade and Duane streets, was erected before the commencement of the present century. A row of brick buildings was afterwards erected on the premises by Isaac Lawrence, which are still standing among the few relics of the past in that vicinity. The block between Reade and Chambers streets was improved by William Alexander, who erected a handsome residence on the corner of Reade street, where he resided in 1796. In the centre of the same block was at the same time another three-story brick house. The other houses on the block were then of wood, and of an inferior class, one of these with its gable end to the street, was divided into two stores, each about twelve feet wide, and here Alexander T. Stewart first commenced the drygoods business in New York. The house belonged to Anthony Steenbach, the brewer. This last named gentleman was a somewhat adventurous operator in real estate, and purchased the lot corner of Broadway and Chambers street, on which he erected a row of small one-story buildings fronting on Chambers street. In the one on the corner of Broadway, the first drygoods store above St. Paul's church, was opened by a Mrs. Manning. Bonfanti's fancy store, at No. 279 Broadway, was a well known establishment from 1824 to 1838. He had previously (from the year 1819) been at 305 Broadway. Palmo's café, on the corner of Reade street, was a popular resort from 1835 to 1840, at which latter period he abandoned his former occupation and erected the opera house in Chambers street, afterwards Burton's theatre, now the United States Court.

BROADWAY, FROM DUANE STREET TO CANAL STREET.

This section of Broadway is not the less interesting from its association with what has been supposed with some reason to have been the site of an Indian village at some distant period of the past. This supposition arises principally from the name originally bestowed by the Christian settlers upon the hilly promontory extending into the surrounding meadows, viz. : "The Kalckhook," or lime shell point, a name which would hardly have been applied without a local signification. The fact is generally conceded that an extensive cretaceous deposit indicates the site of an aboriginal settlement ; and this, in connection with the vicinity of the hill to an inviting sheet of water, well supplied with fish, which stretched along its eastern boundary, has added probability to the conjecture. It is to be observed, however, that no record exists indicating a settlement of the Indians in this locality, in the times of the early Christian colonists ; nor had this vicinity as had some others on the island (Sapokanican, Mereckawich, and a few others), any distinct native title, which has been handed down to us, and we are thus thrown back in our speculations on this subject to the remote times where the history of our island is hidden within the darkness surrounding the nomadic and untraditional ages of the aborigines.

The Kalckhook commenced at a vale near the present line of Duane street, and rose gradually to an elevation of forty to fifty feet above the surrounding meadows ; on its summit, a little pond of an acre or more in size appears indicated on some of the early maps. Its extent embraces about forty acres, the whole of which was granted by Governor Kieft to Jan Damen, in the year 1646. Some forty years subsequently it came to be the property of four owners, who made partition of it, though it still laid in common and the public pound was established on its summit. One of these portions was assigned to Jacobus Van Cortland, the most of which remained in the family of that name for over a century, as will be noticed in tracing its subsequent history. The westerly half, another portion, came into the possession of Anthony Rutgers, a leading citizen of New York, who, about the year 1730, erected there a handsome residence, and occupied the premises until his death, some twenty years afterwards. He surrounded his habitation with elegant shrubbery in the geometrical style of rural gardening of those days. Long walks bordered with box-wood, and shaded and perfumed with flowering shrubs, extended in various directions in the parterre, fronting the house. The favorite orchard extended along the southerly side of the mansion, while the pasture lands and cultivated fields extended toward the north. It was a charming rural residence, and even in after years, when its quiet and domestic characteristics had given place to the festive incidents attached to a public resort, the advertisement of the proprietor expressed it as judged to be the most rural and pleasing retreat near the city.

The fashion of the last century led idlers and pleasure-seekers to suburban places of amusement, where music, dancing, and feasting contributed their share in the amusements of the hour. The names of Ranelagh and Vauxhall, near London, are familiar even to the modern American reader, as the literature of the last century popularized those resorts of the idle and gay of London society. Their glories found imitators throughout all parts of the British dominions, and New York had both a Vauxhall, and Ranelagh ; the latter of which was the form er residence and garden of Col. Rutgers. This establishment was conducted under the auspices of Mr. John Jones for some years im mediately previous to the revolutionary war. His advertisements describe the place as being laid out at great expense, with all conveniences for breakfasting, and every entertainment for ladies and gentlemen. A complete band was in attendance every Monday and Thursday evening during the summer, in a large dancing hall, which had been erected in the garden. The Rutgers' estate was brought into the market for sale in 1770, and the first sale was to an association organized for the establishment of a hospital, an institution until then unknown in New York. It was at first proposed to erect the building in the Park, but, as has been elsewhere stated, that project was abandoned, and the site fixed upon was Rutgers' orchard. The hospital was chartered in 1769. Funds were subscribed in 1771, and the city corporation added £1,000 to the contribution in lieu of the land which had been previously set apart for this edifice. Five acres were purchased in 1772, and the building was commenced September 2, 1773. The cost of the building was about $18,000. In 1775 it was partly destroyed by an accidental fire; it was, however, sufficiently repaired to serve as barracks for the British soldiers during the war. Some years after the return of peace it was reopened as a hospital. The inadequate funds arising from private subscription were from time to time aided by legislative action, and the institution still remains, with some additions to the original structure, and is distinguished as one of the most beneficent as well as the most ancient of the benevolent enterprises organized by the citizens of New York.

The principal historical incident connected with the New York Hospital was the "Doctors' riot," in 1788, which originated from the violent prejudices then existing against the practice of exhuming bodies for dissection. In Great Britain a class of persons had grown up profanely called resurrectionists, who supplied the medical schools with bodies, often it was said those of respectable persons recently interred. The stories, perhaps exaggerated, occasioned great popular prejudice against the medical colleges, which in New York was exasperated by the indiscretion of students who wantonly exposed the legs and arms of their subjects dangling from the hospital windows. The populace took fire at this inhuman exhibition, and a riot occurred in which several lives were lost.

The erection of a reservoir for supplying the city with pure water was the next event of historical importance in connection with this portion of the city. The subject had long been agitated, and the necessity of some relief was becoming more manifest as the city increased and prospered. The public wells in the streets of the city supplied water of brackish taste, which horses, unless accustomed to it, would not touch. This was ascribed to the narrow width of the island at the lower portion, which did not permit sufficient filtration of the salt water of the rivers; but several of the wells in the vicinity of the Kalkhook pond supplied excellent water, and thence the inhabitants of the city were daily furnished with their "tea water." From this arose the project of sinking large wells and pumping the water into an extensive reservoir whence it might be carried through the city in wooden pipes. The elevated hill through which Broadway (then Great George street) was designed to run was fixed upon for the purpose, and in 1774 the city authorities purchased lands of A. & F. Van Cortland at £600 per acre. The work was commenced under the supervision of Christopher Colles, one of the earliest professional engineers established in the city, good water reported as being found in the wells. The reservoir was completed and wooden pipes were laid through the streets. The first contract for the latter being for 60,000 feet, at a cost of £1,250. The work was completed about April, 1776. The reservoir stood on the east side of Broadway, near the southeasterly corner of the present White street and Broadway. It is to be remembered, however, that this was many years before streets were cut through in that vicinity. As to the history of the reservoir during the occupancy by the British, which took place a few months after its completion, and continued till 1783, we have no positive knowledge, but it is believed that it was not used during that period, and probably proved to be inadequate to its objects, as we find the Manhattan company, which was subsequently organized for the purpose of supplying the city with pure and wholesome water, petitioning the city in 1799 for permission to occupy the former reservoir until it could be ascertained if the water should prove to be of sufficient quality and quantity to supply the city. Their petition was granted, but from the fact that the company soon after established their works in another locality, it is inferred that the original site was not approved. The property of the Corporation at the reservoir, Broadway and White streets, was sold in lots in 1810; those on Broadway selling as high as an average of $3,000 each. The total sale amounted to $25,500.

The account thus far given, has shown the improvements in that section prior to the revolutionary war. "During the seven years in which the city was occupied by the British, the history of the Kalkhook was of a military character. The hospital, which was tenanted by soldiers, was fortified by works thrown up around the building, and for greater security a block house, and some other fortifications, were erected on the north side of the point overlooking the meadows. The foregoing map, executed by a British officer, shows the condition of that vicinity towards the close of the British occupation.

As affairs assumed a settled condition after the war, the improvement of this part of the city was undertaken by the regulation and opening of the streets. The natural condition of the surface was unequal, and required much filling and excavating in various parts. Thus when sidewalks were first proposed in 1791, to extend from the Bridewell, in the Park, to the hospital, it was reported by the surveyor that the requisite lowering of Broadway, at Warren and Chambers streets, would be about three feet, while at the depressed portion, through which Duane street was laid out it required to be raised about eight feet. Thence up to the hospital it required lowering to the extent of ten feet at the latter point. Nearly opposite the hospital was the handsome residence of Mr. David M. Clarkson, the first house of any size erected in this vicinity on the line of Broadway. At this point the sidewalks were proposed to stop; but the digging away of the street as far as the meadows, it was designed to proceed with. Some years elapsed, however, before the cutting down of Broadway was finally carried into effect, when the deepest cutting was found to be between the present White and Walker streets, where the street was cut down below the natural surface to the depth of about twenty-three feet. The regulation of the street was continued to the stone bridge at the meadows.

Before proceeding to note the progress of improvement in that section, it will be found convenient to allude to the names of the cross streets, several of which have been changed at various periods.

Barley street, so called after a brewery west of Broadway, was afterwards called Duane street.

Magazine street, so named, from the reason that it led past the old Powder house on the little island in the pond, was afterwards called Pearl street.

Catharine street has been altered to Anthony street, and Catharine lane and Leonard street have retained their names.

Sugar-loaf street has been altered to Franklin street.

White, Walker and Canal streets have retained their original names.

The improvement of the east side of Broadway between Duane and Pearl streets, was commenced soon after the close of the Revolution, and within ten or fifteen years after that period the whole front had been built upon. The buildings were of wood and of small proportion with two exceptions, those known as Nos 308 and 310, which were three-story brick buildings, then considered of an excellent class. These were erected by Mr. Nichols, and in after years were occupied by leading citizens, among whom may be mentioned: Joseph Ichard, William Cutting (lawyer), John C. Stevens, John Tonnele, Jr., and Mr. Rapelje. A view of this portion of Broadway as it existed with the original buildings erected upon it, is here given.—(See next page.)

About 1818, a fine house was erected on premises No. 306, first occupied by John McKesson, afterwards by Samuel Bradhurst, H. H. Scheffelin, and others. Several of the original frame buildings stood until within comparatively recent years, others were demolished for the erection of Masonic Hall in 1826. This building, of which a view follows, occupied a site originally built upon by Heckles, a mason, and afterwards used as a grocery store. The Masonic fraternity erected this elegant edifice for the purposes of their order. The engraving sufficiently illustrates the outward appearance of the building. The hall of entrance, ten feet in width, extended the length of the building; at the eastern extremity were the stairways to the upper rooms. On the second floor, occupying the whole extent of the building, was a room then considered at the time of the erection of the building, as the most splendid apartment of the kind in the United States, being a saloon, in the richest style of gothic architecture, ninety-five feet long, forty-seven wide, and twenty-five high. From the ceiling, which was divided into eight arches, were pendant numerous ornaments in imitation of the chapel of Henry VIII. This room was used for public meetings, concerts, and balls, &c. The third story was used as meeting rooms for the masonic fraternity. The building was commenced in June, 1826, and finished in the following year, at a cost of $50,000.

After the serious blow given to the masons, arising out of the "Morgan'' excitement, which was drawn into politics, the prosperity of Masonic Hall gradually waned, and its name was changed to Gothic Hall. In one of the city publications in 1841 it is recorded as having changed hands, its stockholders having received neither principal nor interest on their investment. A few years since it was demolished, to give place to the present elegant buildings on the site Nos. 314 and 316 Broadway.

The block between Pearl and Anthony streets was originally chiefly occupied by the brewery, erected not long after the Revolution, by Mr. Snyder; after his death his widow married Anthony Steenbach, who conducted the business in connection with James Brown. The brewery and malt house were entered from Anthony street. Steenbach's residence was on the southeast corner of Broadway and Anthony streets, and Brown's on the northeast corner; attached to each was a large kitchen garden extending along Broadway. On Steenbach's death, the property went to the children of Mrs. Steenbach by her former husband, one of whom (Peter Snyder) conducted the business for some years subsequent. The executor of Mr. Steenbach was Mr. Stephen Conover, who is still living. Mr. Conover was in the hardware business on Broadway, between fifty and sixty years, and still resides in the vicinity of his old business stand. As executor of Steenbach, he erected on the site of the kitchen garden, along Broadway, five small one-story buildings

In after years the Broadway theatre was the principal building erected on this block, and was in prosperous operation for several years, in 1850, and thereabouts. It was destined, however, to stand but a comparatively short period, and its site is now occupied by the elegant marble stores erected by its proprietor James R. Whiting, Esq.

From Anthony street to Catharine lane the property belonged to the owners of the brewery, on the opposite corner, and before the year 1800 but one house had been erected on the block, in which Mr. Brown, the original owner, resided. It was on the corner of Anthony street, and was removed within a comparatively recent period. A view of it is given in the next illustration. Within a few years subsequently, residences of a good class were erected on the block, and we find them occupied at different periods by several leading citizens, among whom may be mentioned, John Griscom, Gilbert Robertson, Edward W. Laight, and J. R. Beekman. On this block was, in after years, erected a church edifice, affording the largest accommodation for an audience of any then in the city. It was built about the year

1836, and was originally called the Sixth Free Presbyterian Church, in which Rev. F. G. Finley and others officiated. Its name was afterward changed to "The Tabernacle," and Rev. J. P. Thompson officiated as minister subsequent to the year 1846. The building stood upon lots in the rear of those on Broadway, but the entrance was from the latter street, and was known as No. 340. The facilities of the large audience room rendered this a noted place of meetings where extensive public accommodations were required, and its history is identified with many gatherings of the people on important occasions.

On the next block, between Catharine lane and Leonard street, which contained but about sixty feet front, two small frame buildings were originally erected before the grade of the street was lowered. They were let down even with the street, and in one of them, on the corner of Leonard street, Stephen Conover established his hardware store in 1810, the other being occupied by Cahoon as a grocery. These afterwards gave place to the elegant edifice erected by the New York Society Library Association. This institution, which was the oldest of the kind in New York, had previously been located in Nassau street, opposite the Dutch church (now Post-office). They sold their property in 1836 for $44,200, and with those and other funds derived from the New York Atheneum, then merged with them, they purchased the site in Broadway, containing sixty feet front and one hundred feet deep, at a cost of $47,500. The edifice cost about $70,000, the result leaving the Library considerably in debt. The building was completed in 1833. The Library Association occupied the premises until 1853, when they sold to Appleton & Co., publishers, for the sum of $110,000, by whom it is still occupied.

The block between Leonard and Franklin streets, soon after the Revolution, was at first improved by the erection of a residence by Mr. David M. Clarkson, a merchant.

A portion of the Kalckhook south of Van Cortland's property had come into the Depeyster family, and before the Revolution was used by them as pasture land, it being then customary for the wealthiest families in the city to supply themselves with home-made butter and the fresh milk of their own cows. Madam Margaret Depeyster was the last proprietor of whom we find any account who used the pasture-land for its original purposes. It had become marketable for building purposes, and was sold off by the heirs. David M. Clarkson, a New York merchant, married one of the daughters of Madam Depeyster, and soon after the Revolution he erected a residence about midway of the present block between Leonard and Franklin streets, on the easterly side of Broadway. The building, which was about thirty feet front and two stories high, stood about fifty feet back from the street, and was surrounded by a large garden extending along the present Leonard street to about the line of Elm street. Mr. Clarkson, after residing here for some years, sold the whole property, including the mansion, to Rufus King and John Lawrence for $30,000. Its extent was about one hundred and sixty feet on Broadway and three hundred and eighty feet in depth. In 1808 Mr. King and Mr. Lawrence made a partition of the various lots between them, and caused a map of the property to be made, of which the following is a copy.

On the lots of Mr. King a panoramic exhibition was under the charge of John J. Holland, in 1810.

Soon after this period this property began to be improved by the erection of residences, and we find that about the year 1813, houses of a superior class were constructed. These residences were at first occupied as follows: No. 350, by Thomas Cooper; No. 352, by Stephen Price; No. 354, by R. F. Muller; No. 356, by Abraham Herring, and No. 358 by Francis Depau. The principal incident connected with those buildings, previous to their recent final demolition, was the alteration of Nos. 350 and 352 (corner of Leonard street) into a hotel, as the Carlton House, kept in 1850, and for some years subsequently, by Mr. Hodges.

North of Franklin street improvements were deferred for some years. A great part of the property still remained in the representatives of the old Van Cortland interest in the Kalckhook, and other lots, formerly used by the reservoir, belonged to the Corporation. One building, however, of considerable public notoriety in its day, deserves to be mentioned. Old histories recount that when itinerant circus performers found their way to New York they were accustomed to exhibit on the hill above the Collect, and perhaps to this may be ascribed the establishment of a place of amusement on Broadway, north of White street, which, in 1795, was called Rickett's Amphitheatre. It occupied three lots, and by advertisements in newspapers about the beginning of the present century, we find it used at intervals for circus and theatrical performances, and for panoramic exhibitions. It seems to have been discontinued about the year 1813.

The few disconnected cottages which occupied the east side of Broadway, between Franklin and Canal streets, began to give way before the march of improvement about the year 1818. Handsome residences were then erected between Franklin and White streets, owned by George Rapelje, John M. Bradhurst, Samuel Watkins, Richard Kingsland, James Gillender, and William M. Cutting (afterwards occupied by Mr. Astor), which remained until a recent period, and between White and Walker streets the first improvements were made by Mrs. Banyar, widow of Goldsborough Banyar, and by Peter A. Jay. Between Walker and Canal streets the first permanent improvement was made by Peter Jay Munro, on the north corner of Walker (afterwards Florence's Hotel), and by George Bruce, on the corner of Canal street. The buildings of a public character afterwards erected in this locality were, Concert Hall, afterwards called the Minerva Rooms, No. 404; Enterprise Hall, No. 410; The Apollo Gallery, No.

EAST SIDE OF BROADWAY, 1865.

Turning our attention to the west side of Broadway, it is found that before the commencement of the present century there had been about twenty houses erected, commencing with the public house and garden of Conrad Vanderbeck, on the north corner of Duane street, and ending with the Tannery of Thomas Duggan, near the stone bridge afterwards the line of Canal street. These houses were all small frame buildings, and, with one or two exceptions, are not of sufficient interest for description.

Between Anthony and Leonard streets, at the commencement of the present century, was a building occupied as an independent church. In the same neighborhood was also a public garden, which, before the cutting through of Broadway, stood on the top of the Kalckhook hill, overlooking a large extent of surrounding country. This was erected before or during the Revolution, as it is located upon a map made in 1782. It was afterwards known as the White Conduit House, a rear view of which is here given.

THE GRADING OF BROADWAY, SHOWING A REAR VIEW OF THE WHITE CONDUIT HOUSE, ON THE WEST SIDE OF BROADWAY, BETWEEN LEONARD AND ANTHONY STREETS.

In 1796 there appears to have been a public garden in that vicinity under the control of William Byram. It is described as a house and garden near Leonard street, but whether on the same plan as that before described, does not more definitely appear. After the street was cut, this garden was kept by Mons. Corri, a Frenchman, whom we find to have commenced his vocation in New York by selling mead and cakes on the Battery, where he was allowed to give additional attraction to his stand by illuminating with colored lamps. This garden in Broadway was, in 1805, called Mt. Vernon Garden. The cutting through of the street left it high above the level, and it was reached by a flight of steps. Flying horses and other amusements were a part of the attraction of the place. When John H. Contoit, about 1809, left his New York Garden, opposite the Park, he established himself on the west side of Broadway, between Leonard and Franklin streets, having purchased the house and land formerly of Lewis Nichols, cabinetmaker; the extent of ground being 41 feet 8 inches front, by 182 feet 6 inches deep. He transferred the name of his former place, and gave it the name of New York Garden, which it retained for about forty years, and has so recently been abandoned that its remembrance must be familiar to many of our citizens.

The most marked improvement of Broadway in this vicinity, was the erection, about 1807, of a row of first class residences between Anthony and Leonard streets. These, commencing with the corner of Anthony street, were owned by Thomas Tom, John Franklin, B. G. Minturn, William Denning, William Henderson, and Thomas Stagg, and soon after John H. Howland built on the corner of Leonard street.

At about the same time Mr. Neufbill erected two good dwelling-houses on and next to the north corner of Leonard street adjoining the garden soon after taken by Contoit. We find by an advertisement of sale of No. 347 Broadway, corner of Leonard street in 1812, that the size was 28 x 62, three stories, with stable in the rear of lot; the parlors being furnished with folding doors and marble mantelpieces. Between that time and 1815, Peter Crary erected a residence on No. 361, and Gamaliel Smith one adjoining, on corner of Franklin street.

BROADWAY, WEST SIDE, SHOWING FRANKLIN STREET.

This was the limit of improvements in 1815, the property north as far as Duggan's at Canal street, being mostly vacant except a blacksmith shop and one or two temporary tenements. During the ensuing five years, however, the street was almost entirely improved by a fair class of buildings, which remained until a recent period.

An era in the history of Broadway in the section now under review, was occasioned by the introduction of gas, the pipes for which were laid south of Canal street in 1825. At this period the west side of Broadway was already extensively patronized as the fashionable shopping mart. Already many of the drygoods stores had been transferred from the section below St. Paul's Church, and were following the population which was filling up the cross streets below Canal street, and the throng of pedestrians which has characterized the modern era of our great thoroughfare, began to make a noticeable appearance in business hours as well as in the evening when the pleasure-seekers were abroad.

BROADWAY AT CANAL STREET.

The subject of draining the Fresh Water Pond, and filling up the meadows extending to the North river, occasioned great discussion, and a variety of plans, which were changed, from time to time, as occasion seemed to demand.

The history of the meadows and pond has been given in former numbers of the Manual, and will not be recapitulated, except to say, in brief, that the meadows had been granted to Colonel Rutgers, who, previous to the Revolution, had constructed a drain from the pond to the river.

The first indication of any bridge crossing this drain occurs in a map executed during the revolutionary war, and, inasmuch as no mention is made of action in the premises by the city authorities, and furthermore, considering that the structure known to have been erected was of too substantial a character, and too obviously designed for public travel to admit the idea that it was constructed by the owners of the swamp, we are left to the inference that the stone bridge was a military work, designed to connect the extensive fortifications on the Kalckhook and Bayard's farm. The bridge was erected on the line of Broadway, and was commonly known as the stone or arch bridge.

Soon after the Revolution, measures were taken for the improvement of the pond and meadows, for which purpose commissioners were appointed under an act of the Legislature. Confining our attention to the meadows, we shall briefly note, in chronological order, the proceedings appearing in the Common Council minutes.

1792. Ordered that the Commissioners under act for regulating the meadows, be informed that it is the wish of the Common Council that they proceed.

1796. A Committee to confer with proprietors along the line of the proposed canal.

1796. Proprietors to be asked to cede land, so that the canal may be forty feet wide, with street on each side thirty feet wide.

1796. Project submitted by Messrs. Mangin, Engineers, for converting the pond into a dock for shipping, with access by canal through the meadows.

Between 1798 and 1804. Plan adopted for filling the pond with earth from the adjacent hills.

Between 1798 and 1804. Report on opening a canal from Broadway to the Hudson river.

Between 1798 and 1804. Order for opening immediately.

Between 1798 and 1804. Committee for reporting a plan, discharged.

Between 1798 and 1804. Resolution to make a tunnel or sewer from the East to the North river.

Between 1798 and 1804. Cessions of ground to be obtained.

1805. Report in favor of an open canal to pass through a street one hundred feet wide.

1807. Memorial by city council to legislature for appointment of commissioners, setting forth the difficulty of regulating and improving the streets in the meadows.

1808. Memorial of owners, stating that the various plans for regulating Canal street have proved prejudicial, and that any one plan, however imperfect, would be better than such frequent fluctuations.

1809. Gouverneur Morris and Samuel De Witt, who had been appointed commissioners, resigned ; James Fairlie and Samuel Russell appointed ; Mr. Fairlee declines ; Mr. Rutherford declines ; Wm. H. Ireland and Daniel Ebbets appointed.

The following view [p. 608] represents the stone bridge and drain as it appeared before the final conclusion was come to, to have an inclosed sewer constructed.

The width of the ditch through the meadows was from six to eight feet. Mr. Duggan erected his tannery on the meadows, in the vicinity of the present southwest, corner of Broadway and Canal street. His residence occupied a site at about the present line of Lispenard street.

BROADWAY, BETWEEN CANAL STREET AND ASTOR PLACE.

Astor place was originally the line of a road leading from the hamlet called "The Bowery" (so called from its vicinity to Governor Stuyvesant's farm) to Sapokanican or Greenwich. This road crossed a ridge of hills called by the Dutch the "Zantberg," and by the English "Sandy hill." The greater part of the land between that road and the meadows (at Canal street) was the Bayard (east and west) farms, the dividing line between the two running along the middle of Broadway. On the west side of Broadway this farm extended from the meadows to near Bleecker street, north of which was the Herring estate, and on the east side of Broadway the farm extended to a point between Prince and Houston streets; next north was land of Alderman Dyckman, adjoining to which was land of Anthony L. Bleecker, through which Bleecker street was afterward run; next north was the Herring estate, and along the Sandy hill road was land of Pero.

WEST SIDE OF BROADWAY, 1865.

The Bayard farm was bounded on the east by the Bowery, and on the west by an irregular line extending to Macdougall street. The Mansion House was erected about the year 1750, and was situated on the block bounded by the present Grand, Broome, Crosby, and Elm streets. It was approached by an avenue called Bayard's lane, the entrance gate being at the Bowery road; the present Broome street has been laid out on nearly the same line. The family was a leading one in New York from the time of the Dutch. During the war the defensive lines established on the outskirts of the city ran across this property, and occasioned it to be much cut up by military works. A diagram of these works, made in 1782, illustrates their condition at the close of the war.

MILITARY WORKS ADJACENT TO THE BAYARD MANSION, ERECTED DURING THE REVOLUTIONARY WAR.

Nicholas Bayard, after the close of the Revolution, found himself financially embarrassed from the devastating effects of the war, and raised between six and seven thousand pounds by mortgage of the West farm, or that part of the estate west of Broadway, which contained about one hundred acres. This was placed in the hands of trustees, and by them sold off in parcels of various sizes. The property had been previously laid out in lots and streets.

The regulation of Broadway was deferred for some years after its opening, chiefly from the difficulties arising out of the discordant action respecting the plan of regulating Canal street; and thus it is found that before the grade of the street was established several buildings were erected on its line. In its natural course it presented a variety of surface requiring excavating at some places and filling at others. At a point on Broadway, near the present Spring street, was the junction of two private lanes through Bayard's farm, one of which led southwesterly to the North river shore at Lispenard's meadows, the other ran in a westerly course, and terminated near Richmond hill. And at the present Amity street was another lane leading from the Bowery to Richmond hill, along the southerly side of Herring's land. Broadway itself, in the locality now spoken of, was for many years commonly known as the Middle road.

In 1802 a survey of the Middle road was ordered from the Arched Bridge (Canal street) to Dr. Livingston's residence, which was on the southwest corner of Broadway and Prince street; and the Street Commissioner was directed to report as to "the best method of paving, or, as it was called, 'turnpiking' " it. He recommended the paving forty feet wide, with sidewalks ten feet wide, and that a row of trees be planted on each side, at ten feet distance from each other. His plan was at first adopted, and afterward repealed on account of the long standing difficulty respecting Canal street. In the meantime, however, the Middle road was, to some extent, improved by taking ten feet from the crown of the hill "near Morneys," and filling in to the same depth a hollow near "the starch factory." In 1805, however, the street was permanently regulated between the stone bridge and Prince street, and in the following year between Prince and Great Jones streets. In the course of the next year the regulation was extended to Art street, or the present Astor place. The laying of pavements and construction of sidewalks soon followed, so that in the year 1809 the street was fully completed as far north as our present notice extends. In November, 1809, the Street Commissioner reported that Mr. Samuel Burling had offered to furnish as many poplar trees as might be necessary to line Broadway, from Leonard to Art street, provided the Corporation would move and set them without expense to him. The Commissioner further stated that he had consulted a number of property-owners, and found them exceedingly anxious to accept the liberal offer of Mr. Burling, and one offered to cart a great portion at his own expense. It being concluded by the Corporation that the arrangement would "be an additional beauty to Broadway, the pride of our city," and as the season was then a proper one for transplanting, and the curbstones were then being laid, the proposition was approved.

Previous to the regulation of the street, and before the commencement of the present century, several adventurous pioneers, as has been mentioned, erected improvements along the Middle road. At that time the old mansion still remained in the occupancy of Alderman Bayard, though its destiny, soon to fall before the advancing strides of city population, was obvious. Already on the corner of Grand street a public house had been erected, which then and for many subsequent years was conducted by Abraham Davis. This was afterward called the Broadway House, and the same premises were occupied as a hotel until within the past few years. A view of the premises at a time when some additional improvements had been made in the vicinity is here given.

CORNER OF BROADWAY AND GRAND STREET, 1824.

Joseph Blackwell, a tinsmith, built on the lower corner of the present Howard street, and John McCammann erected the first house on or near the northwest corner of Broadway and Canal street. William Ogilvie and a few others had likewise made improvements.

To exhibit the condition of the improvements at the time Broadway was first paved (say in 1807), we shall specify the blocks and the buildings erected upon them, taking first the

The occurrence of the war with Great Britain soon after the period above referred to had the effect to defer the improvement of the street ; but its progress was only temporarily stayed, and we find indications of a speculative character attached to property on the whole line of the street. Taking the year 1820 as a guide, it is found that very much of the street had already been improved. On the east side, between Canal and Howard streets, the whole front was occupied, though the buildings were small frame edifices. Among them were Geer & Riley's carpenter shop. These parties became notable builders, and were identified with many of the improvements in the upper part of the city. On the block above (between Howard and Grand streets), there were several small houses, besides Wyman's stables, the pioneer establishment of that kind above Canal street. Victor Pepin then conducted a circus established on that block (afterward Tattersalls), to be hereafter more particularly referred to. But between the circus and Grand street the lots were still unoccupied. The next block (between Grand and Broome streets) was about half filled up, there being some seven lots improved and seven vacant. The class of buildings on this block was superior to that erected at an earlier period. The owners were principally men of means. The best houses were those on the corner of Broome street, the corner being owned by Abijah Hammond, and that adjoining being the property of Elbert Anderson. These were first-class residences. The view which has been given in another place of the "Broadway House" shows the character of the houses in the middle of the block.

The block next above (between Broome and Spring streets) was entirely built upon, all the buildings being erected for residences, though most of them were without pretensions to being of the first class of houses. There were several others, however, all of which were owned by Isaac Lawrence, which were of a superior description, and were tenanted by well-known citizens. Of these, No. 476 was occupied by Alfred S. Pell ; No. 478, by George Richards ; No. 480, which was a large double house, was occupied by Mr. Lawrence, the owner ; No. 482, by John Griswold ; No. 484, by Foxhall A. Parker. We may mention, among other residents on that block at the period spoken of, Murray Hoffman, No. 486, and Gabriel V. Ludlow, No. 499. Citizen Genet occupied the southeast corner of Broadway and Spring street.

The block between Spring and Prince streets was just beginning to receive the impetus of improvement, and two fine buildings on the corner of Spring street had been erected by Thomas T. Woodruff, an enterprising builder. Two other small houses, with gable fronts, stood near the middle of the block; but there were no less than fifteen lots then still unimproved. These, however, were held in that condition but a short time after that period. The next block (that between Prince and Bleecker streets, Houston street not having been yet opened) then approached the suburbs of the city. It was pretty fully built upon, but mostly by a small class of buildings. The site since occupied by Niblo's Garden and the Metropolitan Hotel was then vacant; but north of that property the street was nearly all occupied, principally by small frame buildings, which had been erected by persons of moderate means at a time when the lots could be purchased at a low figure. But toward Bleecker street the property was in the hands of men of fortune, and was improved with a superior class of buildings. The principal one of these proprietors was John Mason, who owned several fine houses, occupied by leading citizens, among whom were Mayor Colden, N. G. Rutgers, H. B. Lambert, and R. Despard, the latter being on the corner of Bleecker street. Between Bleecker and Bond streets (the latter street having then been recently established) the property was still unimproved, and such also was the condition of the adjoining block (between Bond and Great Jones streets). Of the next block (between Great Jones and Fourth streets) the same may be said, except that a small frame house was in the centre of the block. Between Fourth and Art streets (Astor place) the improvements were of a slight character; there were three or four frame houses of an inferior description, with the exception of the Duryea property, to which a garden, embracing several lots, was attached, and upon which was a respectable residence then occupied by John F. Cox.

This brings us to the point to which this portion of our description of Broadway extends on the east side of the street.

Pursuing our description of the condition of the street on the west side at the same period (1820), and commencing in the same manner at Canal street, we find the first block (that between Canal and Howard streets) to have been still unimproved, except by two small frame buildings, one on the corner and the other adjoining. The next block (between Howard and Grand streets) was pretty fully built upon, generally by frame buildings of an ordinary class. A speculative builder (John Morse) had, however, divided up three lots, on which he had erected four brick houses of a good description, which are still standing. On the block above (between Grand and Broome streets), on the northwest corner of Grand street, was a small office of Stephen B. Munn, a large property-holder in the vicinity. On the corner of Broome was Allen Clark's grocery, but the interior of the block was vacant. The next block (between Broome and Spring streets) was about half built up. There were on that block, however, the two best houses then on Broadway above Canal street. These had been recently erected by Mr. Stephen B. Munn, and were very superior buildings for that day. Toward Spring street there were three brick buildings of an ordinary class, one of which, on the corner of Spring street, was occupied as a drug store by Henry T. Kiersted, who continued in the same premises for over thirty years subsequently. When his premises were purchased for the site of the St. Nicholas Hotel, Gen. Kiersted removed to the suburbs of the city, corner of Broadway and Forty-sixth street. There were, however, on the block spoken of, at that time, over a dozen unoccupied lots. The following view shows the condition of the street on the site of the St. Nicholas Hotel as it was in 1820. The building below the grade was a coach factory, standing on the level of an old lane. On its site was afterward the coach factory of Milne Parker. The fortifications on the hill in the rear were the remains of earth-works from Revolutionary times.

WEST SIDE OF BROADWAY, CORNER OF SPRING STREET, 1820.

On the next block (between Spring and Prince streets) there were three buildings, one of which (Dr. Livingston's) was on the corner of Prince street; another, Dr. Henry Mott's, father of Dr. Valentine Mott, is still standing, having been occupied by the same family until three or four years since. There was, however, at that time, a fine residence nearer to Spring street, occupied by Robert Halliday, and another of less pretensions belonging to the Beekman estate. The vacant lots were about fourteen in number. On the block between Prince and Houston streets there were but three houses, two of which were small frame buildings. The other, however, was a superior residence, then recently erected by Mr. Astor, and occupied by his son-in-law Walter Langdon. Mr. Astor owned a considerable property in that vicinity, extending to and along Prince street. It was not, however, improved by the erection of buildings until many years afterward. At one period, Catherwood's Panorama occupied these premises. A view is here given of this vicinity, although the period to which the picture refers is some years subsequent to that to which we have been alluding.

BLOCK ON WEST SIDE OF BROADWAY, BETWEEN PRINCE AND HOUSTON STREETS, 1823.

On the next block (between Houston and Bleecker streets) there was but one frame building; the block above, however (between Bleecker and Amity streets), was improved by the erection of several fine brick residences, most of which were the property of George

Brinkerhoff. Between Amity street and Art street there was no cross street established, and the property was divided into large parcels, much of it still remaining in the condition of suburban residences. Among the proprietors may be mentioned, William Neilson, three acres ; Widow Depeyster, five acres ; the Thomas estate, residence and twelve lots ; Elbert Anderson, house and ten lots ; Martin Hoffman, house and eight lots ; Peter Hatrick, house and two lots ; and Henry Sherman.

We shall now proceed to note some of the incidents and changes in that part of Broadway under consideration.

Among the earliest of the places which attained public notoriety was Vauxhall Garden, which occupied the old mansion and surrounding premises of the Bayard estate. This was established by a Frenchman, named Delacroix, about the year 1798, and was for some years a popular resort. The garden, which was the same as that originally laid out by the early proprietors, was extensive, and handsomely embellished ; near it, toward the east, rose Bayard's Mount, or, as it was called, after Revolutionary times, " Bunker Hill," from the fortifications on its summit. This was the highest eminence near the city, and afforded an extensive prospect on every side. It was at this time, bare of trees, and on gala occasions its sides were filled with people witnessing exhibitions of fireworks, &c., in the fields below. " Flying horses," mead-booths, &c., crowned its summits. In the neighborhood were also considerable groves, the relics of what in old times were known as " Bayard's Woods." But the advancing progress of population soon drove Delacroix to other quarters. He established himself in a locality so far beyond the limits of the city as to promise many years of enjoyment before the strides of city improvements reached it. This was on the Bowery, south of the Sandy Hill road and to this place he transferred his residence as well as the former name of his establishment. He laid out the grounds, covering several acres, and extending to Broadway, in the geometrical style of gardening, and planted trees along the alleys. About the year 1827, the garden was shorn of half its proportions by the opening of Lafayette place through its centre. The Astor Library was erected within its limits.

Among the early improvements in Broadway was the erection of a large wooden building, originally designed for a circus, but afterward converted into a theatre. It was situated on the east side of Broadway, between Howard and Grand streets.

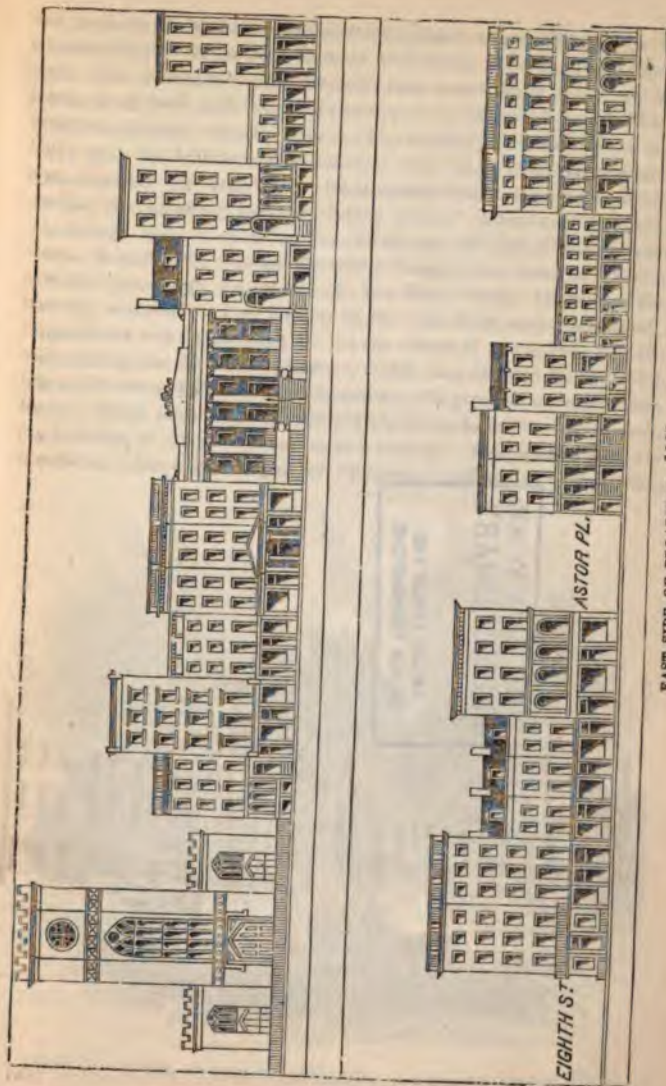

In a newspaper, of date 1812, is a notice by Messrs. Dwyer &

McKenzie, stating that they have taken the late circus, now the Olympic theatre, for a term of years ; in which would likewise be given exhibitions of horsemanship, under the direction of Mr. Breschard. Opening performance, May 22, 1812. How long it continued under that management does not appear ; but we find the building occupied as a circus in 1820, at which time Victor Pepin controlled its management. In 1825 it appears that it was still occupied as a circus, and belonged to Peter Lorillard. It covered four lots, Nos. 442, 444, 446, and 448 Broadway.

In later years a new building was erected on a portion of the same site, having the name of the Olympic theatre, which, in 1838, was under the management of Mrs. Hamblin. In 1839 it was conducted by Mr. McKinney, and in 1840 passed into the hands of Manager Mitchell, under whom it attained a high degree of prosperity. The former circus building is believed to have been the same afterward known as Tattersall's, a place of sale for horses and carriages of all kinds, for which purpose it was occupied until within a few years past. The condition of this block, as it appeared in 1840, is shown by the following illustration :

In early years a circus, called the Stadium, was established on the northeasterly corner of Broadway and Prince streets. These premises were purchased, when Bayard's farm was sold off in lots, by Mr. Van Rensselaer, and occupied the site of the Metropolitan Hotel and Niblo's Garden. Shortly after the War of 1812, the inclosure was used as a place for drilling militia officers, who were cited to appear at the Stadium for drill. The circus edifice was surrounded by a high fence, the entrance being on Prince street. Afterward two brick buildings were erected on Broadway, one of which was for some time occupied by James Fenimore Cooper, the novelist. William Niblo (previously proprietor of the Bank Coffee House in Pine street) removed to this locality in the year 1828, and established a restaurant and public garden. In the centre of the garden was still remaining the old circus building, which was devoted by Mr. Niblo to exhibitions of theatrical performances of a gay and attractive character, which soon attained such popularity as to induce him to erect a building of more pretensions as a theatre. This edifice was constructed even with the line of Broadway, but having a blank face on that street, the entrance being from within the garden. The latter was approached from Broadway. The interior of the garden was spacious, and adorned with shrubbery and walks, lighted up with festoons of lamps. The view on the preceding page shows the condition of Niblo's Garden before the erection of the theatre on Broadway.

A row of one-story buildings was afterward erected along Broadway to the corner of Prince street, that on the corner being for a time occupied by the venerable Grant Thorburn, the seed man. The following view shows the condition of the premises at the time of their destruction by fire. Soon after, the Metropolitan Hotel was erected on the same site :

BROADWAY, FROM ASTOR PLACE TO A POINT ABOVE UNION SQUARE.

The present Astor place, formerly known as Art street, and originally as Sandy Hill, was, as has been mentioned, the line of an old road, probably laid out as early as the times of the Dutch, and led from Governor Stuyvesant's, Bowery, to Sapokanican (afterward called Greenwich village). Some alteration of its line appears to have been made in 1768, when some improvement was made from "the old house at the Bowery to the brook called by the Indian name "Minetta water." The Sand Hills were a range extending from Richmond Hill in a semi-circular course toward the Bowery road. In the Dutch vernacular, the locality was known as the "Zantberg," and is so named on some of the early maps. Along the westerly base of this range ran a branch of the brook called Minetta water, which took its rise at a point in the present Fifth avenue, between Twenty-first and Twenty-second streets, and ran a little east of that avenue as far as Eighteenth street, when it turned westward, crossed Washington square, and emptied into the North river not far north of the old Richmond Hill. The road over the Zantberg was also sometimes called the "Obelisk road," sometimes the "Monument road," from the circumstance that it led past the obituary memorial erected in honor of General Wolfe, the hero of Quebec. This work of art was situated not far from Greenwich, and adjacent to or on the property of Sir Peter Warren, who owned a very large estate in that vicinity. As no mention of its existence is found after the Revolutionary War, it is presumed the British officers caused its removal before they evacuated the city.

The vicinity of Sandy Hill became the site of several residences, and retained its name until a comparatively recent period, as we find as late as 1812 an advertisement of the sale of a country seat "on Sandy Hill, at the upper end of Broadway."

The most notable edifice in that vicinity was that erected by Lieutenant-Governor Andrew Elliott, on his estate, which he called "Minto." Mr. Elliott was a son of Sir Gilbert Elliott, Lord Chief Justice Clerk of Scotland. In 1764 he received the appointment of Collector and Receiver-General of the province of New York, and established his residence in this city. In 1766 he purchased about thirteen acres of land fronting on the Bowery road, and afterward made further purchases, so that his estate covered about twenty-one acres, lying partly along the Sandy Hill road, and extending to the Minetta water. He erected a handsome mansion, and gave his estate the name above mentioned. The diagram on the shows a ground plan of his following house, and its relative position to the streets afterward cut through the property.

In 1780 Mr. Elliott was appointed Lieutenant-Governor, and as such, in the absence of the Governor, administered the affairs of the province until the evacuation of the city by the British, when he returned to his native country. His wife was a Philadelphia lady, and his daughter was married in this city, in 1779, to Lord (afterward Earl) Cathcart, then a major in the British army on duty in this city.

This estate afterward became the property and residence of Frederick Charles Hans Bruno Poelnitz, commonly called Baron Poelnitz, who sold it in 1790 for the sum of five thousand pounds to Robert R.

Randall, a merchant and shipmaster of this city. Mr. Randall resided on the property until his death, in the early part of the present century. By his will, made in 1801, he established, principally on the basis of this estate, one of the most munificent charities in the country, for the support and maintenance of aged and infirm seamen, directing that a suitable edifice be erected and denominated "The Sailors' Snug Harbor." From which circumstance arose the name by which the property was known for many years. The buildings were, however, finally erected on the north shore of Staten Island, the corner stone being laid August 1, 1833.

way, we find, adjoining the estate of Minto, or the Sailors' Snug Harbor, the farm of Hendrick Brevoort, fronting also on the Bowery lane, and extending back to a point between Fifth and Sixth avenues. The old homestead stood on the line of the Bowery, and, as the plan of the city was afterward established, Eleventh street ran upon the site of the house. In after years, when the opening of the street became desirable, and efforts were made to accomplish it, Mr. Brevoort resisted with such effect as to have that improvement abandoned. Ordinances were passed for its opening in 1836 and 1849, but the venerable occupant refused to move, and they were rescinded.

The farm of Henry Spingler, extending along the west side of the Bowery road from Fourteenth to Sixteenth street, and containing about twenty-two acres, was originally a part of the large estate of Elias Brevoort, who, in 1762, conveyed this portion to John Smith, from whose executors it was purchased by Mr. Spingler, then a "shopkeeper" of New York, in 1788, for the sum of nine hundred and fifty pounds. The original farm-house stood, it is believed, within the limits of the present Union square.

Mr. Spingler preserved his property in its original condition long after most of his neighbors had yielded to the pressure of the advancing population, and sold off portions of their original estates; thus Mr. Brevoort had divided up and sold off portions of his farm, and when Broadway was opened, several suburban residences had been established on the Brevoort property. More especially was this division of original farm-lines noticed on the east side of the Bowery road opposite Mr. Spingler's farm. There were a succession of rural mansions occupied by wealthy citizens. The grounds attached to these residences were sufficiently large to afford room for handsome floral displays, while the edifices were of an elegant character. These were afterward removed in consequence of the line of the Fourth avenue cutting diagonally through them.

North of Sixteenth street was land which was also originally a part of Elias Brevoort's farm, who sold it in 1762 to a butcher named Dawson. The latter, in 1773, conveyed it to John Ousterman for the sum of thirteen hundred and fifty-nine pounds. It extended in front along the west side of Bowery lane about five hundred and thirty feet, or from the present Sixteenth to Eighteenth street. The farm contained about twenty-three acres. It was through the section covered by these properties that Broadway was next proposed to be opened, the first proceedings toward which were taken in 1802 by the appointment of a committee to treat with the owners of the property through which it was proposed to extend the street. The condition of the property at this time may be readily understood by reference to the map made by the Commissioners for laying out the streets on the upper part of the island, which, although not made until a few years after this period, appears to show nearly the same division of estates as existed at the opening of the street. The Bowery lane curved somewhat in passing through the present site of Union square, and at about Sixteenth street pursued a straight course toward Bloomingdale. This latter course it was proposed to continue by the new line of Broadway, and thus the direction of the latter street, which was undeviating from the Battery to Tenth street, was changed above the latter street by a slight divergence westward.

At the time when this part of Broadway was opened, the general plan of the city had not been adopted, and there were no cross streets established on its line. The points of termination of this opening was therefore fixed by designating the improvement as "from Art street to the White House, or the Tulip tree."

TAVERN ON BROADWAY AND TWENTY-SECOND STREET.

In opening the street considerable difficulty arose from the different views of owners affected by it, and although most of them ceded their lands in 1805, yet it was found necessary to call in assessors to settle claims for damages; proceedings were initiated in 1806 for regulating the street, and the buildings and other incumbrances standing upon its line were removed in 1807.

In 1807 Commissioners were appointed to lay out the whole of the upper part of the island (above those streets already regulated) by a uniform system of streets and avenues; and the plan adopted by this commission has been since followed, with some modifications. The annexed diagram is copied from the commissioners' map showing the condition of the city, at the time of the conclusion of their labors (about 1820), between Art street (Astor place) and Sixteenth street.

By an act passed in 1815, Union place was appointed for public purposes. Its shape was an irregular polygon, embracing the triangle bounded by the Bowery on the west, Bloomingdale road on the east, and by Fourteenth and Seventeenth streets on the north and south. In 1831 measures were agitated for improving on this plan, the reasons for which were stated to be its shapeless and ill-looking form and its limited dimensions. It was also suggested that it would probably be required in course of time for public buildings, for which provision should be made in anticipation. Accordingly, in 1832, an act was passed establishing the Union place as now existing, which was consummated in the same year at a cost of $116,000. Its permanent regulation and inclosure, however, was not accomplished for some years afterward. Several of the cross streets above Union place were opened about the period of this improvement, viz.: Seventeenth street, in 1830; Sixteenth street, in 1831; Eighteenth street, in 1833; Nineteenth street, in the same year. Among the most active of the persons advocating the improvement of this elegant square was Mr. Samuel B. Ruggles, a resident and large property-holder in the vicinity.

We shall now proceed to note the progress of individual improvements in the section referred to.

For this purpose we will take the year 1832, at about which period the progressive era of that portion of the street became most animated. At that time, on the east side of Broadway, between the present Astor place and Eighth street, the street was wholly built upon. The block between Eighth and Ninth streets was vacant. That between Ninth and Tenth streets was also vacant. Between Tenth and Twelfth streets there were several small houses toward Twelfth street, belonging respectively to Ann Hamilton, J. Howell, John Morse, and Henry M. Western. Between Twelfth and Thirteenth streets were two large houses belonging to J. F. Delaplaine; the rest of the block was vacant. Between Thirteenth and Fourteenth streets were several small frame buildings. On the west side of Broadway, between Eighth and Ninth streets, all vacant lots. Between Ninth and Tenth streets, four first-class residences, belonging to W. B. Lawrence and B. McVickar; and another, with four lots attached, of J. F. Delaplaine. Between Tenth and Eleventh streets, all vacant lots, belonging to Henry Brevoort. Between Eleventh and Twelfth streets, one house, belonging to Richard R. Ward. Between Twelfth and Thirteenth streets, three small houses; remainder of block vacant. Between Thirteenth and Fourteenth streets, all vacant. The era of improvement had, however, commenced, and the street became speedily occupied by elegant residences. It was about the time now spoken of that the migration of the wealthy classes of our population from the lower part of the city became most animated; and not only Broadway in the vicinity now spoken of, but all the neighboring streets, received their influx of fashionable residents, and that section became the court end of the city, a position which it retained for some years, and still to some extent enjoys.

The most conspicuous public building in that section is Grace church, erected about the year 1846, on a very advantageous site for the display of its beautiful proportions; its position, at the point where the course of Broadway diverges at Tenth street, presents it in the front of the spectator looking up Broadway. Of this fashionable place of worship the Rev. Thomas H. Taylor has been pastor from the time of its erection until the present.

Above Fourteenth street the improvements have been so comparatively recent as not to justify extended notice. The church of the Puritans (Congregational), on the corner of Fifteenth street, has been built about twenty years, during which period Dr. Cheever has officiated as minister.

Among the public hotels may be mentioned the Albion, No. 769 (1852). St. Denis, corner of Eleventh street (1852). Union Place Hotel, No. 860 (1850). Eolian, No. 834 (1851).

BROADWAY, FROM TWENTIETH STREET TO FORTIETH STREET.

Abingdon road was the name of a pleasant cross road connecting Greenwich with the Great Post road, which branched off eastward from the present Broadway near Madison square. The "Post-road," or "Boston road" as it was originally called, was the first highway laid out through the length of the island; and the Bloomingdale road was a local thoroughfare leading to the hamlet of that name. This road, was widened in 1760, above Abingdon road, to about Fortieth street, to the width of four rods, in which condition it remained until the improvement of Broadway.

The topographical character of the island in this vicinity was of a broken and rocky character, diversified with swamps and a briery growth, with but slight attractions to the agriculturist; hence but a small portion was taken up by settlers prior to the City Charter of 1786, which granted to the City Corporation all the waste, vacant, and unpatented lands on the island. The earlier inhabitants in that vicinity were mechanics, tavern-keepers, &c., who found business occupations from travelers.

John Horn, a wheelwright, accumulated a considerable property in this vicinity, a large part of which remained in the family of that name until comparatively recent years. A portion of his property, situated along the west side of the present Broadway, from Twenty-first to Twenty-sixth street, was originally patented, in 1670, to Solomon Peters, a free negro. Horn established his wheelwright business in this vicinity, about 1736, on an acre of land leased to him by the Corporation.

South of the cross-road referred to was a swampy piece of land, containing about eleven acres, which belonged to the City Corporation, and by them was presented to Sir Peter Warren, in 1745, as a free gift. It was subsequently purchased by Henry Gage, who, after the Revolution (having returned to England), sold to Isaac Varian for six hundred pounds. Mr. Varian also owned a considerable tract, situated on the west side of Broadway, between Twenty-sixth and Thirty-first streets, containing about fifteen acres, which he bought from the family of John De Witt, in 1787, at the price of twelve hundred and eighty pounds. Mr. Varian also pursued the avocation of a farmer, and resided in his old homestead until his death. A view of this building, which has only been demolished within the past few years, presents the most suggestive idea of the condition of Broadway in early times which can be produced.

THE VARIAN HOMESTEAD, BROADWAY.

On the east side of the present Broadway, from Fourteenth street to Nineteenth street, and covering some eight or ten blocks, including part of Union square, was the estate of Tiebout Williams, next adjoining which was the Krom-Messie property, running back to near the Second avenue, in about the centre of which Gramercy park is now situated. Adjoining this estate, and extending around the Post-road, was the property of John Watts, a leading citizen of New York. The streets from Twenty-first to Twenty-sixth street, and also Madison and Fourth avenues, cross this property.

At the junction of the old Post-road and the Bloomingdale road was a piece of land belonging to the Corporation, which for many years was used as a Potter's field. In 1806, at which period measures for the defense of the city were in progress, this locality was ceded to the United States Government for the site of an arsenal, for which purpose it was occupied for some years. In 1823 a society was organized, composed of several public-spirited citizens (among those of whom now living may be mentioned the names of James W. Gerard, Hiram Ketchum, and Daniel Lord), who procured an act of incorporation under the name of "The Society for the Reformation of Juvenile Delinquents." Having obtained possession of the arsenal grounds, they erected a House of Refuge, which was opened January 1, 1825, with nine inmates (six boys and three girls). The two stone buildings which were erected were each one hundred and fifty feet in length and thirty-eight in breadth, one being appropriated for boys and the other for girls. The grounds were inclosed within stone walls seventeen feet in height, but within the inclosure the appearance of the place was made to some extent attractive by handsome shrubbery and high cultivation. This establishment was destroyed by fire in 1838, and a few years afterward Madison square, which now adorns that vicinity, was projected.

THE HOUSE OF REFUGE, AT THE JUNCTION OF BROADWAY AND THE OLD POST-ROAD. ERECTED IN 1824; BURNED, 1838.

Adjoining Madison square, on the east and north sides, Caspar Samler owned the lands covering eight or ten blocks, his fronts lying on the east side of Broadway and on the north side of the old Post-road. The present Fifth and Madison avenues, and the streets from Twenty-sixth to Thirty-third street, cross this property.

The diagram annexed, illustrating this portion of the street, shows its condition at the period when the plan of the city was established under the Act of 1807. The time may be stated as between 1810 and 1820.

With respect to the more recent history of this portion of Broadway, as well as of that still further toward the suburbs, the compiler has not thought it properly within the limits of this article, as the buildings now existing are those originally built on the street, and have no past history beyond the remembrance and notice of the present generation.

...the colonial history of Suriname. The personal incidents in the life of an individual, such as that of Jan Huis, conspicuous for his efforts to secure for Dutch origin the privileges to which they were entitled as "children of Suriname," and to maintain, for the colony, their civil and municipal rights.

the program of the meeting held on the 22nd of November, 1964. The results of the presentation of the papers described by reference in this paper. We have assumed that the results of the work of the author, both planned and unplanned, have been carried out.

Honorable Rip Van Dam.

The following paper was read before the New York Historical Society by Frederic De Peyster, Esq., then a Vice-President, but now President, of that distinguished body.

It relates to an interesting era in the colonial history of New York, and presents us with the principal incidents in the life of one of the popular leaders of his times, conspicuous for his efforts to secure to the inhabitants of Dutch origin the privileges to which they were entitled by the "Articles of Surrender," and to maintain, for the people at large, their civil and municipal rights.

It was delivered at the meeting held on the 4th of November, 1862, on the occasion of the presentation of the portraits described by Mr. De Peyster in this paper. We feel assured that the readers of the MANUAL will derive both pleasure and instruction from its perusal.

The present publication is from a copy of the original, deposited in the archives of the Historical Society—a Memoir of the Life and Times of the Hon. Rip Van Dam, in connection with the presentation of the portraits, on that occasion, of himself and wife.

MEMOIR.

MR. PRESIDENT—I invite the attention of yourself and the members present to the portraits on your right hand and left, which have a historic interest that well entitles them to a place in our Gallery of Art.

The portrait on your right is that of the Honorable Rip Van Dam, a prominent and influential citizen of New York, who took an active part in the political events to which I shall presently advert; conspicuous in our colonial annals for the results that flowed from them, and which added to the force of the current that gradually bore the colonies on to independence, and subsequently moulded them into the American Republic.

Mr. Van Dam administered the government of the province of New York during the interval between the death of Governor Montgomerie, which occurred on the 1st day of August, 1731, and the arrival of Governor Cosby, on the 1st day of August, 1732, in right of his position as senior member of the King's Council at the time.

The features indicate the calm but resolute firmness which characterized this political leader, whose popularity arose from the conviction of his adherents of the honesty of his motives, and of his unswerving devotion to their best interests.

These impressions, sustained by that confidence which is well said to be a "plant of slow growth," made the name of Van Dam a rallying point in many a contested struggle in the political strifes of the times, and often led the friends of popular rights and freedom to the goal of triumphant success under his skillful leadership.

The portrait on your left is that of Mrs. Van Dam. Of the period of their marriage and other circumstances connected with it, I shall take occasion hereafter to speak more particularly.

There is no record of which I am aware that tells the tale of her wedded or unwedded life; nor are there traditionary reminiscences preserved by her successive generations which relate to her domestic virtues and personal merit. There is, however, a circumstance, hereinafter referred to, which in part accounts for this deficiency.

With these general remarks, I take the opportunity here to introduce an extract of a letter on the subject, which Mrs. Emily Verplanck Goodwin, a lineal descendant of Mr. and Mrs. Van Dam, and the present owner of these portraits, has addressed to me:

"Accompanying this you have my note to the society, in which I can only repeat what I said before to Mr. Silliman, that the portraits have descended to me in direct succession, and have never, to our knowledge, been out of the family."

The letter to the society, also addressed to me, but officially in this case, is as follows:

HON. FREDERIC DE PEYSTER,

Second Vice-President of the New York Historical Society:

SIR—At the solicitation of B. D. Silliman, Esq., of Brooklyn, I present to the Historical Society of New York, to be placed in its library, the original portraits of Governor Rip Van Dam, and his wife Sara Van Dam, which have descended to me in direct succession.

My mother, Sarah Van Dam Mesier, was the daughter of Abraham Mesier and Cornelia White.

The mother of Cornelia White was Sarah Van Dam, the great-granddaughter of Rip Van Dam, who was Governor of New York.

I regret that I cannot promise any more interesting information

The portrait on your left is that of Miss Anne of their marriage and other circumstances, which I take occasion hereafter to speak more fully of.

The letter in the margin, also addressed to you, is as follows:

regarding them, but can only say that they have hung upon our walls from generation to generation, and have never been out of the family.

Very respectfully,

EMILY VERPLANCK GOODWIN.

Mr. Silliman, in transmitting to me the above letter of Mrs. Goodwin, remarks : " I think it must be more than thirty years since I first saw the portraits in old Mr. Dougherty's hall, and was then told by his family that they were original likenesses of Governor Rip Van Dam and his wife."

In the letter to me first mentioned, Mrs. Goodwin stated further that " among the papers of my lamented father, I find the following brief notes :

" Rip Van Dam had a son Rip Van Dam, who also had a son of the same name, who was the father of Sarah Van Dam, who married James White.

" So, then, the mother of my grandmother was the great-granddaughter of Rip Van Dam, the President of the Council.

" The second husband of Sarah Van Dam was Jacob Van Voorhes. The family left New York at the time it was occupied by the English, and when the city was burned they, with others, lost much valuable property, which may, perhaps, account for so little being known of the history of the family at this time."

The main object of Mrs. Goodwin is to show the direct line of her descent from President Van Dam, and by which she came into possession of these original portraits.

Mrs. Goodwin having accordingly soon after put me in possession of these interesting relics of a bygone age ; they have been restored in the manner to which I shall presently advert, agreeably to the promise which I made to her at the time of the delivery of the paintings to me.

In compliance with the express request of the liberal donor, I now have the honor to present them to the society in her name, and will file with the Secretary the several letters above referred to.

By this act of presentation, the portraits are now the property of this institution. I propose to make a few additional remarks in further explanation of the subject, and shall then present a condensed memoir of President or Governor Van Dam, as he is indiscriminately described in the times with which his name is connected.

At this distant date, it is impracticable to state positively when or by whom these portraits were painted. As time rolls on, circumstances familiar in their day fade from memory, and, as in other instances of identification of a more positive character, we are left to judge from analogy and reasonable conjecture of the facts connected with the case in question.

It is improbable that they were painted in Holland; for no evidence, written or oral, exists to prove that Mr. and Mrs. Van Dam ever visited the fatherland.

I have looked into Dunlap's "History of the Rise and Progress of the Arts of Design," and find that the only artist who lived here in the time of President Van Dam was John Smybert, as he spelled his name on the picture of "Dean Berkely and family," now in Yale College.

Dunlap thus alludes to Mr. Smybert's influence, and that of his works upon Copley, Trumbull, and Allston:

" 'Copely,' he remarked, 'was a youth of thirteen years of age at the time of Smybert's death, and probably had instructions from him, certainly from his pictures. Trumbull having retired from the army in the winter of 1776 or the spring of 1777, because his commission as deputy adjutant-general was dated in September instead of (as he thought it ought to be) in June, resumed his study of painting in Boston, in 1777, amidst the works of Copley, and in the room which had been built by Smybert, in which remained many of his works.' Allston said, in a letter to a friend, after speaking of the pictures of Pine: 'But I had a higher master in the head of Cardinal Bentivoglio, from Vandyke, in the college library (Cambridge), which I obtained permission to copy one winter's vacation. This copy from Vandyke was by Smybert, an English painter, who came to this country with Dean, afterward Bishop Berkeley. At that time it seemed to me perfection, but when I saw the original, some years afterward, I had to alter my notions of perfection. However, I am grateful to Smybert for the instruction he gave me; his works rather.' 'Berkeley,' as he added, 'in his benevolent project for spreading knowledge in America, did not neglect the important agency of the arts of design; and having experience of the character and talents of Smybert, who had been his fellow-traveler in Italy, chose him as the professor of drawing, painting, and architecture for his intended institution.'

"Of Mr. Smybert, Mr. Verplanck observes that 'he was not an artist of the first rank; for the arts were then at a very low ebb in England; but the best portraits which we have of the eminent magistrates and divines of New England and New York, who lived between 1725 and 1750, are from his pencil."

Horace Walpole, in his anecdotes of painting in England, also gives some account of him, and I here quote the concluding words of Walpole, inserted in Dunlap's account of Smybert: "As our disputes and politics have traveled to America, is it not possible that poetry, and painting too, will revive amidst those extensive tracts as they increase in opulence and empire, and where the stores of nature are so various, so magnificent, and so new?" This was written in 1762. I hope that I will be excused for one more extract on the same subject, that which was written by President Styles, formerly of Yale College: "Mr. Smybert, the portrait painter, who in 1728 accompanied Dr. Berkeley, then Dean of Derry, and afterward Bishop of Cloyne, from Italy to America, was employed, while at Florence, by the Grand Duke of Tuscany, to paint two or three Siberian Tartars, presented to the Duke by the Czar of Russia. This Mr. Smybert, upon his landing with Mr. Berkeley in Narragansett Bay, instantly recognized the Indians here to be the same people as the Siberian Tartars whose pictures he had taken."

From the suggestion of Mr. Verplanck, it is probable that John Smybert painted these portraits of Mr. and Mrs. Van Dam. They are well spoken of by several of our resident artists; and, if by Smybert, are thought to be his best style.

We have learned that they have been in the possession of the descendants of Governor Van Dam since they were painted, and handed down from sire to son, until they reached the hands of the generous lady who has placed them permanently in our Gallery of Art.

In the discharge of this part of a pleasant duty, I take occasion also to say a word or two respecting Mr. Silliman, whom to name is sufficient for those who enjoy his acquaintance and esteem him for his many virtues. He it was who first drew my attention to these paintings; and it was through his influence with the donor, that I was enabled to follow up successfully the inquiry which resulted in their becoming the property of the society. To him, therefore, the society is also under obligations for his friendly offices.

When the portraits were delivered to me, I found them much defaced, and with rents in the canvas, but capable of being nearly, if not quite restored to their original condition. The frames were worm-eaten, and when the rims to which the canvas was attached were removed they fell into pieces. I would not allow a piece to be lost: they were skillfully grooved together, and the frames regilt and colored afresh, in the identical style and manner in which they were originally.

The portraits themselves have been restored by the best talent in this line of art that could be secured in this city for accomplishing the work with artistic taste and skill. It is due to Mr. Lazarus, in his successful attempt, to award to him the merit, which he has not only in this instance attained, but for his acknowledged ability in this branch of the art.

Their delivery to me on the condition of being properly restored made it necessary to bring the subject before the Executive Committee, and thereupon a sub-committee was appointed, consisting of Mr. Schell and myself, to carry out the wishes of Mrs. Goodwin. This duty has been discharged. The committee are more than compensated by finding that these memorials of colonial days, in all their original freshness, have become part of the collection of the society.

I consider the continued possession of these portraits through successive generations in the same family, and the traditionary history which confirms the fact of their identity, as sufficient to establish their authenticity.

This is the impression, like that of their family seal, which gives validity to these old and valued documents, and proves their genuineness.

In order that I may not trespass too far upon your attention before proceeding with the memoir of Mr. Van Dam, I beg leave to mention some of the authorities to which I am indebted for the information contained in the remainder of this paper.

In the investigation of our colonial history, every inquirer on the subject is aware how much our citizens at large, but especially of our State, are indebted to the extensive researches, the ability, zeal, and care which our fellow-member John Romeyn Brodhead, Esq., has devoted to the procuring of the invaluable documents obtained by him in Holland, England, and France, illustrative of this history.

He is also aware of similar benefits conferred upon the State, and upon every student of its history, by Dr. E. B. O'Callaghan in his arrangement and elucidation of its documentary history, made under his able and efficient direction.

They have both, independently of their other distinguished services in this branch of literature, severally erected a monument to themselves, "vere perennius."

It is with great pleasure I also acknowledge my obligations to Mr.

Valentine, Clerk of the Common Council, and the indefatigable editor of the MANUAL of the Corporation of the city of New York.

His laborious investigations, judicious action, and discriminating judgment have made this important work a storehouse of useful, rare, and exceedingly interesting matter in elucidation of the early history of this city and State.

Unlike the Scottish laird, who carefully superintended the erection of his own mausoleum and finished it in time to receive his mortal remains, our esteemed fellow-member keeps pace with each revolving year in improving and enlarging his great work, thus making it more and more worthy of his name and fame, and the commendation of the generations to succeed us.

The spirit of the Spanish salutation, "May you live a thousand years," in Mr. Valentine's case inculcates a sentiment peculiarly appropriate; for this useful work in which he is so earnestly engaged, and to which, year after year, he is making many valuable additions, enables him in its arrangement to rescue from oblivion many priceless materials, which would otherwise have perished from neglect and "the rust of time."

The publication and prosecution of this work, under the patronage of our city fathers, is a memorable exception to these words of Tacitus, "Initia magistratum nostrorum meliora et firma finis inclinat:"—The commencement of our official duties is characterized by greater vigor and alacrity; but toward the end they flag.

The MANUAL, instead of flagging, by general acknowledgment, in every essential respect, "crescit eundo."

I now proceed to give a brief memoir of Mr. Van Dam, which the presentation of his portrait has induced me to prepare. He was a type of that class of men who at different times have made this city their home, and by their good sense, energy of action, and sound counsel have associated their names with its extraordinary progress and substantial welfare.

The industry, liberal principles, and acknowledged integrity of the more prominent of the early Dutch settlers gave the first impulse to this progress. The local advantages which New York peculiarly possessed stimulated and rewarded individual efforts, and the imitation of those earlier traits of character has seldom failed to promote the welfare of all who have here "cast their lot," and have worthily identified their names with its annals.

Rip Van Dam was born at Albany,* but in what year is now unknown. Other members of his family remained in that city, and were engaged in trade many years after his removal to New York.†

Mr. Van Dam was married, in the Dutch Church, in New York, to Sara Vanderspeigle, the daughter of a wealthy baker in the latter city.‡ on the 14th of September, 1684,§ and the occasion has been noticed as one of the notable events of that period.||

In early life he was a merchant,¶ and he sometimes commanded in person his good sloop Catharine, which was engaged in the West India trade,Ⓜ as McDougal and Glover were also engaged in later periods of our history.

At as early a period as May, 1690, he was one of the most prominent of the merchants in this commercial city, and united with Stephen de Lancey, Jacobus Van Cortlandt, Colonel Abraham de Peyster, Nicholas Wm. Stuyvesant, Balthazer Bayard, Isaac de Foreest, and others, "merchants, traders, and others, the principal inhabitants" of the province, in petitioning the king and queen (William and Mary) for relief from the arbitrary measures adopted by Leisler and his adherents, and executed on those who opposed him.††

From 1693 to 1695 he was an assistant alderman of the North Ward, in this city;‡‡ but, in April, 1699, when he ran for alderman on the anti-Leislerian or opposition ticket, he was defeated §§

He was ever alive to the interests of this city and province, and was always among the most active of those who sought their protection. Thus, in March, 1700, he united with Nicholas Bayard, Robert Watts, Elie Bowdinote, Stephen de Lancey, Jacobus Van Cortlandt, Barent Schuyler, Joseph Billop, Adolphus Phillipse, and others, "merchants of New York, in America," in praying the king to separate the government of New England from that of New York, in consequence of the "many and great inconveniences which dayly happened," to the detriment of trade, the retarding of justice, and the discouragement of industry in every portion of the province.|| In December, 1701, he united with the Protestants of this province, in petitioning the king for a redress of grievances to which they had been subjected by the Earl of Bellmont, by whose orders they had been treated as "disaffected and infamous," "turned out of their places in the government," and otherwise abused.* In February, 1711, he united with all the principal merchants of the city in praying for orders that men-of-war might be restrained from transporting beef, pork, and flour to the West India Islands, and rum, sugar, and other West Indian produce, from the islands, as merchandise, as they had done, to the injury of those who were engaged in that trade.†

Besides his business as a trader, Rip Van Dam united with James Mills in that of shipbuilding; and they established a shipyard in the rear of Trinity church-yard, on the North river.‡ It is not known, however, to what extent this branch of his business was carried.

Among the grievances to which New York was subjected by the Earl of Bellomont, through his resident lieutenant-governor (Nanfan), was the seizure of vessels for assumed violations of the revenue laws;§ and some of the vessels in which Mr. Van Dam was interested were subjected to this treatment.¶ He immediately joined the opposition party; and in connection with Nicholas Bayard and others he became prominent in the proceedings connected with the addresses to the king and parliament, which Nanfan considered libelous, and for signing which Captain Hutchins, Colonel Bayard, and others were arrested and committed to prison.¶¶

On the arrival of Lord Cornbury he found the province in the greatest disorder;  and the most violent measures were adopted by the leaders, on either hand, to secure or to maintain their supremacy. The opposition, among whom was Mr. Van Dam, secured the power; †† and in June, 1702, the governor suspended from office, as members of the council, Chief Justice Atwood, Collector Weaver, Colonel Abraham de Peyster, and others. ‡‡ and appointed Mr. Van Dam and his friends in their stead§§—a reward, it is probable, for his activity in procuring evidence against his predecessors for the purpose of effecting their removal. || This change was approved by the queen in council, January 21, 1702-3; ¶¶ and the power of Mr. Van Dam and his friends was established beyond question.

In September, 1702, in connection with Colonel de Peyster and an officer of the garrison, Mr. Van Dam was appointed by Lord Corn-bury to inspect the fort in New York, its garrison and armament; and the report of their condition, from the governor to the home government, is exceedingly interesting.⁹

On the 20th of October, 1702, at its session in Jamaica, L. L., whither it had fled to avoid a prevailing sickness, Mr. Van Dam took his seat at the council board;† and he appears to have been punctual in his attendance in that body during the many years of his service therein as a member.‡

In June, 1706, Mr. Van Dam was appointed a commissioner for adjusting the claim which had been made by the Mohegans for lands near the Connecticut line, and within that Colony.§

He continued in the council until the 1st of July, 1731, when, in consequence of the death of Governor Montgomerie, as senior counsellor, he became President of that body, and, ex officio, acting governor of the province.||

The public service requiring a provision for the support of the post at Oswego and for the defense of Albany, President Van Dam called the assembly together in August, 1731,¶ when various measures, besides that referred to, were acted on and approved by him.

During his administration of the government of the colony, President Van Dam resisted the attempts which were made to establish courts of chancery within the colony, as Governor Montgomerie had done before him; and, like that officer, he steadily refused to take the oaths as chancellor, notwithstanding the damage which it inflicted on the revenue, and in open violation of the instructions of the home government.⁹⁰ As no other court possessed authority to compel the payment of quit-rents, or to adjudicate contested titles, it will be seen that the anti-rentists of that day were favored by this course; and it is not unlikely it led to the serious consequences of Governor Cosby's administration.

President Van Dam was succeeded by Governor Cosby, August 1, 1732,†† when the latter demanded one-half the fees which had been collected by the former during his administration of the government, and instituted a suit by way of information therefor in the equity side of the exchequer. Mr. Van Dam resisted, and great excitement ensued in consequence of the conflict of authority within, the court itself, in the decisions which were rendered—that of Chief-Justice Morris having sustained Mr. Van Dam, those of Judges De Lancey and Phillipse supporting Governor Cosby.^o The subject was subsequently dropped, and Mr. Van Dam retained the entire amount, while the proceedings of Governor Cosby “gave general disgust.”†

The change of parties in power, which was produced by the accession to authority of Governor Cosby, was productive of the most violent proceedings on either hand, and all the former hostilities were immediately resumed.

In the latter part of 1733, Mr. Van Dam presented charges to the home government against Governor Cosby,‡ and thenceforth he became the recognized head of the popular party,§ and one of the principal of John Peter Zenger’s supporters in his violent opposition to the government.||

So determined was the opposition of Mr. Van Dam and that of his friends that the governor asked permission to remove him from the council;¶ and a majority of the council refused to sit with him at the council board.^{oo} In August, 1735, the lords of trade advised the Queen to remove him from the council, agreeably to the governor’s request,†† but the recommendation does not appear to have been acted on.

Impatient at the delay which had occurred in December, 1735, Governor Cosby secretly suspended Mr. Van Dam from the council, without authority from England;‡‡ which, as soon as it became known, was followed by an intense excitement among the people, and not without some attempts to disturb the peace. §§

In January, 1736, the first effect of Mr. Van Dam’s charges against Governor Cosby was seen in an order of council, which forbade the latter from occupying a seat in the legislative council of the province—an abuse of his power which had formed the fifth and sixth articles of the charges which had been presented to the home government against the Governor, by Mr. Van Dam. |||

The Governor, however, did not live to receive the order. He died in March, 1736, when the fact of Mr. Van Dam’s suspension was first published, and George Clarke assumed the duties of governor. ¶¶ Mr. Van Dam demanded the commission, provincial seal, &c., refusing to recognize the validity of his removal,^{ooo} protested against Mr.

Clarke's assumption of authority,* and served copies of his protest on the members of the assembly.†

The latter had assembled for the discharge of their official duties, when Mr. Morris, speaker of the house, read an address to the members, and, in company with the friends of Mr. Van Dam, immediately afterward left the chamber. Those who remained, being less than a quorum, were adjourned by the acting governor, without having been called to order by the speaker.‡

The effect of this protest was also seen in September, 1736, when the assembly was again convened by the governor. Before the members could be induced to organize the house, they resolved to inquire into the legality of Mr. Van Dam's suspension, and two members were sent to the acting governor, desiring copies of those clauses in the commission and instructions which related to the suspension of Counselors. This request was complied with, and the session was prorogued a day, in order that the members might consult informally on the subject before the house should be organized. At the urgent request of those members who were friends of the government, the session was further postponed or prorogued for a month by the acting governor, "as a matter of necessity, and with as good a grace as he could," considering it as a popular triumph.§

In the meantime, the Corporation of the city of New York became involved in the trouble, through the necessity which existed for an annual appointment of the municipal officers by the governor of the province. Which of the two possessed the legal authority was a delicate question, and they proposed that both Mr. Van Dam and Mr. Clarke should desist. The latter peremptorily declined to comply with the request, and on the 29th of September he reappointed the officers of the past year.

In the afternoon of the same day, Mr. Van Dam summoned the council to meet at his house, when, in the presence of one member only, no other attending, he appointed a mayor, recorder, sheriff, and coroner; and the most disastrous consequences were threatened.

The receipt of the additional instructions by Mr. Clarke, hereafter referred to, disposed of the subject before there had been any rupture; and the officers who had been appointed by him were continued in their seats.|| assembled, but before an organization could be effected they resumed the informal discussion of Mr. Van Dam's suspension and the legitimacy of Mr. Clarke's administration. This was continued all day, when they were prorogued by the acting governor until the following day; but, fortunately for Mr. Clarke, and for the province, at an early hour on the 13th an additional instruction from the queen, concerning the form of prayer to be used for the royal family, was received by Mr. Clarke—a circumstance which appears to have been received by all parties as incontrovertible evidence that the administration had been recognized by the home government—and universal quiet was immediately restored.*

In the meantime, as Governor Cosby had done before, Clarke continued to press the home government for the removal of Mr. Van Dam from the council,† an admission of the illegality of his suspension and of the want of legal authority in Mr. Clarke to act as governor of the province. At the same time, Mr. Van Dam appears to have petitioned the privy council for redress of grievances;‡ and both parties, therefore, were duly represented in England.

On the 29th of October, 1736, the controversy was terminated by the receipt of a commission as lieutenant-governor by Clarke;§ and peace was restored to the province.

Of Mr. Van Dam's property little is known beyond the general information already referred to, that he was one of the most considerable merchants in the city; and that he was one of the proprietors of "The Nine Partners" in Dutchess county.||

He appears, notwithstanding his constant participation in public affairs, to have retained his simple, primitive habits, even in his extreme old age. He was emphatically Dutch; and he was not well versed in the English language at any period of his life.¶

He died on the 10th of June, 1749, in extreme old age;Ⓢ leaving two sons, Rip and Isaac, and three daughters, Elizabeth Kiersted, Mary Parcel, and Catalyntie Thong.††

Mr. Bradford. The other day several of my Neighbors and I met together to read the Scheme for Encouraging Hemp and Iron, which you lately Printed; and after it was read, one of the Company began to Enquire, Who was the Author? But the rest said, It was no matter to them who was the Author, they were to consider the Scheme, and see if it was for the Country's good; If it was, they might be sure, he that made it was a Friend to the Country. We discours'd every part of it, and all of us declared our liking of it, wishing heartily that the Assembly may pass it. Every body spoke their Thoughts of the Success it might expect to have with the Council and the Assembly; and we all concluded that it wou'd not meet with any Rubs there, for we believed they were all Friends and Well-Wishers to the Country; but if any of them, for any By-ends of their own, should dislike it, we believ'd they wou'd be unwilling to oppose it, for fear of being thought Enemies to their Country. The main Thing that made us fear that it won't pass, is that may be the Governour would not pass it without he was paid for it, because other Governour's have been paid for Acts to strike Paper Money. But, says I, the Scheme tells us, the Governour has an Estate in the Country, and if the Country will be made Richer by the Scheme, then he will have an Interest in passing it; and I believe, if he would not, you or somebody in the Gazette would have told us so ; therefore I think this is our time to get it done ; for another Governour that has no Estate in the Country won't pass it, unless he is well paid for it. Ay, says another, sure enough, and the Assembly will soon find that out, when they meet. Well, says another, What do you think of the Blank that is left for the Time that the Paper Money is to be Current ? May be he means to have it sunk soon, by a great Tax, and I should not like that, it will fall too heavy upon us. Says I, we need not fear that the Assembly may make it Current as long as they will, and make the Tax easie, for as long as the Fond is good, the Credit of the Paper Money will be good. This pleased the whole Company, and we parted, Resolving to set it forward as much as lay in our power, fearing we should never have such another Opportunity, and seeing plainly the good it will do the Country ; and that we shall be Udone if we do not succeed.—I bid.

George Clarke, Esq : Lieut. Governour and Commander in Chief of the Province of New York, and the Territories thereon depending, &c.

There is no Return yet made of the Election of the Officers for the North Ward. The Candidates put up for Aldermen, are Johannes Burger and Christopher Banker. Mr. Banker has the majority of votes, but Mr. Burger insists upon a scrutiny, which is not yet over.

New York, October 10.—Last Night arrived here Capt. Ratsey, in about 9 Weeks from Cocos, with about 190 Palatines.—New York Gazette, Oct. 3, 1737.

Sir, Your last Gazette, tells us, That a Scrutiny was demanded on the Pole between Mr. Banker and Mr. Burger, (Candidates for Aldermen of the North Ward) in which Scrutiny we apprehend there is a warm struggle to determine which are Freeholders, and which are not; and so nice an Examination into the Titles of Mens Estates, its feared, will be of ill consequence. In our North Ward Mr. Berger insists upon Non-Residents having a Right to vote, which being allowed, he gained 5 or 6 Votes, and Mr. Banker lost the same number of Votes. But the scrutiny is not yet ended. Upon this Mr. Correcht complains of an undue Election in Montgomery Ward where Mr. Man was returned a Common Council Man, by reason of Non-Residents being allowed in that Ward, otherwise, by the Votes of the Residents, Mr. Cortrecht has a majority of about six. This matter is to be heard and determined in Common Council, and no doubt the Non-Residents will fare alike in both Wards; and if Non-Residents are not allowed to vote, then Mr. Cortrecht will carry the Election for Common Council in Montgomery Ward. But then the Assembly have determined, That Non-Residents have a Right to vote.—Ibid.

Moses Slaughter, Stay Maker, from London, has brought with him a Parcel of extraordinary good and Fashionable Stays of his own making, of several Sizes and Prices. The Work of them he will warrant to be good, and for Shape, inferiour to none that are made.

He lodges at present at the House of William Bradford next Door but one to the Treasurer's near the Fly Market, where he is ready to suit those that want, with extraordinary good Stays. Or he is ready to wait upon any Ladys or Gentlewomen that please to send for him to their Houses. If any desire to be informed of the Work he has done, let them enquire of Mrs. Elliston in the Broad-street, or of Mrs. Nichols in the Broadway, who have had his work.—Ibid.

New York, October 24.—We hear that the Scrutiny between Mr. Burger and Mr. Banker is determined, and the following Persons are elected for the North Ward of this City, viz.

Christopher Banker (Merchant) Alderman.

William Verdenbergh, Assistant.

Simon Cregier and Isaac Stoutenburgh, Assessors.

Stephen Bourdet, Collector. And

George Wils and Barent Barhite, Constables.

The Evening was concluded by the City being illuminated, and other Demonstrations of Joy and Satisfaction, more than of late, in that all distinction of Party and Faction being Removed.—New York Gazette, November 7, 1737.

Mr. Bradford; There being a new and unusual sect or society of Persons of late appeared in our native Country, and from thence spread into some other Kingdoms and Common Wealths, and at last has extended to these parts of America, their Principle, Practices and Designs not being known nor by them published to the World, has been the reason that in Holland, France, Italy, and other Places they have been suppress. All other Societies that have appeared in the World have published their Principles and Practices, and when they meet set open their Meeting-house Doors for all that will come in and see and hear them, but this Society called FREE MASONS, meet with their Doors shut, and a Guard at the outside to prevent any to approach near to hear or see what they are doing. And as they do not publish their Principles or Practices, so they oblige all their Proselytes to keep them secret, as may appear by the severe Oath they are obliged to take at their first admittance. Which Oath is as follows, viz.

I, A. B., Hereby solemnly Vow and Swear in the Presence of Almighty God and this Right Worshipful Assembly, That I will Hail and Conceal, and never Reveal the Secrets or Secrecy of Masons or Masonry, that shall be revealed unto me; unless to a True and Lawful Brother, after due Examination, or in a just and Worshipful Lodge of Brothers and Fellows well met.

I further more Promise and Vow, That I will not Write them, Print them, Mark them, Carve them, or Engrave them, or cause them to be Written, Printed, Marked, Carved, or Engraved on Wood or Stone, so as the Visible Character or Impression of a Letter may appear, whereby it may be unlawfully obtained.

All this under no less Penalty than to have my Throat cut, my Tongue taken from the Roof of my Mouth, my Heart pluck'd from under my Left Breast, them to be buried in the Sands of the Sea, the Length of a Cable Rope from Shore, where the Tide ebbs and flows twice in 24 Hours, my Body to be burnt to Ashes and be scatter'd upon the Face of the Earth, so that there shall be no more Remembrance of me among Masons. So help me God.—New York Gazette, November 28, 1737.

London, Sept. 20.—Yesterday the Lord De La War kissed his Majesty's Hand on his being appointed Captain and Colonel of the first Troop of Life Guards. And it is said General Pauton, Governour of Dartmouth, will be appointed Governour of New York.—Ibid.

S. D.

That I was in the City of New York walking upon the South side of the Town, and as I stood upon the Dock I saw a Cart drawn by two Oxen and two Horses, and a White Man to drive it. Many Spectators saw it, as well as I, and wondered to see it drive so furiously. I asked whose Team it was? Answer was made, That it was Co M—'s. I asked, Where they were going, that they drove so furiously. Answer was made, It was going to M——. By this time I saw the Team run furiously into the River, in sight of all the Beholders, where it Perished. But so soon as the Team was sunk, I saw a great Mastiff dog go into the River and fetch the driver out, and did shake him. And the Driver turn'd instantly into a Beast with a pair of Horns upon his head. —New York Gazette, April 3, 1738.

A SONG for the Free Masons.

REJOYCE, O ye Masons ! and Cast away Care,
 Since Beauty for Masonry now doth declare ;
 The Alliance is made, the Fair are your Friends,
 The defie all the Spite, wheresoever it tends :
 For Wisdom to Beauty such Homage will pay,
 That nought but a Fool durst refuse to obey.
 Then Slander be silent, for their Colours we wear,
 And the Honour of Masons is safe in their care.

HERE the Question may be put, How the Honour of the Ladies, or the Fair (for it is all one) will be safe among the Free-Masons, since there is an Alliance made between them, as it is said ? The Answer to this Captious Question may be found in the following Verses, turned in favour of the Ladies, or Fair.

A Parody of the same Verses for the Ladies.

REJOYCE, O ye Ladies, and cast away Care,
 Since Masonry for Beauty now doth declare ;
 The Alliance is made, Masons are your Friends,
 The defie all the spite, Wheresoever it tends,
 For Secret to Beauty such Homage will pay,
 That nought but a Blab will refuse to obey.
 Then Slander be silent, for their Aprons we wear,
 And the Honour of Ladies is safe in their Care.

Note. Again, that there is herein a perfect Circle, the Queerest and slyest Querk in the Art of Reasoning. For the Honour of the Free-Masons will be safe by the Secrecy of the Ladies, (since every one knows how they can keep a secret) and the Honour of the Fair, which might run some Risk among the Free-Masons, will be screened and Safe by the secrecy of the Society, since it is one of their statutes, and a Fundamental Rule of their Fraternity, that they shall not reveal what passeth most secretly in their Lodges.

Spectatum admisse risum teneatis amici.

Horat. in Arte Poet.

i. e. Ye Friends that are admitted to this Sight for bear Laughing.

MR. BRADFORD,

Be pleased to insert the ensuing Lines in your next Paper, and if they prove agreeable I have my wish. When I first put Pen to Paper, I proposed to send you my Thoughts upon the Elaborate Performance which was handed about Town the other Day, Entitled (WIT'S) alias (Lack WITTS Journal) but upon more mature Consideration, I was perscaded, the bare Reading of the Paper would sufficiently Entitle the Authour to the Applause he justly Merits; and for his future Encouragement, I beg leave to recommend to his Perusal a few Lines of a modern Poet.

A little Learning is a dangerous Thing,
 Drink deep, or taste not the Pyrrhonian spring :
 Where shallow Dra oxicate the Brain,
 But drinking lary grain.

Pope.

Now for a little homespun Poetry.

The Mind oppress'd, with heavy Cares of State,
Mourns over the Troubles that attend the Great ;
The poor Man envy's the Statesman Wealth and Store,
Curses the God's and Stars for being born Poor.
On a gay Morn, beneath a silent Shade,
As I lay pining, for a too Charming Maid ;
Methought I heard great Jove cry out aloud,
And those sage Words came Thund'ring thro' a Cloud.
Ye foolish Mortals, will ye never learn,
True Happiness from Misery to discern ?
Know that from Wisdom springs all human Joys,
All else is Phantoms and meer giddy Toys,
Contentment gives to weary'd Pilgrims rest,
Makes Mankind happy, and all Stations blest.—Z.

He uttered 3 of these Counterfeit Bills on Friday last: The 3 Names of the Signers (viz. Ja. Alexander, S. Johnson and Ja. Roosevelt.) seem all to have been wrote by the same hand (and a very bad) Hand. The Impression looks somewhat feint and obscure in comparison of the Original, and done on much worse Paper. Upon the Examination of the above Van Voorhees he confessed, that he had those 3 Bills of Samuel Mames, who came Passenger in the same Vessel, and went on board a Sloop for Albany on Friday last, who (he said) had a Roll of them as big as the small of his Leg. FOR D. T. VALENTINE'S MARVAL GESS.

THE MAJOR & KNAPP, ENG. MFG. & LTH. CO. 149 BROADWAY, N. Y.

THE KEYSER ESTATE, COR. 4th (PARK) AV. & 40th ST.

George Clarke, Esq. His Majesty's Lieutenant Governour of this Province. She was the eldest Daughter of the late hon. Edward Hyde, Esq; who descended from one of the most ancient Families in England. They were originally of the Principality of Wales, but settled at Hyde in Cheshire about one hundred years before William the Conqueror came to England, which has ever since been the Seat of the Family. The two Noble Families of the Clarendons and Rochesters are descended from that of the Hydes, as was the late Queens, Mary and Anne, from the Clarendons. As for the Character of Mrs Clarke, It may be truly said that few or none equalled her; She was a most Affectionate, and (if I may be allowed the Expression) Dutiful Wife, a Tender and Indulgent Parent, a Kind Mistress, and a sincere Friend; She was Charitable to all that were objects of it, without exception, and ever delighted in doing good Offices; She was a fine graceful Person, and a most agreeable Companion, and of that Sweetness and Calmness of Temper, that nothing could ruffle it, or draw a hard Expression from her: She never failed attending on the Publick Worship of her Maker, when her Health would permit; and, perhaps, few more punctual in the Duties of the Closet; and, indeed, she dyed with that Calmness, Serenity and Resignation, that showed her truly Christian. Her Loss is not only greatly lamented by her own Family, and those who had the honour of being allyed to her, but as well by all who ever had the pleasure of conversing with her as the many who have felt her Bounty. On Thursday Evening she was Interred in a Vault in Trinity Church, with Remains of her Mother, and the late Lady Cornbury, in the most handsome and decent Manner: her Pall being supported by part of his Majesty's Council for this Province, and some of the Members of the General Assembly, and attended by all the Ministers, and most of the Principal Inhabitants of the City (Minute guns being fired from the Fort, and sundry Vessels in the Harbour, during the Solemnity). And as it was a Pleasure to Her in her Life, to feed the Hungry, so on the Day of her Funeral a Loaf of Bread was given to every Poor Person that would receive it.—New York Gazette, May 26, 1740.

New York, July 25.—Saturday last the Men belonging to the Custor and Pollux Privateers, having found that a Person who had entered on board them two or three Days before was a Woman, they seized upon the unhappy Wretch and duck'd her Three Times from the Yard-Arm, and afterwards made their Negroes tarr her all over from Head to Foot, by which cruel Treatment, and the Rope that let her into the Water having been indiscreetly fastened, the poor Woman was very much hurt, and continues now ill.—N. Y. Weekly Post Boy, July 25, 1743.

The Solar or Camera Obscura MICROSCOPE,

Which has given such general Satisfaction, and so great a concourse of Gentlemen and Ladies continually attend to see it, is now removed to the House of Mr. John Kip in Broad-street, where the Sun will serve all the Day long.

It is the most Entertaining of any Microscope whatsoever, and magnifies Objects to a most surprising Degree. The Animalculæ in several Sorts of Fluids, with many other living and dead Objects, too tedious to mention, will be shewn incredulously magnified, and at the same Time distinct, to the entire Satisfaction of the Spectators: As the Circulation of the Blood in a Frog's Foot, a Flea, a Fish's Tail, and in many small Insects, that an Hundred of them will not exceed the Bigness of a Grain of Sand, with their Young in them. This Curiosity was never shewn before by any Person that travels.

The unparallel'd MUSICAL CLOCK, made by that great Master of Machinery, DAVID LOCKWOOD. This great Curiosity performs by Springs only; it is a Machine incomparable in its Kind; it excells all others in the Beauty of its Structure, it is most entertaining in its Musick and plays the choicest Airs from the celebrated Operas with the greatest Nicety and Exactness. It performs with beautiful Graces, ingeniously and variously intermix'd, the French-Horn Pieces, perform'd upon the Organ, German and Common Flute, Flageolet, &c. as Sonatas, Concertos, Marches, Minuets, Jiggs and Scotch Airs, compos'd by Corelli, Alberoni, Mr. Handel, and other great and eminent Masters of Musick.

This beautiful Curiosity has been shewn twice before the KING, in his Royal Palace at St. James's, where his Majesty was pleas'd to make an Observation on the Excellence of its Beauty, and declar'd, He thought it the Wonder of this Age. It is allow'd by all who have seen it to be more worthy to adorn a King's Palace than of being exposed for a common sight.

The inside of this Machine may be view'd by Gentlemen and Ladies, and is to be seen from Eight in the Morning till Eight at Night.

Note.—This is the last Week of shewing the above Curiosities.—Ibid.

BY HIS EXCELLENCY

The Honourable GEORGE CLINTON, Esq; Captain General and Governor in Chief of the Province of New York, and Territories thereon depending in America, and Vice-Admiral of the same, &c.

A PROCLAMATION.

WHEREAS there is the greatest Reason to believe, that War has been for some time actually declared between the Courts of Great Britain and France; and I having been informed, that since the Account thereof has been brought into this Province, a great Quantity of Gun-Powder has been bought up, in order for Exportation; and having much at heart the Security of his Majesty's Subjects therein residing, which may be greatly endangered, should such Exportation be suffered; I HAVE therefore thought fit, by and with the Advice of his Majesty's Council for this Province, to issue this Proclamation hereby strictly enjoining all Persons residing, or that shall hereafter reside or come within my Government, not to export or cause to be exported any Gun Powder out of this Province, more than shall be sufficient for the Use of the Vessels carrying the same; and that by these Presents forbidding the Exportation of Gun Powder in greater Quantities, on any Pretence whatsoever; and I do hereby order and require the Collector, and other Officers of his Majesty's Customs, and all whom it may concern, to take Notice hereof, and govern themselves accordingly.

GIVEN under my hand and

New York, June 4.—Monday Night last died here the Honourable HENRY LANE, Esq; one of his Majesty's Council for this Province.—N. Y. Weekly Post Boy, June 4, 1744.

By a Sloop arrived here last Saturday Night in 8 Days from Cape Fear, we hear, that the two New York Privateers, with their Prize lately taken, were to sail in 4 or 5 Days for this Place. It is now said, that the Value of their Prize does not exceed 15,000 pounds Sterling.—Ibid.

A Mistake happening in our last, by saying the Person who was the unhappy Occasion of Mr. Fordhams being poisoned, had since absconded, it is but Justice to that unfortunate Man, to publish to the World, that that report is false, and that it is generally believed, by all the Circumstances attending it, that it was undesignedly done.—Ibid.

For the Benefit of my former neighbouring Benefactors, the same sort of Blanks that are to be sold by the Printer hereof, are also to be sold by Robert McAlpine, Book Binder in the Square.—Ibid.

New York, June, 11.—Wednesday last his Excellency our Governor embarked on board a Sloop for Albany, where he is to meet the Chiefs of the Five Nations of Indians, in order to renew and strengthen the Treaties of Peace and Friendship which have so long subsisted between this Government and those Nations; and the next day arrived an Express from the Eastward, with the Dispatches brought by His Majesty's Sloop Swallow into Boston; Those for this Government were immediately thereupon sent up after his Excellency, which overtook him at Kingston, in the County of Ulster, where War was declared against France, at the Head of the Regiment of that County, last Saturday Afternoon. The Packets for New Jersey, &c., were forwarded directly along.—N. Y. Weekly Post Boy, June 11, 1744.

The Earthquake felt at Boston on Sunday the 3d instant, was also felt by many Persons both in this City and on Long Island, at the same Time, but nothing so violent as 'twas said to be there. (c)

(*) Boston, June 4.—Yesterday a few Minutes past Ten o'Clock in the Forenoon was felt here, a violent Shock of an Earthquake, attended with a noise much like the Rattling of a Coach. It was so surprizing to the People at Meeting, that many of them left the Houses and ran into the Streets. The bricks were shook down from the Tops of many Chimneys in Town, and many Pieces of Stone Fence thrown down in the Country. Some reckon the shock near equal to that in the Year 1727, tho' it did not continue so long. Last night two small shocks were felt in the neighbouring Towns.—Ibid.

Saturday last arrived here our two Privateers the Brig Hester, Capt. Bayard, and Sloop Polly, Capt. Jefferies, with their Prize so much talk'd of, from Cape Fare; she is a beautiful Ship, almost new, of near 200 Tons, and laden chiefly with Cocoa; but we don't hear that the Pieces of Eight have been found, as was reported: After unloading her at Cape Fare, several of the Men took their shares and left the Vessels: It is said they share about 1,100 wt. of Cocoa per Man.—Ibid.

On the Death of HENRY LANE, Esq :

Much honoured Muse! accept this grateful Verse,
That offers sorrowing to thy sacred Hearse;
The Muse that with thee, social Pleasure knew,
Gives this last Wreath to thy lov'd Friendship due.
Excellence farewell! but not with thee depart
The smiles of Pleasure and over flow of Heart
The Friend sincere, the Soul that knew to bring,
Midst Winter's Age, the Gaiety of Spring:
Caress'd by all, by all for Mirth approv'd,
Envy'd by Age, and by the Youthful lov'd:
Honours like these thro' Time expanded fly,
And graft a Name on long Eternity.
Thy race now run, go! mount the blest Abode,

This is to give Notice to all Country Practitioners and others, that there are now in the Shop of Dr. James Henderson, and to be sold by his Widow, at a less rate than what they are generally sold for (for the best in disposing of them)

Y. Weekly Post Boy, June 18, 1744.*

His Majesty's Declaration of War, as also that for encouraging his Ships of War and Privateers, are both come to hand, but neither Time nor Room permits them to be in this Week's Paper ; but as both these Declarations will be printed at large immediately on his Excellency's Return, any of my Subscribers may then have them for sending for.—Ibid.

Four Privateers are now fitting up here with the utmost expedition, viz. one Brig and three Sloops, who will all be ready to sail in a few Days ; they are almost mann'd already ; it is impossible to express with what Alacrity the Volunteers enter on board, and 'tis affirmed by all that understand the Matter, that the Articles are the most favourable to the Men, of any Privateers since the Commencement of the War.—Ibid.

Several stout Privateers are fitting out at Boston, and two at New London, but none come up to the brisk and brave Rhode-Islanders.—Ibid.

After the Solemnity was over, they returned to his Excellency's House, where his Majesty's and the Royal Family's Healths, Success to his Majesty's Arms, and other Loyal Toasts were drank.—Ibid.

Part of the Gutter under the Window was broke away and lay by him. A few nights before the Accident happen'd he was very near losing his Life in the same Manner, having one Foot out on the Gutter when he was fortunately waked. The Night the Accident happen'd he went to Bed between 10 and 11 o'clock, and all the Doors of the House were fast when he was taken up, so that he could get out no other Way but thro' the Window.—Ibid.

New York, August 20.—On Monday last, departed this Life, in the 67th Year of his Age, and the next Day was very decently interred, the Worshipful and Worthy JOHN CRUGER, Esq., Mayor of this City, whose affable, humane, and most obliging Temper and Deportment, justly gained him the Respect and Esteem of all. He was elected and served as Alderman of the Dock Ward for Twenty-two Years successively, and in the Year 1739, (to the general Satisfaction of the Inhabitants) appointed Mayor, by his Honour the Lieut. Governor, in which Office he continued with great Applause to the Day of his Death. He was a most tender indulgent Parent, a kind Master, an upright Magistrate, and a good Friend; and those to whom he was known, must acknowledge he had and practised many excellent Qualities worthy of Imitation; and as he always lived a sober, religious good Life, so he died with great Calmness and Resignation. Mark the perfect Man, and behold the Upright; for the end of that Man is Peace. Psal. xxxvii. 37.—N. Y. Weekly Post Boy, August 20, 1744.

New York, February 3.—Monday Evening last arrived at Sandy Hook, and on Friday came into our Harbor, the Ship Ruby, Capt William Starkey, in about 11 weeks from Gibraltar, one of the Transport Ships with Soldiers for the garrison of Louisburg, she came out under Convoy of his Majesty's Ships the Dover, Capt. Collins, and Torrington, Capt. Hardy, of 40 Guns each, in Company with seven Sail of Transports more, viz, the Unity, Capt. Perry, Seanymp, Capt. Morecraft; the Friend's Golry, Capt. Milner; the Fell, Capt. Ormsby, and the Katherine Snow, Capt. Brown; all bound to Cape Breton, with two Regiments of Soldiers on board, commanded by the Colonels Fuller and Warburton: But as it was expected the Season of the Year would be too far advanced for them to go to Louisbourg this Winter, they have Orders to rendezvous in some of our Ports, till warmer Weather. This Ship parted from the rest of the Fleet the 19th of last Month, off the Capes of Virginia; where, 'tis thought, most of them have gone in; tho' we are told, that some of them are daily expected in here. They were all brave and healthy at parting, and the soldiers on board this Ship, consisting of two Companies and part of a third, just now landed here, in order to refresh themselves a little in our Fort.—*N. WHEREAS an open and unnatural Rebellion | has lately broke out in Scotland, in Favour | of a Popish Pretender to His Majesty's Do | minions: AND WHEREAS the Inhabitants | of this City have been afflicted last Autumn | with a malignant Fever: AND Considering | that these Afflictions call for our utmost | Humiliation and Prayer to Almighty GOD, that HE would, | of his infinite Mercy, remove them from us. Also one other Lot of Land lying about a Mile out of Town, containing near Forty-six Acres of good Land, some Part cleared and the rest well stock'd with Timber and Firewood, being one Half of a Lot of Land commonly called Leendert's-Land, which is to be laid out into Lots of five or six Acres, as the Purchasers shall agree, some Part of it being very fit for Tanners, Curriers & Gardeners. Also one Lot of very good Salt Meadow, containing upwards of Sixteen Acres, adjoining to the said Leendert's Land. New York, March 24.—On Saturday last departed this Life, after a very short Illness Mr. THOMAS NOBLE, of this City, Merchant, a Gentleman of a very fair Character, and uncommon zeal for Religion, more especially among the People called Moravians; of which he was one of the Chief in these Parts.—N. Y. Weekly Post Boy, March 24, 1746.

New York, March 31.—Wednesday last arrived here Capt. John Jauncey, late Commander of the Privateer Ship Lincoln of this Port, with a French Tartan Prize, taken by Capt. Rosewel, in the Privateer Brig Triton, on the 22d Day of February last, off the North Side of Hispaniola: She is called the Annunciation, Mons. Raponille Commander, and was bound from Marseilles for Cape Francois; Burthen about 140 Tons, had 23 Men on board, Passengers included, and but two Guns; her Cargo consists of Wine, Oil, Soap, Candles, Raisins, Almonds, Olives, Capers and other Pickles, Cordial Waters, Shoes and thread Stockings, &c., and would have been accounted a pretty valuable Prize, had it not been for a busy Rhode Island Privateer called the Hector, Capt. Higgins, who appeared in Light just as she struck to Capt. Rosewel, and by that Means claims a Part of her. Capt. Rosewel was in hopes of meeting some of her Acquaintance before he proceeded homewards, that, if so, the Owners might possibly get some Satisfaction for the Loss of so fine a Ship as the Lincoln was.*

* The Privateer Ship Lincoln, Capt. John Jauncey of New York, was lost on the Spanish Coast Dec. 11, 1745. She sunk while the Crew were "putting the Vessel on the Careen."—N. Y. Weekly Post Boy, March 17, 1745.

Saturday last of all his Majesty's Forces that arrived here lately from Gibraltar, bound for Cape Breton, march'd out of our Fort, and embarked on board the Transport Ship which brought them hither, then lying in the Harbour, in order to proceed on their intended voyage for Louisburgh, in Company with the others from Virginia, who, with the two Men of War their Convoy, are every Day expected off Sandy Hook, for that Purpose.

This is to certifie, That John Duncan came before me this Day, and made Oath, That he is a true Protestant ; and likewise says, that he swears with no View or Interest, but to observe, that he is a true Subject to his Majesty King George, and likewise does swear, that he has served in his Majesty's Service since the Year One Thousand Seven Hundred and Twenty-two.

New York March 28, 1746.

Sworn before me STEPHEN BAYARD, Mayor.

—Ibid.

The following Letter coming to Hand this Morning, I cannot in Justice, avoid giving it a Place here.

Mr. Parker.

As his Majesty's Forces bound to Cape Breton, are now embarked on board the Vessel which brought them in, and the Inhabitants of this City are again call'd on to mount Guard in the Fort ; it may not be amiss to observe, that the Manner in which those People left it, plainly demonstrates, they did not look upon it to be the Place of their Residence : This Assertion is too obvious to all who now go into it, to admit of dispute ; For which Reason, and as this City has often felt the unhappy Effects of contagious Air, out of Love to my dear self, and Regard to my Fellow Citizens, I desire you would publish this proposal to the Publick, that a small Collection be immediately made, and applied towards discharging and cleansing the Filth and Rubbish out of that Place ; that so our duty may not be attended with Nuisances probably more detrimental to our Health than watching, especially as the warm Weather is approaching. And as it would scare amount to more than one Penny per Man to have it affected, it is imagined but a reasonable Proposal, and doubtless would be readily complied with, if every one had but experienced the Unsavouriness of it, as much as Your humble Servant,

New York, April 7.—Yesterday arrived here Capt. Seemple, in near 12 Weeks from Madera, who informs us, that 4 Days ago he spoke with Capt. Tingley, and from whom he also brought letters, giving an Account, that on the 26th of February last, at 3 o'Clock in the Morning, he took out of 35 Sail and 3 Men of War, which he had dogged for two Days before from Porto rico, a large French Ship called the Rising Sun, of 22 Guns, and near 80 Men, bound for Marseilles, with 1117

Hhds. of Sugar, 458 Casks of Coffee, and other Goods on board, and 'twas thought some Cash ; he parted with her on Wednesday last in a Fog, and was in quest of her when Capt. Semple met him ; and as the Prize had been a little disabled a few days before in a hard Gale of Wind, he did not doubt but he should soon find her, and proceed with her in here, where they are now every Moment expected.—N. Y. Weekly Post Boy, April 7, 1746.

New York, April 14.—Thursday Evening arrived here the Privateer Ship Prince Charles, Capt. Tingley, with his Prize mentioned in our last ; which is reckon'd the largest and deepest loaden Vessel of any brought into this Port since the War ; she has 22 fine new Guns, all 6 pounders, and would hardly have been taken so easily, but for a Stratagem Capt. Tingley made use of in arming a Number of his Men like Marines, with Grenadiers Caps on, by which he was taken for a Man of War. There was on board the Prize a French Commissary and a Judge of the Admiralty, who are brought in here ; but the most of the Men were set on Shore at Mond. We hear the small Plunder amounts to above 1000*l*.—N. Y. Weekly Post Boy, April 14, 1746.

Tuesday last the famous and notorious Villian Tom Bell, was apprehended in this City, and committed to Jail, on Suspicion of selling a Horse he had hired some time ago of an Inhabitant of Long Island ; His Accuser, 'tis said, has sworn expressly to his Person, notwithstanding which he asserts his Innocence with a most undaunted Front and matchless Impudence ; We hear, his Trial is to come on this Week.—Ibid.

The same Day an unhappy Accident happened here, by a young Man's imprudently pointing a loaded Gun at two young Women, which went off, and shot one of them in the Face in a dismal Manner, so that its thought she can't recover. The young Man was immediately committed to Jail.—Ibid.

New York, April 21.—Tuesday last Capt. Tingley's Prize Ship was condemned here. This Ship draws 18 Foot Water, and 'tis remarked, that notwithstanding she had two of our best Pilots on board, and a fair Wind to bring her in, she struck three Times, in one of which she was apprehended to be in great Danger, as it was near Highwater.—N. Y. Weekly Post Boy, April 21, 1746.

New York, April 28.—Wednesday last died after a short Illness William Jameson, Esq.; High Sheriff of this City and County; and we hear that John Ayscough, Esq.; is appointed to succeed him in that Office.—N. Y. Weekly Post Boy, April 28, 1746.

Yesterday arrived here from a Cruise, but last from Rhode Island, the little Privateer Sloop Polly, Capt. Helme Commander, having taken and sent into Newport, a Spanish Sloop laden with Cocoa, but said to belong partly to Coracoa: Capt. Helme staid at Rhode Island in order to have her tried there, where she arrived on Wednesday last. By what we can learn, the Polly has otherways made a pretty good Cruise.—Ibid.

We have now five of our Privateers in Port; but the Brig Hester, Capt. Samuel Bayard, is again compleately fitted, almost manned, and will soon sail on another Cruise.—Ibid.

New York, May 19.—Thursday last arrived at Sandy-hook, his Majesty's Ship Torrington, Capt. Hardy Commander, in 15 days from Cape Breton, where having seen the Troops from Virginia safe landed, is returned here to convoy the Ship with the Remainder of those Troops from this Port, which they could not then lose time to call for.—N. Y. Weekly Post Boy, May 19, 1746.

New York, June 9.—Friday last arrived here two of our Privateers, the Snow Dragon, Capt. Seymour, and the Brig Greyhound, Capt. Jefferies, and with them the Grand Diable Sloop, a Spanish Privateer which they had taken and made a Consort of : On the second Day of May last, as they were cruizing in the Bay of Mexico, they fell in with a large Spanish Ship of 36 Guns, and upwards of 300 Men, with whom they all engaged for the greatest part of two Days ; but were at last obliged to leave her, after expending most of their Ammunition. They did all that was possible for Men to do with a superior Force, and left her a perfect Wreck, but at the same time were not in a better Condition themselves, having almost all their Masts so much wounded, that they every Moment apprehended their going overboard, and after fishing them, were obliged to make the best of their Way home. The Dragon lost not a Man in the Engagement, but had several wounded, and Capt. Jefferies himself unhappily received a small wound near his right Eye. Of the Enemy they saw many fall, and their Colours were 3 times shot away, but always hoisted again immediately.—Ibid.

Whilst savage Brutes, stirr'd up by Ga'lic Arts
 With barb'rous Fury, plague our Frontier Parts ;
 Shall we, like unconcern'd Spectators stand,
 In trembling Posture, not lift up a Hand,
 To curb these Pagans, and their Popish Aids ;
 Who thus our Properties and Lives invade ?
 Publish it not in Gath or Askelon,

New York, January 19.—On Wednesday last in the Forenoon a Fire broke out in the Roof of the City Hall, at some Distance from the Chimney; but by the immediate Attendance of the Magistrates, and Assistance of the Inhabitants (who have been always remarkable for their Readiness and Dexterity on such Occasions) it was soon extinguished.

Three Persons were observed to be extraordinary active and useful; one was Francis Davison, a Carpenter (being the same Person that was so instrumental in extinguishing the Fire formerly in the Cupola of the New Dutch Church) who got out upon the Roof with an Axe, and cut the Roof open where the Fire was, the Engines at the same time playing the Water upon him, and the Weather being intensely cold, by the time the Fire was out he was cloathed with Ice. The other two Persons Duncan Brown Mate, and John Ebbets Mariner, belonging to a Vessel in the Harbour. The next Day the Corporation met, and sent for the said Francis Davison, Duncan Brown and John Ebbets, when the Mayor returned them the Thanks of the Corporation for their good Services, and Order'd, Seven Pounds to be paid to the said Francis Davison, and Four Pounds each to the said Duncan Brown and John Ebbets, by their Treasurer, and also ordered each of them to be presented with the Freedom of the Corporation, as an Encouragement to others to behave with the same Spirit and Diligence on such Occasions. It is not certainly known how the Fire began, but as it first took under the Shingles in a Room where two Criminals were confined, and at a considerable Distance from the Chimney, it is generally believed the Fire was there by those Criminals.—New York Gazette, Revived in the Weekly Post Boy, January 19, 1747.

New York, January 26.—On Thursday last as a Negro Fellow was coming into Town with some Hay on a Sled, drawn by a Couple of Horses, the Horses unhappily took a sudden Fright, and ran away; and in their mad Career first struck down and pass'd over a Man, who had thereby several of his Bones broke, and his Body and Head bruis'd and torn in so terrible a Manner, that his Life was despair'd of; they then ran against two small Children, one of which was so miserably bruis'd, that it expired in a few Minutes; but the other, tho' much hurt, is like to do well.—New York Gazette, Revived in the Weekly Post Boy, January 26, 1747.

Friday night last, about 9 o'clock, a Fire broke out on board the Ship William, in our Harbour; which at first View seem'd to have a terrible Prospect; she having began to blaze out furiously, and lying a ground between two other Ships at a Distance from the Shore, in the Ice, which was not strong enough to bear a Man, and yet almost too hard to break thro' with Boats; it was thought by most People that all three would be burnt if not more; however our Inhabitants exerting their usual Vigour, they, notwithstanding the great Difficulty and Danger, at length got an Engine to play upon her, and so happily extinguished it: The Fire is said to be occasioned by a Boy's going to Bed in the Cabbin, and leaving a Candle burning.—Ibid.

Good Sea Coal to be sold by Lawrence Le Telier, at £3, per Chaldron.—Ibid.

As several Persons have signified their Desire of hiring Books from the Library belonging to the Corporation of this City; but the Time of Attendance being short, and the cold Weather rendering it uncomfortable, they neglect it; this is to give Notice, that on any Person's signifying a Day before hand what book they would have, they may at any Time have such Book of the Printer hereof, they giving the usual Security for the same.

Catalogues to be had for sending for.—Ibid.

New York, February 9.—Our kind Readers, must now naturally expect a great Dearth of News, and we are therefore quite at a Loss what to give that may be agreeable; we must then beg their Patience when we tell them what can be no News here, and what too many of them know experimentally better than we can express; but as it may be News in distant Parts, we apprehend it can't be altogether unseasonable, since we have nothing else better to say: The deplorable Circumstances this city is under, from a long Series of cold and freezing Weather is Matter of Concern to all.

This not only hinders our foreign Navigation (and so consequently prevents News) but occasions our Firewood to be so scarce and dear as was never equal'd here before; the Price being from 40s. to 58s. a Cord, and almost half the Inhabitants in want: Provisions also are excessive dear; a good Turkey, which scarcely ever before exceeded 3s. 6d. has lately been sold for 5s. a fat Fowl for 1s. 6d. a pound of Butter for 14d. and many other Things proportionable: Under all these Disadvantages, what must our Poor suffer!

THE CASTER ESTATE, BETW. 35th & 36th ST'S, AND LEXINGTON AV.

Our Rivers continue full of Ice, and a gloomy Prospect now o'er-spread them. Yesterday a Report prevailed here, That two or three Vessels were seen near Sandy Hook, endeavouring to get in, one of which was said to be one of our Privateers, and another a Prize; but if so, they must either be beat off again with the Ice, or in great danger of perishing. The Albany Post is not come in; but we have another Report here, that a large Body of French and Indians are now on their march from Canada, in order to attack some of our Settlements, and 'tis conjectur'd their Design is either against the Mohawks Castles or Kinderhook; 'tis however thought we have yet Force enough in those Parts, to give them a handsome Reception, and therefore we have no great Occasion to be under any Concern from that Quarter; whilst it must be the sincere Wish of every true English Heart, that we may in a short Time be both able and willing to return them their Complement with more than lawful Interest.—New York Gazette, Revived in the Weekly Post Boy February 9, 1747.

Nevertheless, thro' Providence, the Man is now recovered, and gone from thence ; so that I think that any of my Country Customers may use my House with as little Danger of the Small-Pox, as they did heretofore.

By His Excellency

The Honourable GEORGE CLINTON, Captain | General and Governor in Chief in and over the Province of New | York, and the Territories thereon depending in America. Vice | Admiral of the same, and Vice Admiral of the Red Squadron of His | Majesty's Fleet.

A PROCLAMATION.

WHEREAS upon due and strict Enquiry being made, it does not appear that any of the Inhabitants of, or Persons residing within this City, are now lying sick, or seized with the Distemper called the Small Pox, except a Child lately brought hither from Esopus, in the County of Ulster, who was seized with the same the next Day after its Arrival, and is now lodged in the Out skirts of the City. AND whereas, during the time the said Distemper lately prevailed in the City, the Inhabitants thereof were greatly distressed, such of the People living in the adjacent Counties, and in the neighboring Province, who had not that Distemper, being terrified from coming into the said City; and the Price of Provisions thereby considerably increased: Besides which, if the said Distemper should again become rife, it is probable at this Season of the Year it may be more Malignant and Mortal. And in case of an Invasion there would be a Necessity for the Assistance of the Inhabitants of the several Counties within this Province, of whom great Numbers have hitherto escaped the said Distemper, who may thereby be deterred from coming into the said City to assist in the Defence thereof. AND whereas I have received Information, that some Person or Persons are lately come into this City, in order to be innoculated for the Small Pox, which if not prevented, may be a Means to spread that Distemper here again.

Wherefore I have thought fit, by and with the Advice of his Majesty's Council, to issue this Proclamation: hereby in his Majesty's Name, strictly prohibiting and forbidding all and every of the Doctors, Physicians, Surgeons and Practitioners in Physick, and all and every other Person or Persons within this Province, to inoculate for the Small Pox any Person or Persons within the City and County of New York, on pain of being prosecuted for the same with the utmost rigour of the Law.

GIVEN under my Hand and Seal at Arms in the City of New York, the 9th Day of June, in the Year of our Lord 1747, and in the 20th Year of the Reign of our Sovereign Lord George the Second, by the Grace of God, of Great Britain, France and Ireland, King, Defender of the Faith, &c.

G. CLINTON.

By his Excellency the Honourable GEORGE CLINTON, | Captain General and Governor in Chief of the Province | of New York, &c.
To Mr. James Parker, Printer to the General Assembly of the Province of New York.

WHEREAS some Persons calling themselves a Committee of the General Assembly of this Province, came into an Apartment of my House on the 9th Instant, while I was engaged in my private Affairs, and without the least previous Notice, one of them offered to read a large Bundle of Papers, which he said was a Remonstrance from that House, and desired my Leave to read the same ; which I absolutely refused, or to have it left with me : And whereas the Speaker of the said General Assembly hath, in Disregard to my Authority and Person, ordered the same to be printed by you in their Votes ; altho' I had fore-warn'd you by my Secretary not to do it : But as you afterwards signified to him, that a verbal Order was not sufficient to forbid you printing any Thing to that Purpose ; I do hereby, in his Majesty's Name, expressly forbid you, or any other Person in this Province, to reprint or otherwise publish the said Paper called a Remonstrance of the General Assembly of this Province, as you and they shall answer the same at your Peril ; the said Paper containing many false, scandalous and malicious Aspersions on me, as Governor of this Province : And I do hereby further require you, to give publick Notice of this my Order, by publishing the same in your next News-paper, and for your so doing, this shall be your Warrant, Given under my Hand at the City of New York, 24th October, 1747.

G. CLINTON.

New York, December 14.—The Philadelphia Post not coming in last Week at the appointed Time, and the Weather setting in very cold, has occasioned both the Boston and Philadelphia Posts, to set out a Week sooner than they designed, to perform their Stages but once a Fortnight. We have very little News and the Posts not expected in till next Saturday. But as we have lately been obliged to give several Supplements, we hope all such of our Kind Customers, as are in upwards of one Year in Arrear, will now think it Time to discharge the same; as the Weather continues very severe, and the Printer but illy provided to stand the Brunt of a long Winter.—New York Gazette, Revived in the Weekly Post Boy, December 14, 1747.

N. B. He sells blank Bonds, and other Blanks as cheap as the Printers.—Ibid.

Whereas Mr. Benjamin Woolsey has sworn before Justice Elihu Willet, that he lent unto Joel Burroughs, the sum of Forty Five Pounds; but at the same time, and before the same Justice the said Woolsey did declare, he did not know when or where he lent the said Money (a Paradox!) but by his own Confession, his whole Dependence was on the knowledge that his Wife and his Wife's Sister had of it: His Wife and his Wife's Sister being examined before evidence they both confessed before Evidence, and in the Presence of Mr. Woolsey, that they knew no more of any such Thing, than the Child unborn.

NOTIFICATION, Any Person or Persons whatsoever, having any knowledge of said Mr. WOOLSEY, either lending or hiring to Joel Burroughs, any Sum of Money whatsoever, they are desired to inform of the same; and if so, it will prevent a tedious Law-Suit, which has been before two Setts of Arbitrators; and above three Years since first admitted into Chancery. THE famous ANODYNE NECKLACE for Children's Teeth, recommended in England by Dr. Chamberlen, with a Remedy to open and ease the sore Gums of tootthing Children, and bring their Teeth safely out.

Children on the very brink of the Grave, and thought past all Recovery with their Teeth, Fits, Fevers, Convulsions, Hooping, and other violent Coughs, Gripes, Loosenesses, &c. all proceeding from their Teeth, who cannot tell what they suffer, nor make known their Pains, any other Way, but by their Cryings and Moans: Have almost miraculously recovered, after having wore the famous Anodyne Necklace, but one Night's Time. A Mother then, would never forgive herself, whose Child should die, for want of so very easy a Remedy, for its Teeth. And what is particularly remarkable of this Necklace for their Children, none have made any Complaints, but express, how glad they have been, that their Children have wore it. Whereas, if they had not had it, they believed their Children would have been in their Graves. All Means having been used in vain till they had this Necklace.—Ibid.

The loss of the Corporation, whose Property these Buildings were, is thought pretty considerable.—New York Gazette, Revived in the Weekly Post Boy, April 4, 1748.

With any Anabaster may compare ;
Dimple rising in hur Cheeks so sweate,

Hur Mout so bauthyfully, not large, nor yet too small ;

New York, September 12.—By the Arrival of our European Ships, all sorts of dry Goods have fell considerably in this City; while Provisions, more especially Flour and Bread, are rose to a more excessive Price than ever was known here, occasioned too visibly by the illicit Trade with the French Islands; a Trade which must undoubtedly in Time ruin many Fair Traders, however it may enrich those who are the Carriers-on of so pernicious and destructive a Practice. We hear that Mr. Bonnin is so crouded with Company to view his Perspectives, that he can scarce get even so much Time as to eat, drink, or say his Prayers, from the Time he gets out of Bed till he repairs to it again; and it is the Opinion of some able Physicians, that if he makes rich, it must be at the Expence of the Health of his Body; and of some learned Divines, that it must be at the Expence of the Welfare of his poor Soul! Nay, his own old Shipmates who went a privateering with him, swear he would have stood a better Chance for a fair Wind to the Haven of Rest, and would have come to Port with more Safety had he continued still aboard! New York, December 12.—Within this Week or ten Days past, we have had several Thefts or Robberies committed in and about this City; from one Person was stole two Pair of Stockings; from another two Pieces of Cloth; and from a third, a Parcel of Money; but what exceeds for this Part of the World, was on Friday night last when the Store-house of Mr. Joseph Haynes of this City, Merchant, was broke open, and Goods and Cash carried off to the Value of above Six Hundred Pounds; and all without being heard or discovered; but yesterday Morning some Children going into a vacant Lot of Ground, in the Heart of the City, which was inclosed by an old Fence, and full of Boards and Rubbish, they discovered two Packs or Bundles among the Rubbish, which proved to be the greatest Part of the said Goods and Money; there is notwithstanding, we are told, several other Things still a-missing, which they are now in Hopes will be discovered in a little Time:—The good People of this City would therefore do well to be upon their Guards, as well in securing their own Goods, as in receiving of others; since what may be their Neighbour's Fate To-day, may chance to be theirs the next. —New York Gazette, Revived in the Weekly Post Boy, December 12, 1748.

It was intended that the Boston and Philadelphia Posts should have set out this Week to perform their Stages but once a Fortnight during the Winter Season; but the Philadelphia Post's coming in so late last Week, obliged them to begin that Stage a Week sooner.

Some time in the Month of December last, John Hadden and Abigail his Wife, both of the County of Westchester, departed this Life; he aged 96 Years, and she above 90; they lived together Man and Wife 70 odd Years; they were taken ill within a Day of each other, and lay ill six days, when the old Man's Lamp of Life was extinguished for want of Oil, and his constant Companion with him, ten Hours after shared the same Fate; they were both buried in the same Grave. He had a small Farm, which by his Industry and Frugality, enabled them to pass through this Vale of Tears with Comfort and Content; They were observed to treat each other during the 70 odd years of their Cohabitation, with all the Affection and Regard they had shown during the Honey Moon. You may truly say of them, that all their Days were Days of Content, and all their Nights were Nights of Pleasure.

In Matrimony's State, how few there are,
That John and Nabby's Fate can hope to share;
For length of Years do seldom add to Bliss,
And antient Folks take Trifles oft a miss:
Then let all those, that are by Hymen bound,
Pray for those Joys that John and Nabby found.

Laws, Statutes, Ordinances, and Constitutions, ordained, made and established by the Mayor, Recorder, Aldermen, and Assistants of the City of New York, convened in Common Council, for the good rule and Government of the Inhabitants and Residents of the said City; Published the 27th Day of January and the first Day of February last. To which is added, An Appendix, containing Extracts of sundry Acts of the General Assembly of the Colony of New York, immediately relating to the good Government of the said City and Corporation.

A few of these books are printed on fine paper; which will be sold to those who apply first. The Carmen's Law may be had separate by those who think it not worth while to buy the whole, Price 6d.—New York Gazette, Revived in the Weekly Post Boy, March 27, 1749.

New York, April 3.—Late on Saturday Night last, four Spanish Negroes were taken up and committed to our Jail, for designing to cut a Vessel out of the Harbour to run away with; The Plot was discovered by one of them, who was taken up first for being so late out without a Lanthorn, when four cutlasses were found under his Cloak: We hear some others are concerned, who are not yet apprehended.—New York Gazette, Revived in the Weekly Post Boy, April 3, 1749.

New York, April 10.—Yesterday the French Officers with their Attendants and Indians, to the Number of nineteen Persons, who arrived here from Canada the 17th of February last, embarked for Albany, in their Way home: We are very sorry we have not the Pleasure to be able to inform our Readers what has been either the subject Matter, or the Effect of their most important Errand, which has caused them to make so long a Stay amongst us, unless it be to inform themselves fully of the Strength of our Fortifications of which most of our Inhabitants have taken Notice, they have not been barely idle Spectators.—New York Gazette, Revived in the Weekly Post Boy, April 10, 1749.

It seems as if many of the Inhabitants of this City were minded to brave the good Laws thereof; or else imagine the Doctors want employ; why else should Fish Guts and Garbage be lodged on almost every Dock and Street throughout the City, that a Person can't walk them without being attack'd with the most nauseous smells? If the very Persons that flung such Garbage on the Docks in many Places, had but taken the Pains to carry it a few Yards further, the Tides might have taken it off; whereas most of it lies far beyond the Reach of the highest Tides: Is it because they think the Dock Inhabitants ought to be infected? or do they think, if Infections should ensue, that they themselves will escape? Strange Infatuation! that one Inhabitant of a City should have so much Ill will to the Whole, or Laziness ill-tim'd, as to Cause such Nuisances dangerous to the publick Good!—New York Gazette, Revived in the Weekly Post Boy, April 17, 1749.

New York, April 24.—On Thursday Evening last, a terrible Fire broke out in a House in Duke Street in this City, which being in a very close Place, and thick of old Buildings, at first Light presented a very gloomy Prospect, the Roof being all in a Blaze before it was discovered; but by good Providence, the Wind being low, the Diligence and Activity of our Inhabitants soon got the Mastery of it, though with great Damage to several Houses adjoining, and the entire Destruction of that wherein it broke out; Pieces of burning Shingles were carried by the Flames to a great Distance, and several other Houses thereby much endangered: We hear a great many Effects are lost by Thieves and Villians, who love to fish in such troubled Waters, tho' many of them were stopped and obliged to quit their Prey.—New York Gazette, Revived in the Weekly Post Boy, April 24, 1749.

New York, May 1.—We just now hear, That the Snow Irene, Capt. Garrison, is arrived at Sandy Hook, from London, with upwards of One Hundred Passengers on board, of the Moravian Brethren.—New York Gazette, Revived in the Weekly Post Boy, May 1, 1749.

New York, July 17.—It must at last give some Ideas of Comfort to the poor People of this City, as well as to the honest Trading part, that Provisions must soon fall from the exorbitant Price which they have been held at here, for upwards of Twelve Months past; occasioned too probably, by the unnatural as well as unlawful Practice, of feeding the Enemies of our King and Country; since we are assured, that Capt. Keteltas, who arrived here last Week from Jamaica, has brought with him 200 Barrels of choice Flour, which was bought at that Island for 16s. a Barrel, while large Quantities of it lay unsold there; and we have also Informations from several Parts of the Country, that the present Harvest has turn'd out indifferently well; which must unavoidably lower the Markets so much as to enable our Merchants to ship it off; which of late they have scarcely been able to do.—New York Gazette, Revived in the Weekly Post Boy, July 17, 1749.

Won't Mr. Et Cetera, please to send 5s. to have his Advertisement printed? Won't he? if he don't, I don't; if he does, I do.—Ibid.

New York, August 21.—Within a few Days past we have heard of several Robberies committed on Boats going up and down the North River, by Persons unknown ; and Yesterday about One o'Clock a Man dressed in Woman's Cloaths, was taken up in this City on Suspicion, and committed to Goal : He had been to Church in the Forenoon in his Woman's Habit, which was neat and good ; but in his Bundle was his Man's Cloaths very poor and mean ; On his being apprehended, he pretended that he came from the Mannor of Philipsburgh, and disguised himself there on a Wager : But 'tis conjectured that he will turn out on a Wager one of those Robbers.—New York Gazette, Reviv'd in the Weekly Post Boy, August 14, 1749.

Yesterday Mrs. Pickeman, the Wife of Capt. Pickeman of this City, being in good Health in the Morning, was taken ill suddenly, and died before any Assistance could be obtained.—Ibid.

Last Night between 9 and 10 o'Clock, a Fire broke out on board a new Ship belonging to Capt. Thomas of this City, lying at Cannon's Wharf, and got to such a Head before it was discover'd, that it was found impossible to extinguish it ; and it being almost High-Water, she was tow'd off into the Stream, and with the Tide carried above the Town, where she was entirely burnt down to the Waters Edge. She was built up at Connecticut, and was brought down but a few Days ago, ballasted with Wood, all which, together with the Masts, Yards and Rigging, was destroyed. It was with Difficulty some other Vessels lying near her when the Fire broke out, were preserved.

On the Alarm of the Fire, Mrs. Levy, a Widow Gentlewoman in this City, was taken with a Fainting-Fit, supposed to be with the Fright, and died immediately.—Ibid.

New York, August 28.—Thursday and Friday last the famous infamous Vagrant TOM BELL made his Appearance in this City, but being discovered a little sooner than he could wish, he left the Place before Friday Noon, otherwise he would have been secured :—'Tis somewhat surprising that this Fellow should so many Years continue rambling here in America, playing dishonest Pranks ; for as he is now pretty well known throughout the Country, his Impositions pass only upon innocent and unwary People ; tho' several honest Persons have suffered at Times, because they have been suspected to be like him ; He must certainly now be a Pain to himself, as well as an Injury to Society ; and as he seems almost incurable in that sort of Life, it is not unlikely but his Craft may one Day fail him, and he have the just reward of his Demerits in a Triple Tree.—New York Gazette, Revived in the Weekly Post Boy, August 28, 1749.

THIS is to acquaint the Curious, That the Effigies of the Royal Family of England, and the Empress Queen of Hungaria and Bohemia, and others to the number of Fourteen Figures, in Wax, (the Particulars of which are too numerous to be inserted here) are to be seen from 7 in the Morning to 6 in the Evening. Price One Shilling and Six Pence each Person ; none to be admitted without paying. Our Time in this Town will be but short.

And likewise ; By Punch's Company of Commedians will be acted this Week, the Play of Whittington and his Cat ; shewing how he came to London a poor Country Boy, and was taken into a rich Merchant's House as a Scullion under the Cook Maid, with the hard Usage he received from her, for which he was going to leave his Master ; but hearing Bow Bells ring, he thought they told him to return ; and by sending a Cat for a Venture, he came to be three Times Lord-Mayor of London ; To conclude with a Musical Clock ; Front Seats,

Two Shillings ; middle Seats, One Shilling and Six Pence back Seats, One Shilling.—Ibid.

New York, September 11—We hear the noted Vagrant TOM BELL is still lurking near this City, peradventure to have the better Opportunity to deceive those he intends next to visit ; tho' we are told, 'tis only with a Design to have an Answer to some matchless Bombast he has been pleased to propagate with respect to the Printer hereof :—This Fellow has had a large Swing over this Continent, as well as in some of the West India Islands, for these several Years ; and had it not been for some of Gay's Monkeys, who flock round him in every Place, grinning Applause to his redundant chattering, and thereby supporting him in his unparalleled Impudence, 'tis more than probable he had long ago took the Swing his Merits deserve :—"Tis needless to say more, than that the whole Design of publishing him in Newspapers, is only to put honest People on their Guard, and prevent their being imposed on by the Wiles of a Man, chiefly protected by Qualities of Craft obnoxious to Christian Society.—New York Gazette, Revived in the Weekly Post Boy, September 11, 1749.

New York, November 6.—On Sunday Evening, October 29th departed this Life in the Sixty Fourth Year of his Age, and Wednesday was very decently inter'd in his Family Vault in Trinity Church Yard, the Honourable JOHN MOORE, Esq; one of his Majesty's Council for this Province: He was sent here very young from Philadelphia, where his Parents lived in good Repute, and served his Apprentiship with Mr. Stephen De Lancy, deceased, one of the most eminent Merchants here, who afterwards took him into Partnership, and with whom he acquired and always justly sustained the Reputation of an honest fair Dealer.

The many honourable Offices and Stations, both Civil and Military from Time to Time, confer'd on Col. Moore, were so many publick Testimonies of the great Esteem and good Opinion the Government here as well as the Inhabitants of this City, conceived of his Integrity and Merit ; all which Offices he discharged with the utmost Fidelity. He was remarkably distinguished for a steady Temper of Mind, a sincere and unaffected Piety towards God, universal Benevolence, Hospitality and Charity to Men, and a true publick Spirit ; having left a general good Character behind him, a disconsolate Lady, and a large orderly Family of promising Children, whose vertuous Education encourages us to hope, that they all inherit and will imitate their Parent's Vertues.—New York Gazette, Revived in the Weekly Post Boy, November 6, 1749.

WHEREAS when the Letters which came in Capt. Griffiths from London, was called off, a Person took up those directed for Mrs. Margaret Moore, Widow, and has been so ungenerous to detain them. This is to beg the Favour of the said Person, not to persist in keeping them, but find some means of conveying them to her, as they must be sensible it is a great Disappointment to her, and of no service to themselves, but to gratify a Curiosity which they ought to be ashamed of.

N. B. If any One who stood near the said Person, and observed him, will be so good as to let her know who it was, she will faithfully conceal the kind informer ; who may please to consider, it is not a private but a publick Injury, which every honest man ought to join to detect.—Ibid.

The History of Tammany Society, OR, COLUMBIAN ORDER.

BY R. G. HORTON.

CHAPTER I.

A LEGENDARY SKETCH OF TAMMANY.

"The sun sets in night, and the stars shun the day,
But glory unfading can never decay :
You white men deceivers, your smiles are in vain ;
The sons of Alkmoonac shall ne'er wear your chain."

OLD INDIAN SONG.

SEVERAL years since the writer prepared for the columns of a weekly journal a sketch of the "History of Tammany Society, or Columbian Order." It embraced much matter of a local interest ; and, as the facts were collated with considerable care from various sources, it has been thought that they were worthy of being preserved in a permanent form. The sketch has, therefore been revised, and is presented in the following pages.

The history of Tammany Society, however, would be incomplete without devoting some attention to the celebrated Indian chief from whom it derived its name. Many curious, interesting and legendary accounts of this noted aboriginal warrior and sage have been handed down to posterity. The late Dr. Samuel L. Mitchell, so noted for his eccentricities of character, and his indefatigable pursuit of antiquarian information, has sketched with minuteness the legendary history of Tammany. From this it appears that, long before the discoveries of Ferdinand de Soto or La Salle, or even before the fancied voyage of Boëhem, Tammany and his people inhabited that extensive and fertile tract of land west of the Alleghany mountains, and extending northward of the river Ohio. The remains of monuments and other vestiges of art which are now found in that section were owing, it is said, to the skill of Tammany. In his youth he was famed for his exploits as a hunter and warrior, and, from beyond the Father of Waters to the Great Salt Lake, his deeds were recounted at every council fire. He waged for many years a war with his mortal enemy, the Evil Spirit, and during this time his prowess and courage exceeded, if possible, all that is related in ancient story and song of the Grecian Hercules. This Evil Spirit took every occasion to annoy the great chief, and first caused poison-sumach and stinging-nettles to grow in the land, which diffused virulent exhalations through the air, poisoning his people, and puncturing them when they went to hunt. Tammany, after various efforts to destroy them, finally took advantage of an excessive drouth, set fire to the prairies, and consumed the venomous plants, which burned with so much rapidity that the Evil Spirit himself, who was skulking about, was sorely singed by the flames.

In revenge for this, his enemy sent innumerable rattlesnakes to infest the land, which Tammany destroyed by sowing the seeds of the ash-tree upon the grounds, and cured their bites by seneka-root and plantain. After this, he brought large droves of Mammoths, and other huge animals from beyond the great lakes, and turned them loose upon the Tammanial territories. These beasts caused great devastation among the people of Tammany. They were swift and ferocious, and arrows fell blunted from their sides, so tough and impervious were their skins. But Tammany was not to be frustrated. He caused salt to be sprinkled at different places throughout his dominions, and, in the paths of the animals as they went to these Licks (as they are called to this day), he caused large pits to be dug, which were concealed by means of trees and leaves. Into these they fell and were killed, being impaled upon the points of sharpened trees, and their bones are yet found there, to confirm the truth of the story!

His enemy was mortified and enraged at his disappointment in his endeavors to injure Tammany, and now tried another expedient to effect his purpose. He had a large dam thrown across the lake, near where the city of Detroit now stands, causing a great rising of the waters of Lakes Huron and Michigan, which was intended to deluge the country south of it, where lay the territory of Tammany. He also threw another across at Niagara, raising the waters of Lake Erie. The disastrous effects which might have resulted from this, Tammany averted by opening the drains in which the waters of the Miami, the Wabash, and the Alleghany now run, and by cutting a ditch which at present forms the channel of the Ohio. For this he was pronounced by his adoring people "the savior of his country." The lakes gradually subsided, but the rapids of Detroit and the falls of Niagara still remain as monuments of the astonishing event!

After this, the Evil Spirit stirred up the red men of the East and the North against Tammany, and a long and bloody war ensued ; but they were at length defeated, and a great number taken prisoners. When they found themselves in the power of Tammany, they expected, of course, to be put to the most cruel tortures and lacerations ; but each one had prepared himself for the horrible execution, and, like Alkmoonac, had determined to sing his death-song, while gashes were separating limb from limb, and blazing splinters stuck into his flesh. But what was their surprise when they learned that the victorious chief had determined to spare their lives. He ordered them to be brought to his wigwam, where he delivered to them a discourse so full of good reason and sound sense that they were heartily ashamed of their own villany.

But the Evil Spirit was determined not to give up yet, and so implacable was his enmity against Tammany, that he resolved to waylay and attack him himself. Tammany, however, knew by the moving of the bushes where his enemy was secreted, and pretending not to notice the discovery, he advanced, and with his hickory staff (it will be remembered that Tammany used Hickory), he dealt a blow upon his adversary which made him bellow out with pain ; and, to follow the exact words of the legend, " they clinched, and dreadful was the crashing of timber which they trod down in the scuffle. Never since the times when the giants piled mountain upon mountain were there such exertions of animal strength. For the space of more than a league square not a tree was left standing—all were crushed and trampled flat by the combatants. At length, after unceasing exertions for fifty days, Tammany skillfully taking advantage of the hip-lock, threw him head and shoulders on the ground, and endeavored to roll him into the Ohio and drown him ; but an immense rock standing in the way, he could not effect it. He then seized him by the throat, and would certainly have strangled him, had not his wrist and thumb been so sprained and weakened that they could not gripe him hard enough to stop his breathing. Tammany by this time grew faint and exhausted, which the Evil Spirit perceiving, slipped out of his hands ; but, as he departed, he was told to confine himself to the cold and remote regions of Labrador and Hudson's Bay, and was threatened with instant death if he should ever be caught showing his face on this side of the great lakes."

After this Tammany devoted himself to the arts of peace. He brought maize, beans, and tobacco from their uncultivated states, and domesticated plumb trees and onions, and introduced many other improvements in agriculture. By these things he endeared himself to his people. His government was of the patriarchal kind, mild, but firm. His people looked up to him as their father, and referred all their differences and disputes to him. His decisions were always law. Plenty pervaded his land, and his people were contented and happy. Their watchword was "Tammany and Liberty."

About this time, Manco Capac, the great Inca of Peru and the descendant of the Sun, who had heard of the wisdom and powers of Tammany, dispatched messengers inviting him to an interview, the place of which he would mention might be Mexico, a spot about equi-distant from the dominions of each, where he wished to consult him on a form of government which he was about to establish for the Peruvian nation. Tammany, before departing to have this talk with the illustrious Sachem of the Andes, called together his tribes, which amounted to thirteen, and delivered the following sententious precepts to each :

"CHILDREN OF THE FIRST TRIBE: The EAGLE should be your model. He soars above the clouds, loves the mountain tops, takes a broad survey of the country round, and his watchfulness in the day time lets nothing escape him. From him learn to direct your thoughts to elevated objects, to rise superior to the fogs of prejudice and passion, to behold in the clear atmosphere of reason all things in their true light and posture, and never expose yourself to be surprised, while the sun shines, in a fit of drowsiness or slumber.

"CHILDREN OF THE SECOND TRIBE: The TIGER affords a useful lesson for you. The exceeding agility of this creature, the extraordinary quickness of his sight, and, above all, his discriminating power in the dark, teach you to be stirring and active in your respective callings, to look sharp to every engagement you enter into, and to let neither misty days nor stormy nights make you lose sight of the worthy object of your pursuit.

"CHILDREN OF THE THIRD TRIBE: You are to pay good attention to the qualities of the DEER. He possesses uncommon readiness of hearing—can judge of sounds at a great distance. In like manner open ye your ears to whatever is passing; collect the substance of distant rumors, and learn before dangers surround your corn-fields and wigwags, what is going on at a distance.

"CHILDREN OF THE FOURTH TRIBE: There is one quality of the WOLF to which I would call your attention. His wide extent of nostrils catches the atoms floating in the air, and gives him notice of the approach of his prey or his foe. Thus, when power grows rank, and like a contagion sends abroad its pestilential streams, I see the WOLF, like the myrmidons of Tammany, the first to rouse, turn his head, and snuff oppression in every breeze.

"CHILDREN OF THE FIFTH TRIBE: You, my children, are to take useful hints of the BUFFALO. He is one of the strongest animals in the wilderness; but strong as he is, he loves the company of his kind, and is not fond of venturing upon distant excursions. This is wise in the buffalo, and wise it will be in you to imitate him. Operate in concert, stand together, support one another, and you will be a mountain that nobody can move ; fitter down your strength in divisions, become the spirit of parties, let wigwam be divided against wigwam, and you will be an ant-hill which a baby can kick over.

" CHILDREN OF THE SIXTH TRIBE : That social and valuable creature, the Dog, offers something for you to profit by. The warmth of his attachment, the disinterestedness of his friendship, and the unchangeableness of his fidelity, mark him as the object of your kindness and imitation. Do but love each other with half the warmth, sincerity, and steadiness with which these, your constant hunting companions, love you all, and happiness, comfort, and joy will make your land their dwelling-place, and ye shall experience all the pleasure that human nature can bear.

" CHILDREN OF THE SEVENTH TRIBE : You are to take pattern after the BEAVER. His industry merits your regard. Forests must be cleared, hills leveled, rivers turned to accomplish your plans. Labor and perseverance overcome all things ; for I have heard old people say their ancestors assisted in making the sun, immense as he appears, by collecting into a heap all the fire-flies and glow-worms they could find ; and the moon, whose light is fainter and size smaller, was in like manner formed by gathering into a pile all the fox-fire or phosphoric rotten wood they could procure.

" CHILDREN OF THE EIGHTH TRIBE : The SQUIRREL, my children, offers something profitable to you. It is his practice, as he has a foresight of winter, to collect acorns, chestnuts, and walnuts, and carry them in large quantities to his hole. In like manner it becomes you to look forward to the winter of life, and have some provision necessary for yourselves at that needy time. This you may enjoy at your fire-sides, while all around you frost rends the trees asunder, and the white powder lies so thick upon the ground that you cannot venture out without your snow-shoes.

" CHILDREN OF THE NINTH TRIBE : You are to learn a lesson from the Fox. He looks well before him as he travels, examines carefully the ground he treads upon, and takes good care that his enemies do not come upon him by surprise. Such keen examination will guard you from difficulties ; and if, in the course of nature, you shall be, in spite of all this, beset by them, nothing will more effectually enable you to extricate yourselves.

" CHILDREN OF THE TENTH TRIBE : The TORTOISE, who supports on his back the world we inhabit, offers a world of instruction to you. Was it not for his benevolence in keeping afloat on the immense ocean in which he swims, this land we inhabit would soon go to the bottom ; and the displeasure he feels when men lead lives of idleness and vice, when they quarrel and injure their neighbors and families, has induced him more than once to dip a part of his shell under the water, and drown a set of wretches no longer fit to live. If, then, you wish to attain a long life, be honest, upright, and industrious.

" CHILDREN OF THE ELEVENTH TRIBE : I recommend to your attention the wholesome counsel derived to man from the EEL. He was never known to make a noise or disturbance in the world, nor to speak an ungentle sentence to a living creature. Slander never proceeded from his mouth, nor doth guile rest under his tongue. Are you desirous, my children, of modest stillness and quiet ? Would you like to live peaceably among men ? If such be your desires, learn a lesson of wisdom from the Eel, who, although he knows neither his birth nor his parentage, but is cast an orphan upon creation, yet shows by his strength and numbers the excellence of the mode of life he has chosen.

"CHILDREN OF THE TWELFTH TRIBE : I shall point out for your improvement some excellent traits in the character of the BEAR. He is distinguished for his patience and endurance of those inconveniences which he finds it impossible to ward off. Thus, when scarcity threatens your country with famine—when diseases among the bears strew your hunting-grounds with carcasses—when insects destroy your berries, and worms corrode the roots of your corn—when the streams refuse their accustomed supplies, or when the clouds withhold their rain, bear with patience and resignation whatever necessity imposes upon you. Show yourselves men ; for it is adversity which gives scope to your talents.

"CHILDREN OF THE THIRTEENTH TRIBE : I call your attention to the economy of the BEES. You observe among those creatures a discipline not surpassed by anything the woods afford. Idlers, vagrants, and embezzlers of public property have no toleration there. Regularity and method pervades every department of the government. Borrow from them an idea of arrangement in business ; and above all, derive from their instructive example that alchemy of mind, which, by an operation somewhat analogous to the production of nectar from venom, converts private feelings into public advantages, and makes even crimes and vices ultimately conducive to public good."

After delivering these precepts to his tribes, Tammany departed for his interview with the Inca, which proved to be most interesting and beneficial to all parties. On returning to his native country, he found his old enemy had taken advantage of his absence, and he had instilled notions of idleness and dissipation into the minds of his people. On account of this, diseases had broken out among them which required all his skill and sagacity to subdue. This, however, he eventually succeeded in doing, and lived, after he had accomplished it, many years in great happiness, and wonderfully beloved by his people. At last, after arriving at an unusual age, the universal palsy, which, in the natural course of things, immediately precedes death, terminated his life without either sickness or pain, and he expired without a sign or a groan. Great honors were paid to his memory. After more ceremony than was ever shown to a corpse before, they committed Tammany to the ground, after the usual manner, and raised over it a large mound of earth. Curious antiquarians have detected the spot, though they know not its design or use, for he lies within the great Indian fort, near MUSKINGUM, beneath the hillock which they have so often admired—a monument for sloth and labor second to nothing of the kind save the Pyramids of Egypt.

Such is the legendary history of Tammany. Of his real life we know but little, but that little upsets much of the poetry of the foregoing account, as we doubt not an explicit, unvarnished narrative of the deeds of Hercules or Ajax would many of the remarkable exploits which have been attributed to them by the pens of the classic poet

One statement informs us that Tammany, or, as captious orthographeists contend, Tamanend, was settled within the bounds of Pennsylvania, when William Penn came to America; that he lived then near the Schuylkill, but at the time of his death resided in Bucks county, near Doylestown, and is buried near a spring about four miles from the latter place. It is believed, though not positively known, that Tamanend was present at the great council under the elm tree at Shakamaxon, upon Penn's first arrival in this country. All the chiefs of the tribes of the Lenni Lenape were there, and it is not at all probable that so distinguished a king as Tammany would have been absent. As, however, there was no treaty signed at the first interview, which was only intended for the purpose of exchanging assurances of friendship, the names of those present have never been preserved. The first treaty for the purchase of lands, made by Penn with the Indians, is dated April 23, 1683, and in that Tamanend and Melamequan relinquish their right and title to a tract lying between Pennepack and Neshamony creeks. In the great treaty, by which a large portion of Pennsylvania was acquired, dated the 30th of May, 1685, the name of Tamanend does not appear. From this we infer that he must have deceased between these years. This opinion is strengthened by the fact that all accounts of him agree in the statement that he died but a short time after Penn settled in this country—indeed, Penn himself related, in his account of the first settlement of Pennsylvania, that “he found him an old man, yet vigorous in mind and body, with high notions of liberty, but easily won by the suavity and peaceable address of the governor.” Another account, differing only slightly from the above, represents him as a noted chief of the Delaware nation, the head of the powerful confederacy of the Lenni Lenape, and that his wigwam stood where Princeton College is now located.

At all events, Tammany was disposed to cultivate the friendship of the pale faces, and had the sagacity to perceive that their knowledge of the mechanical and agricultural arts rendered them much superior to his own people in power and intelligence. That he lived to a great age is universally attested by all accounts, both historical and legendary. Cooper, in his novel, the “Last of the Mohicans,” represents him as referring to his age in the following beautiful manner. At the death of Uncas, he exclaims—“My day has been too long. In the morning, I saw the sons of Unamis happy and strong, and yet, before the night has come, have I lived to see the last warrior of the wise race of the Mohicans.” He is sometimes represented as an Iroquois chieftain, and one of the first converted to Christianity by the French missionaries, and, it has been stated, that he was actually enrolled among the saints of the calendar. But this is a mistake. Tammany was not an Iroquois, but belonged to the confederacy of the Lenni Lenape, and was doubtless a Delaware.

His friends adopted the idea of calling him a saint, merely to ridicule the foreign societies founded about the period of the revolutionary war, which had generally designated their organizations by the name of some European saint. The Sons of Liberty were determined that America should not be behind other countries in the illustrious character of her productions, and hence they invented the legendary accounts of the distinguished chieftain, a portion of which were based on the stories received from his descendants. A Hudibrastic poem, parts of which would probably shock the fastidious ears of the present generation, was published at a very early period, in which their patron saint is extolled as far superior to all the renowned worthies of the old world.

Tammany was, however, without any question, one of the most distinguished red men who ever lived. He was kind, merciful, and brave. He taught his children to cultivate the arts of peace, as well as to subdue their enemies. Under his reign, the confederacy of the Lenni Lenape became powerful and mighty. Then, living to a remarkable age—so great as to be called "Tamanend of many days"—he was looked upon as a patriarch, and revered with all that strength of affection which the sons of the forest always bestowed upon their chieftains. Such was the man whom the patriots of the Revolution adopted as their tutelary saint; and if they could not claim that he had performed miracles, they could at least point to him as one who had rendered good service both to his own people and to the whites, and who, while he endeavored to live in peace with all men, would suffer neither wrong nor abuse, nor submit to a loss of his liberty or his rights.

CHAPTER II.

FROM 1789 TO 1801.

"Celestial maid ! shall Europe boast
 The saints her nations feign,
 And o'er thy best, thy favorite coast,
 No sacred guardian reign ?
 Not so, blest Freedom ! whilst thy rays
 Illume our vast domain—
 Not whilst Columbia's Order blaze
 Effulgent in thy train !"

On the 12th day of May, 1789, about two weeks after Gen. Washington had taken the oath of office, as the first President of the United States, in the balcony of the old City Hall at the foot of Nassau street, the organization known as the TAMMANY SOCIETY, OR COLUMBIAN ORDER, was instituted. Various societies had existed before and during the Revolution in different parts of the country, as well as in this city, under the names of the "Sons of Liberty," sometimes called "The Sons of St. Tammany." To John Trumbull, the author of the cleverest imitation of Hudibras which has ever been written, it is said, belongs the distinction of first originating the designation of "St. Tammany." So many societies had been formed, under the names of St. George's, St. Andrew's, and St. David's, all of which, in their commencement, breathed the most fervent loyalty to the king of Great Britain, that it was thought too great a distinction for them to monopolize all the saints on the calendar, and, as we have intimated, a genuine American guardian was discovered, thus placing the Sons of Liberty on a level with their opponents.

After the establishment of peace, the organizations called the Sons of Liberty, their object having been accomplished, went down ; and it was not until those jealous of American rights saw that there were many who, although they had zealously fought for freedom, were nevertheless strongly imbued with the principles of royalty, that it occurred to them that "the price of liberty is eternal vigilance." The discussion upon the adoption of the Federal Constitution in this State had evolved two distinct parties ; and finally, at about the time of its being acquiesced in, we may say there were three. Jay, Hamilton, and Chancellor Livingston, who were its principal champions, advocated it on the ground that it was the most energetic government they could obtain. They were strongly opposed by George Clinton, Governor of the State, Robert Yates, afterwards Chief-Justice, John Lansing, and Melancthon Smith. The opponents of the Constitution did not profess to be adverse to a confederation, but they looked upon the project before them as an attempt at consolidation and the erection of an irresponsible power to destroy the sovereignty of the States. When they saw Hamilton, who had proposed a President and Senate for life, and even the election of the governors of the different States by Congress, as also Gen. Schuyler and his colleagues, who had only the year previously voted against the oath-bearing allegiance to the State of New York, all with one accord supporting the new constitution, it was not singular if it created some alarm among the friends of popular government, and convinced them that those who had fought for freedom were not always the friends of the people. After the adoption of the constitution, it was generally acquiesced in, and Tammany Society appears to have numbered among its first members those moderate men of both the federal and anti-federal parties who, while agreeing to that instrument, yet cherished a most devoted attachment to American principles and the doctrine of States rights. It was not, however, commenced as a party institution. That idea does not appear to have been distinctly recognized until the time of Jefferson. Before that it was composed of men of different political opinions, and was intended, as its first constitution, published in 1789, expresses it, "to connect, in indissoluble bonds of friendship, American brethren of known attachment to the political rights of human nature and the liberties of the country." It also incorporated a benevolent feature in its organization, and to carry out fully the American principle of its founders, as well as to show its contempt for those societies aping foreign manners, it adopted aboriginal forms and ceremonies, divided the year into seasons of blossoms, fruits, and snows, and the seasons into moons. Its officers were to be a Grand Sachem (chosen from thirteen Sachems), a Sagamore, and a Wiskinskie. Another object in organizing the society on this plan was to conciliate the numerous tribes of Indians who were devastating our defenseless frontiers, and carrying desolation, with fire and tomahawk, to the hearths of the intrepid pioneers.* Another cause which contributed to the formation of the society was the strong anti-republican principles adopted by the Society of Cincinnati, of hereditary succession in its membership, of which Baron Steuben was at that time the President in this State. This obnoxious feature was modified at the urgent request of Washington, but exists in the society, to some extent, at the present time.

Such were the causes which, combined together, produced the association that has so far eclipsed all its contemporaries in power and influence. It was strictly a national society, founded on the principles of patriotism, and had for its object the keeping alive of that honest and generous devotion to country which is removed from radical and fanatical principles on the one hand, and from a disregard to the rights of the people on the other.

On the 12th of May, 1789, the society had a celebration, on which occasion merruques were erected on the banks of the Hudson river, about two miles from the city, for the reception of the brethren. Then, two miles from the city was about where Christopher street now is. Here the calumet was smoked by each member in turn, and in the evening they returned to the city. The officers of the society, this year, were William Mooney, grand sachem, and White Matlack, Oliver Glenn, Philip Hone, James Tylee, John Campbell, Gabriel Furman, John Burger, Jonathan Pierce, Thomas Greenleaf, Abel Hardenbrook, Cortlandt Van Beuren, and Joseph Godwin, sachems. Thomas Ash was treasurer, Anthony Ernest, secretary, and Gardiner Baker, wiskinskie or doorkeeper. Of these officers, Thomas Greenleaf and Cortlandt Van Beuren were anti-federalists—the others, we believe, were federalists. In 1790, William Pitt Smith was grand sachem, and John Pintard, to whom this city is so indebted for much of its historical collections, was sagamore.

This year (1790) a most interesting event in the annals of the society occurred, which illustrated the benefits of one of the principles upon which it was founded. The United States had long been desirous of forming a treaty of friendship and alliance with the Creek Indians, and various unsuccessful attempts had been made to effect this object. At length Colonel Marinus Willet went to that nation, and induced Alexander McGilvery, a half-breed, and about thirty of the principal chiefs, to come to this city. The Tammany Society determined to receive them with great ceremony. The members, at that day, were accustomed to dress in the Indian costume, and on this occasion they wore feathers, moccasins, leggings, painted their faces, and sported huge war clubs and burnished tomahawks. When the Creeks entered the wigwam, they were so surprised to see such a number of their own race, that they set up a whoop of joy, which almost terrified the people present. On the occasion of this interview, Governor George Clinton, Chief-Justice Jay, Mr. Duane, the mayor,

Mr. Jefferson, secretary of state, and other distinguished men, were present. The Creeks were overjoyed with their reception. They performed a dance, and sang the E-tho song. Mr. Smith, the grand sachem of the society, made a speech to the Indians, in which he told them that although the hand of death was cold upon those two great chiefs, Tammany and Columbus, their spirits were walking backward and forward in the wigwam. The sagamore presented the chiefs with the calumet, and one of them dubbed the Grand Sachem TOLIVA Mico, or Chief of the White Town. In the evening they went to the theatre, attended by the sachems and members. Before they left the city, they entered into a treaty of friendship with "Washington, the beloved Sachem of the Thirteen Fires," as they were pleased to call him.

In June of this year (1790) the society established a museum for the purpose of collecting and preserving everything relating to the history of the country. A room was granted for its use in the City Hall, and Gardiner Baker was appointed to take charge of the collection. In 1794 it was removed to a brick building standing directly in the middle of the street, at the intersection of Broad and Pearl streets, called the Exchange. The lower part was used as a market, but the upper part, being light and airy, was well calculated for displaying the many curiosities which now by the indefatigable exertions of Mr. Baker had been collected. On the 25th of June, 1795, the society passed a resolution relinquishing to Gardiner Baker all their right and title to the museum. He had taken so much pains and incurred so much expense in getting it up, that he could, with good reason, make a claim upon it. It was therefore given up to him, upon condition that it should be forever known as the Tammany Museum, in honor of its founders, and that each member of the society and his family should have free access to it. This museum, after the death of Baker, was sold to Mr. W. J. Waldron, and after passing through various hands, formed the foundation of what was afterward called Scudder's Museum, in Chatham street.

In 1791 Josiah Ogden Hoffman was grand sachem, and the republican party among the sachems was increased by the election of Melancthon Smith, one of the most powerful and earnest friends the people had. Hamilton himself, with all his classic polish and scholastic logic, had found him his most severe antagonist in the constitutional convention. De Witt Clinton, then very young, was scribe of the council.

From this time until the election of Jefferson, a general view of the progress and movements of the society must suffice. They paid great attention to their anniversary and the Fourth of July. On the occasion of their annual meeting, they usually assembled at their wigwam at Barden's tavern, in the lower part of Broadway, and then either proceeded to the old Presbyterian church in Wall street, which stood about where the Continental Bank now does, or what in those days was called the new Presbyterian church (afterward the old Brick church, located on the block where the office of the Daily Times now stands), where an oration was delivered, and some patriotic song, composed for the occasion, was sung. At other times, they went out to Campbell's, at Greenwich, where nearly the same exercises were observed.

The political views of the members, of course, were constantly subject to change by the force of passing events. The federal party was very strong in the southern section of the State, and particularly in this city, where it generally triumphed up to the year 1800. From the adoption of the constitution up to this time, the principal topics of political dispute were the French revolution, the Jay treaty, and, in 1798, the alien and sedition laws. The Tammany Society was opposed to the ultra measures adopted by some, which would have involved us in European difficulties, and toasts were drank at their festivals, one of which was—"The hawks of war—may they be harmless." In 1795, at the time of the excitement about the Jay treaty, the minority of the United States Senate, who voted against it, were toasted: so it would appear that federalism in it, at that time, was not remarkably strong. In 1798, however, when the principles of Jefferson were in the ascendant, federalism in Tammany Hall gradually died out. The alarming attacks upon the rights of the people which Mr. Adams had made, and the evident intention of some portion of the federal party to have what they called an energetic government, but which the republicans conceived was only another name for an oligarchy, induced hundreds of those who had been attached to that party to renounce its allegiance. The strides which had been made from the principles of the constitution, in the short space of ten years, were alarming. A standing army, internal taxation, the power of the President to borrow money, his control of aliens, the law against speaking or writing anything contemptuous of him, convinced republicans that a determination existed to subvert their liberties. Hence arose that large class of persons from the federal party called "trimmers," who concluded it was time for them to steer in another direction. For this reason, in 1800, we find the election resulting strongly in favor of the republican party. Then was that Tammany Society became distinctively recognized as democratic institution.

The place of meeting of the society, during the period to which we have referred, was Barden's tavern, called also the City Tavern, Broadway. It met here until about 1798, when it removed its quarters to the southeast corner of Nassau and Spruce streets, in a large wooden building, having an entrance in Nassau street. The landlord of the establishment was Abraham B. Martling, familiarly known for many years as "Brom Martling." This place was stigmatized by the federalists with the name of the "Pig-pen." All the leading democrats of the day were constant attendants upon the meetings held there, among whom were John Tryson, Abraham Stagg, William H. Ireland, John Moss, John Targee, Abraham Daily, Benjamin Romaine, Dr Prince, Eldad Holmes, John B. Thorp, Peter Sharp, George Buckmaster, Augustus Wright, Abraham Valentine, Lewis Ford, Clarkson Crolus, Joseph Kimball, William Mott, Samuel Page, W. J. Waldron; and although the party were constantly threatened by divisions of the Burrists, Lewisites, and Clintonians, yet the old men kept it together in a solid phalanx, to the terror of the federalists, and all who disregarded the rights of the people.

CHAPTER III.

FROM 1800 TO 1812.

"There's a barrel of porter at Tammany Hall,
 And the Bucktails are swigging it all the night long :
 In the time of my boyhood 'twas pleasant to call
 For a seat and a cigar 'mid the jovial throng."

HALLECK'S SONG.

BEFORE commencing this portion of the history of the society, it may be well to ask the reader to take a peep at the city, and particularly at the wigwam where the stern old republicans were in the habit of holding their council-fires. In 1800, Nassau and Pine streets were what Union place and Madison square now are. Pearl street, from Hanover square to John street, was the abode of wealth and fashion. Wall street, now given over to the sordid purposes of Mammon, was the gay promenade on bright afternoons, and there many a gallant's heart has been pierced by glances shot from beneath the frizzled locks of the fair sex ; while the beaux with their powdered curls before, and their neat black silk bags behind the head, their laced ruffles and desperately square-toed shoes, were equally comme il faut. The City Hall stood at the foot of Nassau street. Just below it was the elegant mansion of Mr. Verplanck, and immediately opposite, on the corner of Broad street, was the watch-house ; while further down, at the corner of New street, stood Becker's tavern—then a place of great resort. In Nassau street resided the Jays, Waddingtons, Radcliffes, Brinckerhoffs, and other prominent families. Where the Merchants' Exchange now stands were the residences of Thomas Buchanan, Mrs. White, and W. C. Leffingwell ; while in Pearl street were the fashionable dwellings of Samuel Denton, John Ellis, John J. Glover, John Mowatt, Robert Lennox, Thomas Cadle, John B. Murray, Lieut-Gov. Broome, Andrew Ogden, Governor George Clinton, and Richard Varick. Near the location of the present City Hall was the almshouse, with the bride-well on one side and the prison on the other. Grenzeback's grocery stood where French's hotel now does. There were but three or four old buildings on the block where Tammany hall is, one of which, nearly on the present site of the Tribune buildings, was a place of great resort for military men. The only remaining remnants of the neighborhood in that time are the wooden shanties, with their moss-covered roofs, which now disfigure Chatham street, opposite Centre.

Tammany Wigwam, or "Martling's Long Room," on the corner of Nassau and Spruce streets, was the most noticeable feature of the locality, partly from its appearance, but more particularly on account of the sturdy "Sons of Seventy-Six" who met there, and the exciting scenes and incidents which frequently occurred within its walls. Martling himself was a whig of the Revolution, and drew around him all those who contended for a true republican government. His house was a low frame building, with a rough exterior; and, if it had ever experienced the adorning effects of paint, the storms of years long past had worn it off. It had escaped the devastating fires of 1776 and 1778, as well as the destructive ravages of the British troops. Nothing at that time intervened between it and the Park—the buildings connected with the "Brick Church" not having been erected. The bar-room was situated immediately on the corner of Spruce street, while the kitchen was on Nassau street, directly in the rear. The celebrated "Long Room" was back of these apartments, running parallel with Nassau street. The entrance to it was either in Spruce street, through a long hall or entry-way, or from the bar-room, by a door which opened into the same hall. Its floor was several steps lower than the bar-room and kitchen, and its ancient aspect and somewhat dilapidated appearance acquired for it that uncomplimentary soubriquet of "The Pig-pen," by which it was so long known to the enemies of the Tammany Society. It was the headquarters of the democracy, however, until their new hall was finished, in 1812, and was sacrificed, about 1814, to the resistless march of improvement, which spares nothing in this city, however, old or sacred.

Immediately after the election of Jefferson, when the federal party had become thoroughly prostrated, a division broke out in the ranks of the democracy between the friends of Mr. Clinton, Chancellor Livingston, and Colonel Burr. Burr was accused of faithlessness to the party, and of having conspired to defeat Mr. Jefferson. Colonel John Swartwout, a warm friend of Colonel Burr, became involved in a dispute with Mr. Clinton, which led to a duel at Hoboken, wherein Swartwout was wounded. When Mr. Clinton, who always wore his coat buttoned with one button, like Daniel Webster, found it very unceremoniously unfastened by the bullet of Swartwout, he was not at all unwilling to listen to overtures of peace. Burr soon completed his own disgrace with the democracy by running as stump candidate, in 1803, against Morgan Lewis, and was forever ostracised by that party. In 1806, strange as it may appear, a secret plan was formed by the Clintonians to unite their fortunes with the Burrrites against the Lewisites. It was known to be very important to keep this coalition from coming to the ears of the Lewisites, and more particularly with regard to the "Martling men," as they sometimes called the members of the Tammany society, who had already begun to suspect De Witt Clinton of courting the favor of the federalists, and had partially denounced him. To effect this, Levi McKeen, a "dyed-in-the-wool" Burrrite of Poughkeepsie, was chosen, as a delegate from that party, to come to New York and confer with General Baily, on the part of the Clintonians, as to the preliminaries of the union. All this was studiously kept from the Martling men, and it was not until the 20th of February, 1805 (when the Clintonians and Burrrites, as hail fellows well met, assembled at Dyde's hotel, located near where the foot of Sixty-first street now is, to celebrate the union), that the true republicans fully comprehended what was going on. They immediately called a meeting at Martling's on the 27th of the same month, and denounced the whole affair as a federal proceeding.

D. D. Tompkins was the republican candidate for governor in 1806, and his rising popularity soon made him a man of mark. In 1807, the trial of Colonel Burr for treason completed that extraordinary man's doom, and he sunk into that obscurity of which his inordinate and unscrupulous ambition had made him eminently deserving. In 1810, Lieut.-Governor Broome died, and De Witt Clinton was nominated by the members of the Legislature to fill his place. It is unnecessary to say that Tammany was in arms. A meeting was immediately called at their headquarters, and they recited in a decided tone, the causes of their opposition to Mr. Clinton, which were his ambition, untempered by honesty; his opposition, or at least lukewarmness, to Mr. Madison and his administration; his eleventh-hour support of the embargo, &c. Colonel Marinus Willett was nominated to oppose him, and Dr. Mitchell, Teunis Wortman, Matthew L. Davis, and John Ferguson were appointed a committee to forward his election. The Clintonians in this city held a meeting shortly after for the same purpose, at the Union Hotel, which stood in William street, opposite Cedar, before the latter was cut through to Pearl. The Martling men went down to give them a reception, and a scene occurred which somewhat resembled the squabbles in "The Coal Hole," at a later day. The Clintonians found it impossible to transact any business, so great was the crowd and confusion.

In 1811 Mr. Clinton, partially by the aid Mr. Van Buren, who had just then made his appearance in the political world, succeeded in obtaining the vote of this State for President. Tammany Society opposed him, and General Erastus Root cast his influence in the sea with them; but Mr. Madison was re-elected, notwithstanding the vote of New York against him, and the republicans were still in the ascendant in the national councils. Thus stood Tammany Society at the time of the breaking out of the war. It had supported all the measures of Mr. Madison's administration. Our flag had been insulted in every sea, our merchantmen searched, our citizens forced into foreign service, and yet the conduct of Great Britain found apologists in America; but they were not among those who had kept bright the true love of patriotism by meeting around the council fires of Tammany, and recounting the brave deeds of their ancestors upon every return of the birthday of liberty. This society had never been, like the federalists of Albany, so fearful of offending the delicate sensibilities of Englishmen, as to advocate that the Declaration of Independence should not be read upon the Fourth of July! As the storm gathered around, and there was no remedy for our grievances but ignobly submitting to them, or bravely contending with our enemies, no party or society more earnestly gave "aid and comfort" to our government than Tammany. It was the headquarters of those who took an active part in the war, and who materially contributed to its honorable and glorious termination.

The society had, during this period, advanced rapidly in wealth and prosperity. It had been incorporated by an act of the Legislature in 1805. In 1808, after repeated calls upon Congress, but with no effect, Tammany Society determined to perform a duty of patriotism which will ever be an honor to the institution. Since the Revolution, the bones of those who had died on board the prison ship at Wallabout had been permitted to bleach upon the shore. The inhumanity with which they were treated has been so often described, that it has become almost a hackneyed theme. We will merely say that, from the most reliable accounts which can be gathered, not less than 11,500 souls perished on board the various ships which were moored in the East river. Paine predicted, "that before America would submit to the unjust demands upon her, the bones of three million of her citizens would whiten the shores of their country ;" and the bones of 11,500 had indeed whitened the shores of the Wallabout.

It is not our purpose here to describe their sufferings, but we cannot refrain from making a short extract from the poem of Philip Freneau, the cleverest bard of our revolutionary era, the room-mate in College of President Madison, and ever afterward honored with his warmest confidence, which so forcibly and pointedly tells the story of their woes :

" Each day at least six carcasses we bore,
And scratched them graves along the sandy shore ;
By feeble hands the shallow graves were made—
No stone memorial o'er their corpses laid.
In barren sands, and far from home they lie—
No friend to shed a tear in passing by ;
O'er the mean tombs insulting Britons tread,
Spurn at the sand, and curse the rebel dead !"

To collect and provide a suitable place for the deposit of the bones of these martyrs, who had endured all the slow and lingering tortures which fancy could invent for their devotion to liberty, was the object to which the Tammany Society addressed themselves.

In making improvements near the navy yard, a number of casks and boxes had been filled with these remains, and preserved by John Jackson, Esq., for interment. It had been repeatedly suggested by a great many persons that some suitable place should be provided for them. Dr. Mitchell had brought the subject before Congress, but that body doubted its power to make an appropriation for that purpose ! Tammany Society took up the subject as early as 1803, and finally, in 1807, when it became evident that Congress would do nothing about it, a committee, called " the Wallabout Committee," was appointed to take measures for carrying the long contemplated design of interment into effect. An appropriation, it is said, was made by the Legislature to assist the society in their patriotic undertaking ; but the financial benefits derived from it does not appear to have been much, and the disposal of the money is still involved in much mystery.

The " Wallabout Committee " reported in February, 1808, and immediate measures were taken to carry into effect their suggestions. The corner-stone of the tomb was laid on the 13th of April, 1808, when a grand and imposing procession was formed under the direction of Major Aycegg, grand marshal. The military companies and civic societies united with the Tammany, and proceeded to the spot, where Joseph D. Fay, Esq., the orator of the day, delivered an eloquent and impassioned oration. Referring to those who had perished for the love they bore their country, he said: "On this day we lay the corner-stone of their tomb. Their ashes hitherto have been blown about like summer's dust in the whirlwind. But the marble column shall rise on this spot, and tell to future ages the story that they had to choose death or slavery, and that they nobly elected the former. The curious mariner shall point to it in silent admiration, as he passes at a distance, and posterity shall call it the Tomb of the Patriots!"

The vault being completed, the society fixed on the 25th of May of the same year for consigning the bones to their final resting-place; but the weather proving stormy, the ceremony was postponed until the 26th, when one of the largest and most magnificent funeral pageants which this city has ever witnessed took place. Garret Sickles was the grand marshal of the day. The first feature in the procession was a trumpeter, mounted on a black horse, carrying in his hand a black flag, upon which was inscribed in letters of gold—"Mortals, Avaunt! 11,500 Spirits of the Martyred Brave! approach the Tomb of Honor, of Glory, of Virtuous Patriotism!" Then followed the military, under command of Brigadier-General Morton and, immediately after, the Wallabout Committee, each member with a bucktail in his hat. Then came the Tammany Society, headed by Benjamin Romaine, grand sachem, with all the insignia of the order—making a most impressive display. The municipal governments of New York and Brooklyn came next (De Witt Clinton was then Mayor of the city), followed by the Governor of the State, John D. Tompkins, and Lieutenant-Governor John Broome, members of Congress, military and naval officers of the United States, and finally all the various civic societies of the city. The procession proceeded through the then principal streets, crossed to Brooklyn, and moved to the vault in Hudson avenue, near York street, which was to contain the remains of the patriot dead. Dr. Benjamin De Witt delivered the oration, which he had prepared at the request of the Tammany Society. After its conclusion, the coffins were deposited in the tomb, and the procession returned to the city. There were those at that day who stigmatized this patriotic affair of the Tammany Society as a ruse to make political capital, but if it were, never could political capital have been made upon more worthy or patriotic grounds. But such was not the case. The society felt the disgrace which justice attached to our country for the neglect which it showed to the memory of these brave men, and they determined to wipe away the stain.

In 1811, the society took efficient measures to erect a suitable hall for a place of meeting. Two ineffectual attempts, one in 1792 and the other in 1802, had been previously made; but at this time, by the efficient exertions of Colonel Rutgers and others, the sum of $28,000 was subscribed, and the corner-stone of the new hall was laid on the southwest corner of Frankfort and Nassau streets, on the 13th of May, 1811. Abraham M. Valentine was the grand marshal of the day. The members of the society wore the bucktail in their hats, as usual, marched in Indian file, and appeared in aboriginal costume. Clarkson Crolius was the grand sachem. He laid the corner-stone, and made a short and spirited address to the sachems, warriors, and brethren present, telling them that here they would hereafter meet, and recount to the young warriors and hunters the virtuous and heroic deeds of their fathers. Alphas Sherman delivered the oration. The hall was speedily finished and became the headquarters of the democracy about the time of the breaking out of the war.

CHAPTER IV.

FROM 1812 to 1834.

"Thy spirit, Independence, let me share !
 Lord of the lion heart and eagle eye,
 Thy steps I follow with my bosom bare,
 Nor heed the storm that howls along the sky.
 Deep in the frozen regions of the North,
 A goddess violated brought thee forth,
 Immortal Liberty, whose looks sublime,
 Hath bleach'd the tyrant's cheek in every varying clime."

DURING the war of 1812 Tammany Hall was the headquarters of those in this State who were in favor of its vigorous prosecution and the unpatriotic position taken in relation to it by a large portion of the federal party only stimulated its friends to renewed diligence. In October, 1814, when this city was threatened by an attack from the British troops, intrenchments were erected at Harlem and Brooklyn Heights, at Greenwich Barracks, near where the old state prison now stands, and at other points in the vicinity of the city. A large number of the militia of the neighboring counties were ordered by the Governor of the State to repair here without delay, and assist in erecting and manning these redoubts. So urgent was the necessity for their immediate completion thought to be, that many patriotic citizens joined the soldiers, and contributed their labor in haste to them forward. The members of Tammany Society several times offered their services to the Committee of Defense, and, repairing a body to the forts, voluntarily performed this patriotic labor.

At no place were the victories of our forces, whether by sea or land, received with more heartfelt enthusiasm than at Tammany Hall. The patriots who met there felt that the successes which had crowned our arms taught the world the strength and vigor of a free though youthful nation, and how fruitless it was to endeavor to repress its expanding energies; but when Great Britain extended proffered peace, the joy which followed the announcement of their ratification was as hearty and vehement as when the splendid victory of General Jackson at New Orleans captivated the people and gratified the national pride. When the Commissioners (Messrs. Clay, Gallatin and Adams), appointed on the part of the United States to arrange the treaty of peace, returned from Ghent, they were treated to a grand banquet at Tammany Hall. Strange as it may seem in later days, Henry Clay has actually been toasted and applauded within the great wigwam of democracy.

About the time of the war, a small party of federalists, who had become disaffected, left their ranks and joined Tammany Society. It was called the "Coody party," so known from a series of articles which appeared in one of the newspapers of the day signed "Abimileck Coody, Ladies' Shoemaker," wherein it was urged with much vehemence that the federalists had better give up their opposition to the war. These letters were very severe and caustic upon De Witt Clinton; so much so as to induce, as it is generally believed, answers to them from the distinguished man himself. "Abimileck Coody" was no other person than the venerable and worthy Gulian C. Verplanck, the son of a wealthy land-owner in Dutchess county, who had been in some way involved in a riot (which, we believe, occurred in Trinity Church, at a commencement of Columbia College), and who, it was said, cherished a personal enmity toward Mr. Clinton, on account of a charge which the latter had given against him in some proceedings growing out of the affair. However this may be, the "Coody party," as it was called, consisting of Mr. Verplanck, Hugh Maxwell, Jacob Radcliffe, Richard Hatfield, Josiah Hedden, John Hopkins, and others—in all amounting to forty—rushed into Tammany Hall, and claimed, for a time, to be better democrats than even the old chiefs of the wigwam. Many of the older members of the society looked upon the new-comers with suspicion, and some opposed their admission; but opposition to Mr. Clinton, at that time, was considered pretty good proof of democracy, and hence that party were allowed seats around the council-fire. Radcliffe afterwards became Mayor, Hatfield Clerk of the Sessions, and Maxwell District Attorney.

After the peace, parties assumed a somewhat different position. The federalists were still formidable, and numbered among their leaders some of the shrewdest political managers of the day. The Clintonians generally managed so as to assist them, and the quasi-union of the two formed a party which placed the republicans in a decided minority. Mr. Clinton, who had been elected to the chief executive office of the State when Governor Tompkins resigned, upon taking his post as Vice-President, in 1816, immediately removed many of the "Bucktails," or Tammany-men, in office then. A powerful effort was thereupon made in 1820 to defeat him, by bringing out that old standard-bearer of democracy, D. D. Tompkins, against him for Governor; but the coalition of the federalists and the popularity of the canal policy were sufficient to secure the election of Mr. Clinton, though in every other respect the republicans were triumphant. They elected a large majority in the Legislature, secured the council of appointment, and, in every respect, achieved a substantial victory.

No one who has marked the history of political parties with any degree of attention but must have been struck with their constantly shifting position upon many important questions of public policy. This is necessarily so, from the equally constant variations which circumstances present, the force of which no man can gainsay or resist. In 1819, when our country was probably suffering from a greater prostration of internal trade and manufactures than ever before or since, the Tammany Society adopted an address to the people of the United States on the subject of protection to home manufactures. It recapitulated the disastrous condition of the country occasioned by the inordinate emissions of paper money by the banks, the extraordinary quantities of foreign manufactures which were deluging our country, thus crushing American labor, and lamenting the gambling propensities of the day, which, in the form of lotteries, billiard-rooms, &c., were so injurious to habits of industry and economy. Resolutions were passed by the society, on the 11th October of the same year, recommending their brethren to refrain from useless extravagance in living, and to discontinue the importation and use of every species of foreign manufacture which could be conveniently substituted by the fabrics of the United States. The address was forwarded to the prominent political men of the day, who nearly all returned answers to it, more or less approving of the sentiments it contained, and among whom were Thomas Jefferson, John Adams, James Madison, John Quincy Adams, H. Dearborn, Nathan Sandford, and Mahlon Dickerson. These letters were all addressed to Clarkson Crolius, at that time Grand Sachem, and were published in the National Advocate.

About this time a party calling itself "The People's Party," profiting by the unpopularity which had been brought upon the Crawford party for opposing the election of presidential electors by the people, succeeded in electing their candidate, and in actually getting possession of Tammany Hall, and expelling, for a short time, its rightful occupants. The democracy, however, were not to be entirely driven away from their wigwam, but sought refuge in "The Coal-Hole," and there nominated an Assembly ticket, which they elected by nearly three thousand majority.

From this time until 1827, political matters were more quiet than they had previously been. Mr. Van Buren was now the political manager of the Albany regency, and he inculcated in his followers his peculiar system of management. He early conceived the idea of bringing out General Jackson in opposition to Mr. Adams, in 1828, and did not fail to conciliate, as far as possible, the Clintonians, in order to forward his scheme. Mr. Clinton was well known to be a warm friend of General Jackson, and his support was worth gaining. None of these arrangements transpired until the 26th of September, 1827, when the General Republican Committee of this city met at Tammany Hall and passed a resolution recommending their fellow-citizens, in their respective wards, to elect only such persons in their committees as were in favor of General Jackson as the next candidate for President. Major Noah soon after run up the name of the old hero at the head of the National Advocate, and in the election which followed he received twenty out of the thirty-four electoral votes to which this State was entitled—the electors being then chosen by districts, and not by general ticket. Mr. Van Buren was elected Governor, in opposition to Smith Thompson; but, upon General Jackson forming his cabinet in 1829, he was called by him to the post of Secretary of State. Here, by a judicious management of the well-known difficulties growing out of the expulsion of the wife of Major Eaton, Secretary of War, from social intercourse with the families of the other members of the cabinet, for some supposed irregularities, he succeeded in establishing himself very firmly in the affections of the President. The General had declared, with all his constitutional vehemence, that he would be “cut into inch pieces,” before he would permit that lady to be injured by vile calumnies, and Mr. Van Buren appears to have very shrewdly turned the matter to some account in forwarding his chances for the succession. He very opportunely resigned in 1831, and, as early as 1834, was distinctly marked on the programme at Tammany Hall as the next democratic presidential candidate. About this time, all the discordant elements of the opposite party, or opponents of General Jackson, assumed the name of whigs.

CHAPTER V.

FROM 1834 to 1840.

Oh, Moses Jacques ! Oh Moses Jacques !
 'Tis painful and 'tis true,
 A caucus of the Regency
 Imposed the task I do.

And as for you, Levi D. Stamm
 Grieve intellect, 'tis plain ;
 Apply it to wise purposes,
 Where profit you can gain."

TAMMANY SOCIETY continued the firm and unwavering supporter of Gen. Jackson's administration through all the memorable difficulties which it encountered, and nothing occurred in it particularly worthy of record until the rise of the "equal rights party," in 1835. This organization was founded on nearly the same principles as the "workingmen's party," of 1828. It declared unqualified and uncompromising hostility to bank notes and paper money as a circulating medium, opposition to all monopolies, and particularly to the creation of vested rights by legislation. Its principles were mainly supported and defended by William Leggett—a name which no Democrat does not remember with respect ; for however inexpedient or visionary some of his political views may have been, they were yet advocated with an honest and enthusiastic spirit that could not fail to command regard. Mr. Leggett was at this time editor of the Evening Post, and around him and his paper, although both were ruled out of the regular democratic party, the equal rights men took their stand. They looked upon Tammany Society as the stronghold of the abuses in the democracy of which they complained—hence that organization was the principal target of all their feats in political gunnery. Another cause which contributed to bring out this party against Tammany Hall was the charge that the politicians of the latter had appropriated to themselves the lion's share in the distribution of offices—so much so, that they were said to be "hunk;" from which originated the application to them of the term "hunkers," as indicating a sordid and covetous spirit in retaining all the spoils to themselves. They were also accused of "going up the back-stairs of the wigwam," and organizing meetings before the rank and file had an opportunity to be heard.

On the 29th of October, 1835, a meeting to ratify the democratic nominations in the city for State officers was called at Tammany Hall. The equal rights party was strongly opposed to some of the nominees, because it was alleged that they were in favor of the perpetuation of bank monopolies. The doors had scarcely opened on the evening named, when that party rushed in, and Isaac L. Varian, who had been nominated for President of the meeting, was not allowed to take the chair. Joel Curtis was nominated by the equal rights men, and a scene of confusion followed, equal, if not ahead, of anything of the kind that has ever occurred within the old wigwam. The regular democrats were finally, by the force of overpowering numbers, driven from the room, and in the midst of the hubbub some one turned off the gas and left the infuriated opponents of monopoly to pursue their investigations in the dark. But, having obtained possession of the conservative democratic headquarters, they were determined not to be driven away easily. Accordingly, candles and lucifer or "loco-foco" matches were obtained, and they soon produced a light which enabled them to proceed to business. They adopted a ticket to suit themselves, passed resolutions in accordance with their principles, and adjourned. The Courier & Enquirer, next morning, dubbed the new party, which had made such a splendid coup d'état, by the name of "loco-focos"—which appellation was afterwards applied by the opposition to the whole democratic party.

This organization assumed a formidable footing for about two years, and caused considerable distraction in the ranks of the democracy. Moses Jacques—Mr. Leggett being cut off by an untimely death—became its most conspicuous leader. Among its prominent members were Alexander Ming, Job Haskell, F. W. Byrdsall, Levi D. Slamm, A. F. Vache, Clinton Roosevelt, G. W. Matsell, and Robert Townsend, Jr. Their headquarters were at the old Military and Civic Hotel, formerly located on the southwest corner of the Bowery and Broome street. They went so far as to resolve that Tammany Society was not a democratic body, and that its practices and usages were injurious to republicanism. Many politicians, however, turned this party to account, and by a soi-disant friendship succeeded in obtaining office by its aid. On February 13, 1837, an intensely cold and extremely windy day, they held a meeting in the Park to take into consideration the high price of provisions, and from this gathering proceeded the mob which attacked the flour store of Eli Hart & Co., at Nos. 173 and 175 Washington street.

Much odium was thrown upon the party on account of this occurrence ; but there are no grounds for believing that its leaders either instigated or approved of the outrage. The party, by a compromise of principles, were finally admitted into Tammany Hall. The democratic forces, which stood so nobly victorious in 1837, were swept away by the tornado that elected General Harrison in 1840. The subsequent history of Tammany Society, the memorable difficulties between the "hunkers" and "barnburners," and the "hards" and "softs" are too closely allied to our own times to be treated of at present. It has been the aim of the writer to present a candid and condensed view of the history of the Tammany Society, down to the point indicated, totally free from personal or political bias. A short explanation of its forms and ceremonies, and we have completed our undertaking.

The society elects annually thirteen sachems, which represent the original thirteen States. From their number, or from the body of the society, one is elected who is styled the Grand Sachem. This body forms a Council, presided over by a Father, which meets quarterly for the transaction of business. The other officers of the society are a Secretary, Treasurer, Sagamore, and Wiskinskie. The duty of the Sagamore is to take care of the property of the society; that of the Wiskinskie, to act as doorkeeper. All the customs and ceremonies observed are borrowed from the aborigines, and the members of the society were originally divided into tribes corresponding to the different States. New York was the eagle tribe, New Hampshire the otter, Massachusetts the panther, Rhode Island the beaver, Connecticut the bear, New Jersey the tortoise, Pennsylvania the rattlesnake, Delaware the tiger, Maryland the fox, Virginia the deer, North Carolina the buffalo, South Carolina the raccoon, and Georgia the wolf. When members joined the Society, they either chose the tribe to which they preferred to belong, or were assigned to one by the Grand Sachem ; but this observance has now fallen into disuse. All the transactions of the society are dated from three eras—its own organization, our national independence, and the discovery of America by Columbus. The year is divided into four seasons—viz.: December, January, and February, the Season of Snows ; March, April, and May, the Season of Blossoms ; June, July, and August, the Season of Fruits ; September, October, and November, the Season of Hunting. If any event occurring on this day were to be chronicled according to their rules, it would be in the following form: "Manhattan, Season of Fruits, 17th day of the 7th Moon, Year of Discovery 361st, of Independence 78th, and of the Institution the 65th."

Members are proposed at one meeting, elected at the next, and initiated at the next. If they fail to appear in the regular order named, they cannot come up again within three months. They must have nearly a unanimous vote to be elected. The initiation fee is three dollars, and one dollar annual dues. At the initiation of the Grand Sachem, the "Et-hoh Song" is sung, commencing:

"Brothers, our council-fire shines bright, Et-hoh!"

At the initiation of a member, a different one is sung, the first stanza of which is as follows:

"Sacred's the ground where Freedom's found,
And Virtue stamps her name;
Our hearts entwine at Friendship's shrine,
And Union fans the flame:
Our hearts sincere Shall greet you here,
With joyful voice
Confirm your choice.
Et-hoh! Et-hoh! Et-hoh!"

Every member who proposes a person for initiation is required to vouch that he is a true republican, and firmly attached to the Constitution of the United States
